Discussion of Wider Point of View.

Three remedies which must be put into effect before the Kellogg pact can really become successful

According to Mr. Waller there must be a better system for set-tlement of international disputes belonging to the League of Nations as well as those who do, a great move toward disarmsment, and some form of punishment for those countries who break the pact and go to war. The Irish regard the pact as very important, he said, but feel it can not accomplish very much unless these things are done. The pact as it is, is a declaration that countries will not go to war against each other. But it is only a declaration, nothing more, according to Mr. Waller.
