

CANADIAN 'MOUNTIE' RELATES ADVENTURES

Major Schoof Talks to 'Ag' College Convocation Last Thursday.

Mal G. H. Schoof, former Nebraska resident and the oldest Canadian mounted policeman who still rides patrol, lectured to an enthusiastic crowd in the Activities building on the agricultural campus Thursday. Dean W. W. Burr introduced Major Schoof to the young people in attendance at the convocation program.

Major Schoof spent the first thirteen years of his life in Schleswig-Holstein. As a youth he suffered with consumption and the doctors gave him but two years to live. The major said that he had seen the world from one end to the other; had always worked his way and enjoyed it immensely.

Goes to Nebraska.

In 1883 Major Schoof found his way to North Bend, Neb. He later got a job herding cattle in Stanton county and lived in a dugout which while in Nebraska he cured of consumption which he attributed to the hard outdoor life which he lived. "Mother nature is a cruel nurse, but a good one," the major declared. Major Schoof though now well along in years is as straight as a rail and unusually agile.

He went to South Dakota from Nebraska, where he became well acquainted with "Sitting Bull" and "Rain-in-the-Face." He also met Theodore Roosevelt, the greatest American he had ever known. After staying in South Dakota six years he went to South Africa, where he immediately joined the rough riders. His job was to protect the ox trains, that hauled supplies to the Kimberly mines.

Men Fair Body.

The fort where he was stationed was a thousand miles from the source of supplies. Major Schoof stated that when supplies gave out the soldiers ate horses, mules, dogs, cats, or anything available. The major declared that he lived for two weeks on nothing but grasshopper soup and monkey hach.

Major Schoof was well acquainted with Cecil Rhodes whom he described as "loved by rich and poor alike." Because of the wounds which he received in battle and because he was afflicted with dysentery and fever, he went to the West Indies and South America.

Spent Time in Mexico.

He entered the rurals or mounted police of Mexico. Major Schoof declared that he had never seen a better Mexican. "He was much too good for Mexico so they filled him full of lead," Major Schoof stated. He was jailed and finally lined up before a firing squad. His British citizenship papers saved his life. "I talked big to them," he said, "but I was scared like a deer."

Next he returned to Canada. He now owns a several thousand acre ranch in Alberta. Major Schoof can no longer spend his winters in Canada. He is now on his way to Texas, but will return to Canada in April. Several years ago he "frosted his lungs" while capturing some Indian game poachers.

The major said that he had made but one mistake in his life and that was that he failed to get an education. He declared that any ambitious boy could see the entire world if he was willing to work.

education department told about the opportunities in the Women's Athletic association. Charlotte Joyce, Winnie Powell, Ruth White, Lois Davies and Bernice Edwell spoke briefly about the activities of the Y. W. C. A. Big Sister board, Home Economics association, Phi Upsilon Omicron and Mortar Board. Miss Fedde stated briefly the value of convocations for women students. Miss Edna Noble, college of agriculture librarian, told about the library and its use.

A trio consisting of Alice Bookstrom, Fairy Wooters and Anna Marquard, sang "In the Time of Roses." The convocation closed with the singing of "There Is No Place Like Nebraska."

are checked by the Innocents society committee.

Judges to Be Named.

Judging will take place Friday evening and will be done by a committee of three persons, the names of whom will be announced some time this week.

Flood lights must be used by all contesting houses. This is necessitated by the fact that the judging will be done after dark. Floodlights are also recommended as an improvement to the decorative scheme and emphasis is placed on the proper arrangement of the lights. Cups for first and second prizes for both fraternities and sororities are being offered by Fenton B. Fleming. Mr. Fleming has presented these awards for the past several years.

Numerous Greek-letter organizations have already started work on the homecoming house garb. Sigma Alpha Epsilon has stated its intention of duplicating the Sigma Phi Epsilon feat of winning the award for three years in succession.

really smart art work, and an entirely new organization of the editorial and business policies, have done much toward the magazine's success.

Individuals with regular subscriptions outside of fraternity and sorority blocks may obtain their copies of the book in the Awgwan office, basement of "U" hall.

Sigma Delta Chi is well satisfied with the individual sales record and will use the same selling system when other issues of the Awgwan are released, according to Andersen.
