

On The Campus

By Mary Nichols,

Proceeding the closing of the formal season on Friday of this week with the Junior-Senior prom, campus groups gave two formal parties in downtown ballrooms. Four house parties, two of them given by sororities, completed the social calendar for last week end.

Many Attend Formal of Kappa Sigma

The lighted crescent and star formed part of the elaborate decorations for the Kappa Sigma formal at the ballroom of the Cornhusker hotel on Friday evening. The decorative effects against a moiré background, depicting the sweetheart theme, were used in the scheme. Three hundred couples attended the party. Lyle DeMoss introduced a theme song as a feature of the evening's entertainment. As chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Verne Hedge, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Gunderson and Dr. and Mrs. E. N. Deppen.

Theta Chi Gives House Party

Members of Theta Chi fraternity entertained at a party at the chapter house on Saturday evening. Chaperoning the affair were Mrs. Anna M. Knapp and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Barclay.

Pi Kappa Phi Entertains

Pi Kappa Phi fraternity entertained at a house party for fifty couples on Saturday evening. Decorations for the chapter house were in blue and gold, the fraternity colors. Mr. and Mrs. Sig Combs, Mr. and Mrs. Peral Canton, and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Hedge served as chaperons for the party.

R. O. T. C. LEADER WILL BE GIVEN NEW COMMAND

(Continued from Page 1.) 1897. He is well known to Captains Skinner and Lyons of the R. O. T. C. staff, as well as Col. Frank W. Eager of Lincoln. He is graduate of the field and general staff school and of the army war college. He has been decorated with the silver bar citation and the distinguished service medal for gallantry in action during the Mountfaucon drive during the World war.

He was captain of the First Nebraska volunteer infantry force to the Philippines in 1898 and resigned his commission there to accept a regular commission in the United States army.

SLAVIC CLUB ADOPTS NAME OF "COMENIUS"

A feature of the educational program of the meeting was the appearance of Mr. Knizel, world traveler and linguist. He sang a number of songs in French, Spanish and Czechoslovakian languages. In a short talk he complimented the club on its work.

Entertain Cosmopolitan.

The Cosmopolitan club members were guests of the Comenians and the program was of a kind interesting to both. President Stought, of the Cosmopolitans, expressed her appreciation of the program and suggested that since the membership of each club is of various nationalities, and that the educational purposes are similar, that it would be mutually beneficial if the two clubs would occasionally entertain each other.

Professor Lantz, of the department of secondary education of teachers college, gave the club the benefit of his wide experience with organizations and various other aspects of extra-curricular activities as a part of the educational feature of the meeting.

Mr. Sorokin, a Russian graduate of the university, and a fellow countryman of Professor Lantz who has been in the United States but a short time, discussed the possibilities of a pan-Slavic nation in Europe. Both men are employed in Lincoln.

A standard club pin was selected during the short business meeting held after the educational part of the program. Stanley J. Meugler, president of the club, wishes all members absent from the meeting to get in touch with an officer of the club and arrange to have their pins ordered.

Y. W. C. A. CANDIDATES AT FARM ARE NAMED

rie Broad are the candidates for secretary, and Miriam Wiggenhorn and Vivien Hildreth for treasurer.

No Ag Treasurer. Since the treasurer of the general association serves both groups, no treasurer is selected on the agricultural campus. The defeated candidate for president there automatically becomes vice president.

Miss Moffitt, a student of home economics, is a Phi Mu from Odell. Miss Krotz, who is a sophomore in the college of agriculture and a member of Phi Mu, is from Odell, too.

Miss Bignell, a member of Zeta Tau Alpha, is from Lincoln, and Miss Hatch's home is in Mahaska, Kas.

During the noon hour of both days a special box will be provided in the Home Economics building so that girls on the campus of the college of agriculture may vote for the officers of the general association, as well as for the officers of their own organization.

men, and a round table for upper classmen. Yearly Convention Held.

"There has been a tendency of Panhellenic organizations in sections of the country to hold yearly conventions. As a direct result of this, and the third part of the program, the national council will invite representatives from all parts of the country to attend the next convention to be held in two years. "This last provision is a radical and, I feel, an important change which may mark a new era in national and local Panhellenics," Mrs. Brown declared. "This move will help clarify problems, and will throw the light of the students' viewpoints on the question."

Pledge Expires at End of Year.

"An important change in the interfraternity compact is the following statement, 'a pledge shall expire at the end of a calendar year whether she remains on the same campus or attends another college or institution.' This means that the girl is ineligible to pledge any other fraternity until the year is up, even if she is not attending the same place," she explained. "In case of a broken pledge, the girl is required to wait one year after the pledge was broken, before she can pledge again."

"Publicity," she announced, "is definitely opposed by the council, especially of a social nature. It has been just recently that the publication of the list of pledges is legitimate. Any publicity about the Panhellenic organization itself is legitimate, but individual group publicity is not."

Junior-Senior Prom Resurrected in 1927 As Finale to Formal Functions

By Sally Pickard.

In 1927, after an absence of five years, the Junior-Senior Prom was reestablished on the Nebraska campus, and for the first time a Prom girl was chosen. At that time it was hoped that if the Prom were successful, it could be made a traditional affair ranking with the Military ball and Interfraternity ball and could, in future years be a closed night ending the formal season.

To Ellice Holovotchiner, Kappa Kappa Gamma, goes the honor of being elected the first Prom girl. The Prom was held in the coliseum which was transformed with multi-colored lighting effects and spring decorations to give the appearance of an old-fashioned garden. Tracy Brown's Oklahomaans and Beck's orchestra furnished music for dancing, and souvenir programs with the Nebraska crest were the favors. Oscar Norling was general chairman of the Prom.

The Prom in 1928 was held at the Scottish Rite Temple, Edith Mae Johnson, Pi Beta Phi, was presented as Prom girl against a spring background of flowers and effective garden decorations.

A dinner-dance at the Lincoln hotel preceded the formal at which Randall's Royal orchestra from Omaha played, appearing later at the Prom. Leather date books were given as favors. Clara Olson and Fritz Daly had general charge of arrangements for the 1928 Prom.

Lorraine Gamble, Delta Gamma, was chosen as Prom girl in 1929 and was presented at the last formal of the season held in the Cornhusker ballroom. Lew Caskey's ten-piece band from Chicago provided music for dancing, and leather purses were given as favors. Ray Sabata and Julia Rider served as chairman and co-chairman.

Margaret Cunningham, and Lucille Hillers. Lucille Hillers comes to Zeta chapter from Nu chapter at Ann Arbor, Mich.

February Averages 15 Degrees Above Usual Temperature

Fifteen degrees above normal is the record for last month's average temperature, making it the warmest February since 1881. 1926 and 1921 had the next highest averages with 37 and 36 degrees respectively. "The temperatures for the month are about what we expect the last week in March," stated H. G. Carter of the weather bureau, in commenting upon the unusual mildness.

The precipitation of .31 of an inch was about one-third the normal amount for February. The lowest on record for that month was in 1917 with .02, but that year the average temperature was 24 degrees.

of his profession, invariably becomes the leader in any community where he resides. His daily work brings him into touch with all classes of men, and into contact with "all manner" of human activities. He acts as adviser and counselor of the business men in all important undertakings.

He draws contracts, wills, real estate papers, and examines titles. When a family is disrupted by death or discord, his advice is the first to be sought. He is not a stirrer up of quarrels, but when other means have failed to settle controversies, it is his high function to present his client's cause unto the court and to aid the court as its officer in the administration of justice.

State Supplies Its Lawyers.

There are three remarkable and interesting things in connection with the college of law of the University of Nebraska. One is the fact that Nebraska law students come from all types of homes, nearly half of their fathers being farmers or stockmen. The third remarkable fact is that Nebraska graduates and former faculty members are holding positions of outstanding leadership in all parts of the country.

Law is Needed.

Not a very pleasant picture, is it? Conditions such as these have prevailed from time to time in the history of the world when law has broken down. Those times have been times of terror for the great majority of people. The reports of isolated cases of crime which appear in our press today are but a small part of what might be recorded as taking place were it not for law.

Every great profession has arisen to meet some important and enduring human need. Civilized society cannot exist without law, or without a body of men trained in the formulation interpretation, and application of law. The poorly trained lawyer or the lawyer who lacks professional ideals is a menace to the community.

The Much Ridiculed Lawyer Is a Badly Needed Member of Society

"The first thing we do, let's kill all the lawyers."

"Nay that I mean to do," replies Cade. "Is not this a lamentable thing, that of the skin of an innocent lamb should be made parchment? That parchment, being scribbled o'er, should undo a man?"

Shakespeare had fun with the lawyers, just as some of the rest of us are prone to have today.

Let us suppose that just for a moment that we have suddenly abolished all laws and lawyers. You arrive at your place of business in the morning only to find other men in possession of it. You are roughly told that you are no longer owner. You cannot do nothing about it unless you can forcibly dispossess them.

You start to go to your home but of course your automobile is gone. So you walk out and meet your wife calling to you that the children have been kidnapped. There is nothing to be done about it though. Your nextdoor neighbor has decided that your house is an eyesore and so has set fire to it. Down the street comes a gang of highway men shooting to the right and the left and before you have time to think about it they have put a bullet through your side.
