Another point of interest will be furnished by the championship game of the intercollegiate basketball tournament. The program is being planned and prepared by the men's athletic staff.

Males Barred from Coed Follies; Femmes Arrange Unique Program

BY MARGARET TINLEY.

"Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise," but where coed follies are concerned, wisdom would be better than bliss. And many a masculine mind would like wisdom of the brand that can be gotten at the Temple theater Saturday night when the Associated Women students sponsor their annual vaudeville entertainment. But this is to be a purely feminine affair and all that men are allowed to do is to furnish any male attire needed by the performers.

Six sororities and W. A. A. will each present a skit in the contest for the three money prizes. Each one is original and together they make a pot pourri of entertainment not seen before on the campus, even in the always varied coed follies.

With her very best talent enrolled, Phi Phi is putting on a "Magazine Revue," most of the popular periodicals will be there and of course the list will include College Humor. Tri Deltis will be represented by Mildred Orr, who will read "White Shadows," a semi-serious, semi-comic number she used as an entertainer in New York. Gamma Phi Beta is turning time backward to put on a toy shop revue—all the childhood friends

SEVEN FEATURE ACTS PLANNED FOR FOLLIES

FOUR JUDGES SELECTED

Complete dress rehearsal for the Coed Follies will be Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at the Temple theater, according to an announcement by Helen McClesney, general chairman. Sponsored by the A. W. Tri-Delta Have Skit.

Delta Delta Delta's curtain skit, with Mildred Orr as master of ceremonies, will be so interwoven with the other acts as to make a unified whole of the program, according to the committee members who have seen the practices of the organizations participating.

Pantomime featuring of popular magazines by Phi Beta Phi, a burlesque entitled "Her Final Sacrifice" by Phi Mu, and a toy shop revue by Gamma Phi Beta will comprise three of the offerings. Honesty, optimism, accuracy, knowledge of his subject matter and acquaintance with current history were listed as qualifications of the good newspaper reporter by Verne Hedge, former mayor of Lincoln, former president of the Lincoln chamber of commerce and former president of the Nebraska Alumni association, in an informal talk to members of Sigma Delta Chi journalistic fraternity meeting Thursday evening at the Beta Theta Pi house.

Mr. Hedge recounted some of his experiences with newspaper men and expressed his opinion of journalism today from his contacts with newspaper men. Sigma Delta Chi will meet next Thursday night at the Lambda Chi Alpha house to hear a talk by District Judge E. E. Chappell. ## DEAN THOMPSON TELLS STAND ON MINOR OFFICERS

Says Faculty Committee Decided Leave Action Up to Students.

COUNCIL PLAN TABLED Motion Was Not Refused; Classes May Decline Appoint Meet.

The stand taken by the faculty committee on student organizations concerning the abolition of minor class officers was explained to The Daily Nebraskan Thursday by Dr. T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs. Tabling the Student Council's recommendation that minor class officers be abolished, the faculty committee came in for some censure from the editorial columns of The Nebraskan.

"We simply left the matter up to the students," explained Dean Thompson. "The committee felt that perhaps it had been taking too many things in the way of extra-curricular activities away from students."

Minor class officers, consisting of a vice president, secretary and treasurer for four classes, are not elected at the regular second semester election, but as special mass meetings of each class. The failure of the committee to act on this question will not interfere (Continued on Page 4.)

MRS. SENNING SPEAKS TO UNI COED VOTERS

"Family Too Large for Its House," Is Subject Of Address.

Mrs. John Senning spoke before a meeting of the University League of Women Voters Thursday afternoon in Ellen Smith hall. She spoke on the "Family Too Large For Its House," referring primarily to the divisions of departments in our present day government. "William Hart rightly compared the government to a picture puzzle, as each department is so closely related and dependent on each other," declared Mrs. Senning in opening her talk. "It is plainly evident that the departments need reorganization, and has been realized by the people because so many plans, some ridiculous have been submitted to the president," she said.

President Hoover is slowly reorganizing and redividing the departments. For instance, the bureau of prohibition is under the treasury department, but congress is now working to change prohibition to the department of justice, according to Mrs. Senning. Following the talk, Virginia Jonas gave a reading, "The Reconsidered Verdict." Leone Ketterer, chairman of the efficiency in government group, was in charge of the meeting.

A meeting of the group led by Leone Ketterer was announced for Thursday, Feb. 20, at 4 o'clock in Ellen Smith hall.

VOTERS WILL SELECT IVY DAY ORATOR TOO

Nebraskan Discovers That May Fete Speaker Is Overlooked.

ONLY SENIORS ELIGIBLE

Applications for Ivy day orator will be received at the student activities office until Saturday noon. Ralph Raikes, president of the Student Council, announced Tuesday. The announcement came as a result of The Nebraskan's discovery that no mention had been made of this position in the lists of filings published prior to this time.

Student council members aver they were not aware of the fact that the election of Ivy day orator is supposed to be held next Tuesday along with the other elections. They were under the impression that the spring balloting took care of this election.

Here again the change in date for Ivy ceremonies to May 2 complicates matters—the speaker for the occasion must be selected before the exercises are held. Hence the announcement this morning that the orator will be voted upon next Tuesday.

NEW SCHOONER ISSUE VARIES IN CONTENT

With a galaxy of short stories, feature articles and poems, the winter number of the Prairie Schooner, Nebraska's contribution to the literary world, was released Thursday afternoon by its editor, Dr. L. C. Wimberly.

Heading the contributions as listed on the frontispiece of the magazine is "Along a Sandy Road," a story by an Omaha, Ellen Bishop. Her short story, "Morning," which appeared in the Schooner several issues ago, was double-starred by the international short story critic, Edward J. O'Brien.

Fred L. Christensen, a graduate student, is the author of "Come, All You Rounders!" the subject of which, according to the editor, "is the bold, old man of the west." Joe Deming and Jim Thomson, both students, have also written essays and poems.

Through her magazine a number of poets have gained national fame. This publication is the first successful one of its kind in America. Most magazines use poetry only as a filler, but the contributors are paid for their work in the "Poetry."

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Friday, Feb. 14. Vesper choir tryouts, Ellen Smith hall, 12:30 to 1. Deadline for election filing, Coliseum, 5 p. m.

KLUB WILL CONTINUE 'SOB SISTER' TRIALS

Forty Aspire to Principal Roles in Tryouts Wednesday.

INTEREST IS MANIFEST

Additional tryouts for principal parts in Kosmet Klub's spring show, "Sob Sister," will be held in the club rooms, located in the Annex building, at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. Forty men and women students tried out for principal parts in the Temple Wednesday night. Due to the basketball game, however, some were unable to be present and so the additional tryouts will be held this afternoon.

Despite the fact that the game interfered, judges were kept busy from 7 to 10:30 o'clock reviewing candidates for the various positions in the musical comedy. Further tryouts for chorus aspirants were held in Wally Marrow's studio in the Eagle apartments Thursday night. A number of individuals took advantage of this prolongation of the chorus tryouts, originally held in the Temple Tuesday night. Eighty persons were reviewed for the choruses Tuesday.

A number of extra characters, especially women, will be used in certain of the show's scenes, according to club members.

Names of all candidates for the show have been sent to the dean of student affairs office where they will be checked for eligibility. As soon as the lists come back a tentative selection of the cast will be made. Active work on the principal parts will probably begin sometime next week. Club members state that tryouts so far have been very satisfactory for both chorus and principal parts. Much interest has been shown and a great array of material has presented itself.

AG FUN FEST NEEDS ADDITIONAL TALENT

Wednesday Tryout Reveals Much Material; All Not Reviewed.

Tryouts held Wednesday night for Coll-Agri-Fun, annual stage presentation of the college of agriculture, indicated that an abundance of material is in the hands of the committee which will choose the acts that are to be offered. Four acts were watched by the committee during the first tryout and all of them were held over for consideration and possible revision. The selection committee intimated that it was well pleased with these first results.

Many more acts have been submitted, but they could not all be examined Wednesday night. It is possible that half of those entered will have to be culled out or combined with others in some way. Additional talent is still being sought by the committee in charge of Coll-Agri-Fun. T. H. Gooding, faculty member, announced. Last year, he added, the best acts were given by freshmen, but few first year men and women have submitted acts this year.

Further tryouts will be held Wednesday evening, it was announced.

COBS WILL SPONSOR PROM TICKET SALES

Formal Committee Entrusts Pep Club With Handling Of Pasteboards.

At a meeting of the Junior Senior Prom committee Thursday evening at the Delta Tau Delta house ways and means for distribution of the tickets for the final formal of the season were discussed. The decision of the committee gives to the Corn Cobs the exclusive franchise to sell the tickets, with the exception of the members of the committee who will also sell tickets.

It was brought out that the Corn Cobs are the most representative activity organization on the campus and best fitted to distribute the tickets since there are two cobs from each fraternity.

To date of this writing there have been seven girls file for Prom girl. Filings will close tonight at 5 o'clock for the election Tuesday. The Prom girl will represent the choice of the male students who attend the ball.

Don Carlson, a chairman of the Prom committee, says that the two ball rooms engaged at the Lincoln will amply take care of 400 couples. This is rather a new idea in parties and according to indications it should be well received.

The tickets for the Prom are not to go on sale until sometime next week and there will be only one selling campaign.

SEVEN COEDS GET INTO KAPPA BETA, CHRISTIAN CLUB

Seven university women were initiated into Kappa Beta, organization of the Disciples of Christ church, at its founder's day banquet Thursday night. They are: Jeanne Bourke, Dorothy Wright, Helen Wilson, Pauline McClure, Jewell Sabin, Thelma Randall, and Valleria French. Decorations at the banquet carried out the rainbow motif.

VIEWS GIVEN ON FELLMAN'S PLAN

Faculty Members and Students Connected With New Method of Student Council Representation Voice Opinions For and Against.

POLITICAL PARTIES EXPRESS THEIR FAVOR

Father of Motion Warmly Supports Plan; Barb Head Desires Change; Present Council Likes Idea; Dr. Senning Sees Many Loopholes.

By POLITICUS.

Proportional representation—the plan to revolutionize the composition of the University of Nebraska Student Council—may or may not be the right thing if the opinions of several faculty and student members are to be considered any criteria.

In interviews obtained with the dean of women, dean of student affairs, the chairman of the political science department, the president of the Student Council, the sponsor of the plan, and the heads of the three student political factions, divergent views on the subject have been found.

Average Valentine Is Far Too Sentimental Avers Star Snooper

St. Valentine's day, descending upon the campus this morning, will find a few of the less popular coeds heartless. Others, basking in the warm sunshine of popularity, may rate one or more of the lacy things known as valentines.

The Daily Nebraskan's star snooper reports that the average valentine is far too sentimental for average use and that breaches of promise suits might be caused by them. Heart balm, he reports, would be the least disagreeable result of the distribution of valentines.

Anxious to assist the university lovers in the pursuit of their activities, The Nebraskan offers a safe verse.

I want you for my valentine—
Along with several others,
I must admit I have a line,
But so do all the brothers.

Hats are off to the lads who indulged in scraps with their feminine friends about last Sunday, hence eliminating the necessity of scrapping the coeders dry in an attempt to purchase valentine gifts. The wireless valentine communications might be considered heart to heart talks.
