OLD FAVORITES WILL APPEAR IN PLAYERS SHOW

Thirza Fay, Jere Mickel
Lead Cast of 'Little
Clay Cart.'

IS HINDU PRODUCTION

Shudraka, Ancient Ruler
Of India, Claimed to Be Author of Play.

Thirza Fay and Jere Mickel leading the cast of characters of "The Little Clay Cart" which will be presented by the University Players from April 4 to 10 at the Temple theater will be supported by a large number of old time favorites.

These who will take part in the production are: Arthur Singley as Maitreya; Lois Grandstaff as Radanika, a maid; Richard Page as a courier; Harlon Easton as Santhanska, a hisping villain, the brother-in-law of the king; Pauline Gulletly as Madanika Vasantasa's maid; Doris Hosman as a maid; Paul Miller as a shaman; Edwin Quinn as Mithura, a gambling master; Judd Thompson as another gambler; Paul Thompson as Dhurakra, a gambler; W. Zolney Lerner as Shrivalka, a Brahman in love with Madanika; Valerie Worrell as the wife of Charudatta; Al Tiffany as Shthavara, Santhanska's slave; Kenneth Threlkeld as Chandanaka, a policeman; and Katherine Gallagher as Vasantasa's mother.

"The Little Clay Cart" is a Hindu play attributed to King Shudraka, an ancient ruler of India, and translated into English from the original Sanskrit by Arthur William Ryder. It is not definitely known who King Shudraka actually was although he was described as one "who lived with elephants in lordly grace."

There is no eastern drama precisely like it. It probably dates back to the fifth century A. D. when there was great turmoil and unrest in India for this condition is reflected in the background around which the play is built.

Part of the charm of the play comes from the ease with which the action passes from one place to another with a naive disregard of stage limitations as the western audience know them. The nine acts of the play are enacted in one setting which represents a Hindu village. Two houses are shown, supposedly an entire village apart and when the members of one household wish to visit those of the other, they merely travel in circles until the required distance is traversed.

The play is full of a variety of moods ranging from farce to tragedy. The audience is given a glimpse of a galaxy of characters so universal in their appeal that it can still recognize prototypes among the people of today.

Evening performances start at 7:30 p. m. and Saturday matinee at 2:30 p. m. Single admission tickets may be obtained from Ross P. Curtice for seventy-five cents.

General Policy.
"The committee," says Dean Amanda Heppner, secretary of the committee, "has as its general policy to close no nights for any organization or group on the campus. It feels that it cannot guarantee a 100 percent attendance of students at the entertainment and if the entertainment is good enough to warrant a large crowd there will be no need for declaring any nights closed."

Revisions of constitution of the Women's Athletic association was submitted to the committee for consideration. A request from the Y. W. C. A. asking for permission to hold a May morning breakfast on Mothers' day, May 11, was approved. This affair, according to Miss Heppner, was specified to be held from 8 to 9:30 a. m. in order not to interfere with church attendance.

EDITOR TO TALK AT CONVOCATION THIS MORNING

Harriet Monroe, Founder Of 'Poetry,' Will Speak in Temple.

WELL KNOWN AS CRITIC Famed for Comments on Work of Others; Has Published Book.

Harriet Monroe of Chicago, editor of Poetry, a magazine devoted to verse, will speak on "Poets of the Middle West" at a convocation at 11 o'clock in the Temple theater.

Miss Monroe is well known as a critic and poet. She published a volume of poetry entitled "You and I" in 1914 and another on "The Difference and Other Poems" in 1924. In collaboration with Alice Corbin Henderson she compiled an anthology of the principal younger American poets.

A tea in honor of Miss Monroe will be held in the Morrill hall art gallery this afternoon from 3:30 to 5 o'clock. The affair is being sponsored by Chi Delta Phi, national literary society. Miss Monroe visited Lincoln in 1917, stopping here on her return from the west to see the state capitol.

Writes Criticisms.
Several articles of a critical nature in Poetry and other magazines. Her latest book "Poets and Their Art" contains many of these articles. The book also gives an account of the establishment of the poetry magazine, which she edits.

After returning from a trip around the world in 1911 she became associated with the Chicago Tribune. She was art critic on the staff of this paper. The fact that poetry was neglected while the other arts such as painting, sculpture, and architecture were encouraged by endowments, prizes, and scholarships was brought to her attention, while she was employed in this position.

She became convinced that the reason poetry was neglected was because it was left to shift for itself and she conceived the idea of founding a magazine, which would promote the interests of better poetry. For a year she devoted her spare time to the task of interesting others in the project.

Secures Pledges.
By midsummer in 1912 she had secured a pledge of fifty dollars a year for five years from enough people to make the magazine possible. In preparing to edit the magazine she sent circulars to the more prominent poets. These circulars along with letters were sent to Ezra Pound, Vachel Lindsay, Amy Lowell, Arthur Ficke, Witter Bynner, John S. Neihardt, George Sterling and others.

The works of Carl Sandburg, Vachel Lindsay, Robert Frost, and Lew Saret have been introduced thru Poetry.

COUNCIL TAKES ACTION TO FIND SCOPE OF POWER

Steps are Taken Following
Suggestion in Dean T. J.
Thompson Letter.

GROUPS WILL CONCUR

Faculty, Student Committee
Is To Attempt Smoothing
Out of Problems.

By CLIFF F. SANDAHL.
Following a suggestion forwarded by an official letter from Dr. T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs, the student council Wednesday evening unanimously decided to take immediate steps in discovering the real scope of its powers and duties.

The letter of Dean Thompson, published in full at the close of this article, brings out the need for the right kind of leadership in order that student activities may be conducted to the best interests of all concerned. And as a specific step in this direction, the administrative officer asks that the council work in co-operation with the faculty and other student groups in revising a constitution for the council.

Faculty Wants Agreement.
That even the faculty committee on student organizations is somewhat hazy as regards its powers was brought to light by Prof. E. W. Lantz, faculty adviser for the council and member of the faculty committee. According to Mr. Lantz, the faculty committee has no notion of powers they have and as a result it wants to come to some mutual agreement with the students.

A subcommittee had been appointed by the faculty committee prior to the student council's meeting and the personnel of this group, Dr. E. S. Fullbrook, chairman, John K. Selleck and Professor Lantz, will meet with the student committee appointed at the last council meeting, Bill T. McCleary, chairman, David Fellman, Ben Cowdery and Helen McClesney.

It is expected that with the concurrence of these two groups—faculty and students—it will be possible to state definitely what power the faculty committee has over the Student Council and perhaps, more important to the students, what power they will have of their own.

That conditions are not as they should be is shown in Dr. Thompson's message to the council, wherein he cites how "too many persons among the student body and the faculty are manifesting in conversation, in communication, and in conference a keen interest in the matter."

Reports from two committees were also heard at the Wednesday evening of the governing body. The committee on student organizations issued a report on the recognition of student factions in the spring elections in the form of recommendations, to-wit:

"With regard to the coming spring elections, and the recognition of party alignments, in accordance with the principles of the plan of proportional representation which the student body recently adopted, your committee makes the following recommendations:

"1. In view of the recognized strength and ability of the organization which the Blue Shirt, Yellow Jacket, and Barb factions possess, they should be privileged, from the outset, to file complete lists of candidates for the various offices to be filled.

"2. Provided, that they submit to the student council, through its president, a petition for recognition, which shall include an outline of their plan of organization, including the names of their officers, and scope of membership, and

"3. Provided, further, that provisions are made by each faction for a fair caucus in which the candidates are nominated.

"4. Any other new faction will be recognized, if it can show:

"(1) That it has a petition of organization with the bonafide signatures of at least 300 regularly enrolled students;

"(2) That it has a definite and permanent plan of organization;

"(3) That it has made provisions for a fair caucus;

"(4) That it can demonstrate to the Student Council that it is not organized for frivolous or purely obstructionist reasons, but that it fulfills an actual need on the campus.

"5. In all cases, the Student Council reserves the right to throw any party off the ballot if it discovers that such party is not conducting a fair caucus or an honest campaign.

"6. Your committee on student organizations holds itself ready and willing to be of assistance to the various factions, in preparing their petition, in helping them in planning their processes of nomination, or in clarifying any of the provisions of the proportional representation plan."

Action is Deferred.
The foregoing recommendation was considered somewhat at length until it was finally decided to table it for further discussion. Certain sections and parts of the report appeared to be vague and the council deemed it the best
