INGLIS SPEAKS TO WORLD FORUM GROUP

Mr. Inglis stated, He said that military training being both popular and compulsory was liable to instill the idea in the minds of the students that war is desirable, necessary or inevitable.

War Is No Protection. "All the war in the world does not protect us from a thing," he declared.

Mr. Inglis commended very highly the attitude of Lt. Col. F. F. Jewett regarding military training and its purpose and effectiveness.

The speaker compared the reliance of a nation in a strong army and navy to a soldier with a wooden sword, which he believes is one of steel, in that both would be ineffective, when put to the test.

Christians Must Change. He said that Christianity too, must recognize that walls are no longer adequate.

Rev. Inglis said that Christians would have to get over the "We are good, and you are bad" attitude. The Mohammedan religion is superior to the Christian religion in this respect, according to Mr. Inglis. He said that the Islam embraces white, black and yellow in a common band, while Christianity is more interested in its racial pride, than in sharing its Christian philosophy.

The speaker said that he did not advocate inter-racial marriages, but that universal brotherhood should be recognized, which makes a few inter-racial marriages inevitable even though they might be unwise and unfortunate.

DIRECTOR TELLS PLANS FOR 1930 SUMMER SESSION

Three hours credit would be offered for the nine weeks. The two sessions will in no way conflict with one another.

Special attention will be given in the coming summer session to serve the rural schools of the state, an intensive course being designed to serve county superintendents and rural teachers.

Will Offer Coaching Course. For the second year, the university will offer the special two weeks course in athletic coaching.

Coaches Dana X. Bible, Bernard Oakes, Ed Wier, and John Rhodes will have charge of football instruction, Charles Black of basketball, Henry Schulte and John Rhodes of track, Rudolph Voelger of physical education, Dr. J. M. McLean of training room methods and Herb Gish of athletic organization and administration.

The special two weeks coaching school is being planned primarily for men who have had previous coaching experience or athletic experience.

In addition, the regular six weeks coaching course in football, track, basketball and physical education, will be offered.

Former Nebraskan Tells of Being Held by Chinese Bandits Over Night

Dr. Francis F. Tucker, Nebraskan '04, describes an exciting evening spent with Chinese bandits in a letter written to the alumni association. He and Mrs. Tucker, who is also a former Nebraskan student, are now connected with the Williams Porter hospital at Tchow, Shantung, China.

One day, according to Dr. Tucker, he was stopped by some bandits while driving in a hospital automobile and held in captivity for a night. Contrary to the common opinion regarding these supposedly desperate characters, he was not done any physical violence. They were, however, very much interested in his spectacles and several attempts were made to snatch these away from him.

Dr. Tucker, however, writes that he still has the original ones. Reverse Doctors. When the bandits found that he was connected with Tchow hospital, they guaranteed polite treatment because they were acquainted with the work of that institution.

This, Dr. Tucker, maintains, did not seem to include taking whatever money they could find on him. Others held were even more unfortunate and had their clothing and baggage taken as well.

The main purpose of the bandits seemed to be to get money. One of the leaders when questioned, said that his folks had nothing to eat and this was his only means of livelihood. Some of the bandits were looking for opium.

In the usual bandit-like manner, these Chinese threatened their captives with being held for ransom, but they were induced to give up this idea by the number of commerce firms in the town. At daybreak after a sleepless night the captives found their hosts gone with about three or four hundred dollars in money and some clothing and baggage.

Dr. Tucker seemed to treat the matter as an interesting experience and said that the purpose of his letter was to give an account of what the bandits did not do in that peaceful land, and show that there was something "doing" even there, holdup.

All But One of Nebraska 4-H Clubs Win Awards in National Contests

All but one of the Nebraska 4-H club teams of 1929 have placed second or third in national contests this fall, according to results received at the college of agriculture. Two judging teams, one demonstration team, a style show girl and two health contestants now at the national club congress at Chicago are yet to be heard from.

The dairy judging team started off the record when they placed second at the National dairy show in October. During the past week at Chicago the livestock judging team was third, the crops judging team second, the clothing judging team third, and the girls room judging team third in national contests. Canning judging team girls dropped to eighth place in their contest.

Several of the Nebraska boys and girls have been as high as second as individual judges but not a single one has placed first yet in the 1929 contests. A team the Nebraska crops judges placed first in judging corn and small grain but dropped down in the identification division of the grain judging contest.

Ag Man Coaches. William Pokorny was second Lester Snyder fifth, and Glen Marolf eighth in the grain judging contest. Pokorny was first in judging corn, and Snyder third. Pokorny was second in judging small grain. The boys were members of the Waverly corn club and coached by Erwin Hutchinson, leader of the club and a student in the college of agriculture. The club and team is a direct development of a combination of 4-H club work and Smith-Hughes vocational agriculture under the direction of G. A. Spidel of the Waverly high school. Hutchinson was at one time a Smith-Hughes boy and in Spidel's classes.

Roberta Hiedik and Viola Woodworth of Saunders county placed eighth and eleventh in the clothing judging contest and were third as a team. Helen Nunns of Geneva was second in the canning judging contest and Norma Peterson of Holdrege was the other member of the team. Aileen Albers of Hebron was eighth and Ione Gibbs of Elk Creek was ninth in the girls room judging contest in which Nebraska was also third. Among the exhibitors Alice Leons Amber of Weeping Water was second with her room improvement unit. Dorothy Daigh of Albion was eighth with her window treatment. Leona Geiger of Dawson was third with her canned meat. Ruth Stickell of Strang was first with her canned meat. Doris Hafer of Geneva was second in the Kerr Glass national canning contest.

Many Get Prizes. Other awards on exhibits were

Helen Nunns, Geneva, first on vegetables; Twilla Furrer, Walton, fourth on fruit; Ruth Stickell, Strang, second in preserve and pickle; Doris Hafer, Geneva, sixth and tenth in meats. Mrs. S. E. Dexter, Ballagh, had fourth club exhibit.

Marion Snyder and Lucille Cooley of Lancaster county are on the cooking judging team and Harold Romberg, Allen Buscholt, Elwin Diedrickson of Dodge county are on the poultry judging team yet to be heard from at Chicago. Helen and Mildred Myers of Custer county are competing in the clothing demonstration contest, the winner of which gets a trip to Europe. Roberta Hiedik of Saunders county is in the style show and Milton Gustafson of Phelps county and Frances Axtell of Jefferson county are in the health contest this week.
