NEW FEATURES AND COURSES ARE GIVEN AT SUMMER SESSION

Athletic Coaches, Teachers Of Physical Education, Offered Training.

P. T. A. Work, Vitalized and Vocational Agriculture In Curriculum.

Into the summer session at the university this year has been injected a number of features and a group of new courses which are expected to draw large enrollments because of their intensely practical nature.

These new features include:

- Four weeks course in vocational agriculture, June 9 to July 3.
- Two weeks course in athletic coaching, June 9 to 21.
- Two weeks course in physical education for women, June 9 to 20.
- Two weeks courses in vitalized agriculture, rural school administration, and parent-teachers work, June 16 to 27.

Vocational agricultural courses which will be taken chiefly by the teachers of Smith-Hughes agriculture include studies in the project method of agricultural education, organization problems in teaching farm mechanics, problems in animal production, and farm organization and management. The four weeks arrangement to be used this year is expected to yield an increase in enrollment.

Heading the football coaching school is Dr. Clarence W. Spears, head coach at the University of Oregon. The school is arranged to interest the high school athletic coaches throughout Nebraska, though in the eight years it has been in existence it has drawn many from surrounding states. The complete athletic staff of the university is on the faculty of the coaching school which lasts for two weeks and includes an intensive study in the classroom and on the field.

The two weeks course in physical education for women, offered this year for the first time, is planned for women teachers in public schools called upon to teach physical education activities in addition to other classroom duties. It is designed to give them material to work with, to give them an appreciation of the health implications of such work for the safeguarding of their pupils, and to

CAFETERIA IS TO CONTINUE SERVING

Open Hours: Breakfast 6:40 To 9; Lunch 11:30 to 1; Supper 5:15 to 6:30.

Wholesome, tasty food at the cost of materials and service is provided at the Temple cafeteria which will serve three meals a day to summer students and faculty members throughout the nine-week term.

Fresh vegetables and fruits prepared in a variety of ways provide well balanced rations for summer meals. All dairy products used are supplied by the dairy department at the university state farm.

All girls employed at the cafeteria and all boys working in the kitchens and dish rooms are University of Nebraska students. Supervision of the cafeteria is under university authorities who employ food specialists to serve the best food and enough varieties so that a student may order a well balanced meal.

During the past year the cafeteria has served approximately 600 meals a day. In the summer this number is cut down considerably with less than half of the enrollment of the academic year.

This year the cafeteria is offering special rooms for group meetings and special reserved tables without additional cost. A few hours advance notice is all that is necessary to secure these reservations.

Hours of service follow: Breakfast, 6:40 to 9; lunch, 11:30 to 1; and supper, 5:15 to 6:30.

Nebraskan Needed By Summer Session Students—Moritz

To Summer Session Students: The Summer Nebraskan is published for the first time under the auspices of the university. It will serve summer school students not only as a news conveyer but also as a general university bulletin.

All official announcements of importance to the student body will be printed in The Summer Nebraskan. Students will be held responsible for them.

We believe that The Nebraskan has a real opportunity for service and we urge students and members of the faculty to avail themselves to this service and the opportunity it affords for making the various university activities an integral part of the summer session.

R. D. MORITZ,
Director of Summer Session.

Enthusiastic sentiment in favor of a Student Union building on the Nebraska campus was voiced by graduates of the university at alumni meetings held in connection with Roundup week the past week end. The executive committee of the Alumni association was given final authority on the matter with the general understanding that a campaign for the new structure would be launched within the next year.

Development of the campus was the central theme of the address by Chancellor Burnett, who also stressed the need of the Student Union. The most urgent need of the university at present, he said, was another building south of Bessey hall to house Romance languages and possibly business administration.

HOW TO REGISTER

Students who have not registered for summer school at Nebraska before, or who have forgotten the details of the registration process, may find the following information on registration routine helpful. Graduates report to office of Dean Upson, Chemistry 202, between June 9 and 20 for all registration.

Undergraduate registration, Monday and Tuesday, 8 to 12 and 2 to 5.

Undergraduates 17 and 20 to Social Sciences. First floor, to secure admission slips to Memorial hall where actual undergraduate registration takes place.

Registrants are admitted to Memorial hall according to the number on the admission slip. This is to eliminate crowding at the registration tables.

Once inside, locate table which is being used for registration in the college you wish to enter. College and departmental signs are to be found in front of these tables.

Consult faculty advisers at these tables as to courses you wish to take.

Make out triplicate copies of registration slips once you have decided on the subjects for which you will register. Print name, write plainly.

Have adviser sign these and take to desk in the middle of Memorial hall where you leave two, secure class assignment slips, and retain one registration slip to make out your program and class cards.

Proceed to back part of Memorial hall to fill out these cards.

Take these to ends of tables where assistants check them before you leave the registration room. First check them yourself to see if you have given all information requested.

At the door between the registration room and the fee room, your fees will be ascertained by the one copy of your registration slip which you still retain. Here you leave your class cards and other information slips.

Fees are paid by check or in cash as you leave the building.

Unless completed by Tuesday at 5 o'clock, a late registration fee of $3 will be charged.

Classes begin Wednesday morning.

NEBRASKAN MAKES FIRST APPEARANCE

Summer Edition of Campus Newspaper Offered For 25 Cents.

The Summer Nebraskan today makes its debut to the student body of the summer session and regular term students scattered throughout the state. This year for the first time the university is sponsoring a summer season edition of The Nebraskan.

Once before a summer Nebraskan was published by a group of students in journalism, but without university backing. This was immediately after the World war and the paper was put out for one season only.

The Nebraskan this year will be published regularly on Tuesday and Friday. Subscription prices for the eighteen issues are 25 cents on the campus and 50 cents mailed. Copies of The Nebraskan may be obtained regularly on mornings of publication at Long's Book stores and the Co-op Book shop.

Necessity of subscribing to The Nebraskan is shown by the statement of Director R. D. Moritz of the summer session who points out it will be a bulletin of summer school announcements in addition to conveying news and feature stories of general student interest. The Nebraskan is the only means of reaching the general student body and it is hoped by university officials that all students will subscribe.

Gene Robb, Lincoln, '30, is the editor of the summer paper. He has just completed a semester as editor of The Daily Nebraskan. Leroy Jack, Tekamah, '31, will serve as business manager, and Elwood Thompson, Lincoln, '33, will be his assistant.

PRAIRIE SCHOONER'S SPRING EDITION OUT

Outstanding Literary Work Found in New Issue, Says Wimberly.

The spring edition of the Prairie Schooner is off the press and available at news stands or at the office of Prof. L. C. Wimberly, editor. Professor Wimberly believes that much of the work in this issue of the Schooner, University of Nebraska literary magazine, is of an outstanding nature.

This issue contains a story entitled "Character of Iraan" by Jim Thompson, who is a student at the agricultural college. Ada Jean Mechem of Omaha has contributed an article "Psycho-Pathological Fiction." Mary Brinker Post of Spokane has written "East Sound Girl."

Among the other contributors are Rev. Cornelius Mullenburg, of Manistique, Mich. His "The Bribe" is one of a number that he has contributed to this and other magazines and periodicals.

Charles Lindsay, instructor in history and R. T. Prescott, an instructor in English and an associate editor of the Prairie Schooner as well as Loren C. Easley are also contributors to this issue.

Eugene Konecky, commercial director of WOW in Omaha, Elizabeth Shaw of New York City and Andrew Weber of Omaha have contributed several poems. Another poem, "Serf" is the product of Margaret E. Haughwout of Pittsburgh, Pa. "Excellent Is Spring" and "Prairie Morsels" are the work of Harold Vinal and Ruth Estelle Shriver, respectively.

HOME ECONOMICS CLASSES OFFERED ON CITY CAMPUS

All home economics classes will be offered on the city campus during the summer session. Because students find it difficult to take courses on both campuses, the home economics department decided to consolidate all courses on the downtown campus.

The following courses have no prerequisites: Home economics 1, beginning clothing; 21, design; 6, textiles. Home economics 158, nutrition of the school child, is planned for elementary grade school teachers.

3,000 STUDENTS ARE EXPECTED TO ENROLL IN VACATION SCHOOL

Anticipate Some Increase Under Six-Nine Week Term Plan.

Intensive Courses Lasting Two and Four Weeks Introduced.

Today and tomorrow 3,000 graduate and undergraduate students are expected to enroll for the thirty-sixth annual summer session at the University of Nebraska. Many new features are being introduced at the summer school this year. Chief among these is the six-nine weeks plan designed to serve the greatest possible number who might attend the vacation session.

For the first time in the history of summer sessions at the University of Nebraska an effort is made to distinctly serve two classes of students; those who can attend a nine weeks session and those who are unable to devote more than six weeks of study during the summer vacation.

In response to the demand to serve both classes of students, the university senate approved a six-nine weeks plan for the summer session of 1930, the change being based on a desire to make the summer session serve the greatest number of students possible without impairing the quality of the work offered.

The six and nine weeks sessions begin June 9. The short session ends July 18 and the long session Aug. 7. The university particularly stresses the long session.

Thirty-eight departments, representing eleven colleges of the university, will offer 147 undergraduate courses and 103 courses carrying graduate credit during the nine weeks session. The offerings for the short sessions are confined mostly to such subjects as carry two hours of credit.

Eighty-seven courses carrying undergraduate credit and twenty-three carrying graduate credit are offered during the short sessions, including the six, four, and two weeks sessions.

In order to maintain university standards, it is deemed advisable that the academic and professional courses carrying three or more hours of credit be offered during the long session. In addition to the regular staff selected from the university instructors, a distinguished group of visiting instructors has been secured from other institutions.

Chancellor States Advantages Offered At Summer Session

The summer session of the University of Nebraska is of commanding interest to 3,000 students who are registering for a six or nine weeks' term beginning today.

Under our present arrangement, most chairmen of departments and leading professors in the departments are available for instruction during the summer. A number of attractive lecturers will add strength to summer school courses.

The summer session draws many types of students. Teachers from all portions of the state come back to learn new methods and to perfect themselves in some major subject. Many with bachelor's degrees come for graduate study. Several hundred students unable to carry a full load of classwork during the regular school year attend to expedite securing their degrees.

The splendid library and science laboratory facilities which the university affords make summer instruction especially attractive.

E. A. BURNETT,
CHANCELLOR.
