

METHODIST COUNCIL PLANS FOR BANQUET

Rev. Sandfur Addresses Group on Prohibition Essay Contest.

Methodist student council, with Rev. Sandfur as guest speaker, met Friday afternoon at the Temple cafeteria to formulate plans for coming events of interest to Methodist students at the university. Reverend Sandfur, representative of the Anti-Saloon league, presented the details of the essay contest now being conducted by the organization.

Attention was called to the International friendly banquet to be held at the First Christian church, at 4 o'clock on the evening of Nov. 1. The group assumed responsibility for the sale of 100 tickets for the dinner.

Plans were discussed for the next All-Methodist party scheduled for Nov. 15. This will be held in the activities building on the college of agriculture campus, and will be sponsored by the First, Second and Epworth Methodist churches.

Discussion was taken up regarding the All-Methodist fellowship dinner to be held Tuesday, Nov. 19 at the Grand Hotel. Roy Burt and Chester Bowers, Chicago church workers, will feature the evening's program.

ZETA TAU ALPHAS ALPHA THETS WIN

Light house was placed directly over the house entrance. The winning sorority's decorations were centered around a Cornhusker clipping a Jayhawk's wings. They were enclosed by cornstalks and the state line fence. "Glad 2 C U" painted in red on a white banner was also used in the decoration scheme.

Phi Gamma Delta's decorations were composed of a "Fiji house" formed by enclosing the large front porch with cornstalks, two large natives of the Fiji islands standing at attention on either side of the house entrance, and the inscription "The Fiji house welcomes you K U" above the entrance. A large N and K were placed on either side of the house. A Cornhusker resting on a ladder by the side of the house entrance gloating over the golden egg of victory represented by a football over the entrance formed the main theme of Delta Tau Delta's decorations. A Jayhawk was perched near the egg and "Welcome K. U.—Grads" completed the theme.

A brilliantly colored modernistic effect with King Korn seated on his throne and a Cornhusker carrying the Jayhawk in on a platter was achieved by the Chi Omegas in their decoration scheme.

The Early Bird Gets the Worm" formed the central theme of Alpha Chi Omega's decorations. A Cornhusker was shown digging a worm and a Jayhawk was fluttering nearby in a menacing attitude.

"Mr. J. Hawk—killed in battle Nov. 2, 1929" inscribed on a tombstone was the main idea expressed in Kappa Alpha Theta's decorations. A black background with stars and the moon furnished a contrast to the white tombstone.

Kappa Kappa Gamma decorated their house with a large Cornhusker placed to one side of the house entrance holding a caged Jayhawk. A log cabin effect occupying the whole front of the house with a Cornhusker bringing home the bacon was represented by Delta Delta Delta's decorations. Following the Cornhusker was a limping Kansas football player and a bandaged Jayhawk.

Delta Gamma's decorations consisted of a Corn Cob and a Tassel watching the Cornhusker trample the Jayhawk. "Welcome Grads" was posted above the figures.

Alpha Delta Pi decorated their house with a large phonograph record bearing the words "Homecoming—Nebraska vs. Kansas." Directly above the record was a Corn Cob in the act of breaking it with a mallet.

Delta Theta Phi pictured a Cornhusker with three feathers, 1926, 27 and 28 in his helmet, in the act of putting in feather 1929.

Phi Kappa Phi constructed decorations to represent a Jayhawk with a bandaged bill "still pecking" (according to the inscription above the figures) a smiling ear of corn.

The Lambda Chi Alphas built a scaffold on the front of their house, illuminated it with numerous lanterns and had an ear of corn hang the Jayhawk.

The Acacias used the graveyard idea with two Cornhuskers shedding a great many tears as they buried a dead Jayhawk.

A Cornhusker sitting on a caged Jayhawk was used by Phi Delta Theta in their decorations. A large welcome sign was placed over the Cornhusker.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon's decorations were similar to those of last year—large yellow panel giving the impression of the entrance to a temple. A Cornhusker and Jayhawk represented at the top of the scheme.

Sigma Nu's decorations consisted of a large ear of corn and a Jayhawk placed to either side of a large Corn Cob who bore a welcoming sign.

Sigma Chi's decorations were made up of scarlet and white and crimson and red streamers leading to their lighted pin.

Omega Uta Pi used their pin as a central motif in decorating with a revolving disc inscribed with "Bea K U" in the center of it.

Alpha Chi Sigma's decorations consisted of a Cornhusker wringing a Jayhawk's neck. A shotgun was placed to one side of the Husker.

An open book bearing the words "Wholly Bibles" with a Cornhusker standing nearby and Kansas and Nebraska pennants adding a touch of color was the decoration scheme used by Sigma Phi Sigma.

A Cornhusker juggling a Jayhawk with a gun and a sign "Down that Jayhawk" were used by Delta Sigma Delta in decorating for homecoming.

Phi Alpha Delta's decorations consisted of a sign inscribed with "N U Kan-Kan K U."

A large telephone bearing the inscription "Hello grads—N" was used by the Delta Upsilon house in decorating.

Alpha Tau Omega fraternity decorated with their pin, the signs "Shake Kansas" and "Shake Grads" and figures representing a Cornhusker and returning grads.

Delta Sigma Phi used a "Grad Zeppelin—N1929" in their homecoming decorations.

The central figure in Pi Kappa Alpha's decorations was a Cornhusker sharpening an ax while a Jayhawk, tied to a stake, looked on.

Sigma Alpha Mu decorated with red and white bunting and a white fence. A red lantern was hung over a gate in the fence.

Kappa Sigma represented a Cornhusker carrying home a Jayhawk on his shoulder in their decorations. Above the Husker was the sign "Open season on Jayhawks."

Sigma Phi Epsilon decorated the entrance to their house with a large heart inscribed with the greek letters of the fraternity and "Our heart is open."

Theta Chi used the Cornhusker wringing a Jayhawk's neck idea and also suspended a welcome sign from two towers in front of their house entrance.

Pi Kappa Phi's decorations were a Cornhusker and Jayhawk with "Welcome—Howdy Grads" strung between the two.

A Husker with a butterfly net chasing a Jayhawk with a football in its beak formed the central motif of Zeta Beta Tau's decorations.

Phi Sigma Kappa decorated with their fraternity flag, a maroon colored banner with the greek

Theta Sigma Phis Invade Press Box To Feed Writers Coffee, Doughnuts

(By a Theta Sigma Phi.)

Theta Sigma Phis say the sports editor of the Daily Nebraskan is "a wet." And he was yesterday. After the game he was dripping with coffee which the journalistic sorority had served him, somewhat unceremoniously.

Between the halves, Theta Sigma Phi served doughnuts and coffee in the press box. That sanctum of newspaper men was invaded by the feminine journalists shortly after the first quarter. First came the doughnuts but the coffee was yet to come when the game was resumed after the half. Stammering hot, it was better late than never.

The little concrete box on the west side which looks like a tiny perch from the opposite stand of the stadium is really large—there were about seventy men in it. Telegraph instruments clicked out the play-by-play account of the game, and except for their there was little noise. Then someone would shout the names of the men making a play. This was telephoned by a man down on the field and the sports reporters writing up the game for their papers there, and in Omaha, were then certain that their reports of the game were accurate. "Sloan carried" he would call through a little megaphone. "Sloan carried." At either end of the press box are the broadcasting studios, sound-proof rooms with doors kept closed—except to doughnuts and coffee. No one seemed to notice the women invaders and it was remarkably easy to get through the stadium and up to the press box—when one was armed with a pass, coffee and doughnuts which made her sure of a welcome. From the top of the bleachers where the sports writers view the game, the field looks very small and clean, the yard lines stand out clearly and the players look like dolls.

It is hard to tell whether the press men enjoyed the coffee and doughnuts as much as the student journalists did the trip there and the sight of the cheering section in action between the halves. Both of them are anxious to repeat the experience and even the sports editor agreed that the coffee was "just right."

Delta Zeta represented the Husker 1929 football car running over a Jayhawk.

"Aw wots yo idea in bringing dat up," spoken by a Jayhawk to a Cornhusker pointing to the history of games won by Kansas and Nebraska and "Welcome again Jayhawk" were used by Alpha Phi in their decorations.

Alpha Sigma Phi, Delta Chi, Kappa Delta and a few others did not decorate.

FAIR WEATHER AIDS YEARBOOK SALESMEN

A sales drive was conducted among the alumni who were back for homecoming. The sales among students in general has been extended to include the week ending Nov. 9. Kennedy hopes that a week of favorable weather will enable the salesmen to approach within striking distance of the goal of 1600 sales.
