RUSSELL LAYS IMPORTANCE ON RURAL PEOPLE

Noted Irish Economist and Poet Says Cities Take Country's People.

TALKS AT CONVOCATION

Philosopher Declares That Urban Life Causes Degeneration.

George Russell, noted Irish economist, poet, and philosopher addressed an all-university convocation Tuesday morning in the Stuart theater. He was introduced by Chancellor E. A. Burnett. The speech was broadcast over the western network of the National Broadcasting company.

Mr. Russell took as his topic, "The Philosophy of Rural and Community Life."

"It is not the custom in your country to regard poets as economic authorities," said Mr. Russell, "but during the last twenty-five years, I have been in adviser of the Irish farmers, started banks, published and edited agricultural newspapers, and written books, that have been read in practically every county of the world. I am not saying this to glorify myself, but only that you can understand that I have some background for what I will say today."

Pioneer in Co-operation.

The Irish Agricultural Organization society with which Mr. Russell has worked is first the English speaking organization to undertake the task of building up rural co-operation.

Mr. Russell stressed the importance of focusing creative imagination on the problem of rural society. He compared modern methods of transportation with those of the medieval times, when people born in a rural community were unable to migrate to the urban centers.

Foresees Condition.

In view of the progress of the United States Mr. Russell believes that this condition of rural exodus, is more likely to affect this country, than it is the countries of Europe. "Your cities are teeming with vitality, and energy drawn from the country sides of all nations," said Mr. Russell but when the country deteriorates to such an extent that it can no longer supply the city, the city will also deteriorate."

Mr. Russell called attention to the statement of Wheeler McMillan, American economist that 15 percent of population was all that was necessary to pursue agriculture, and even 10 percent of the population, properly educated could supply this country with its agricultural needs.

Prophesies Decline.

"But if your population becomes 90 percent urban your humanity will begin to deteriorate because the cities will have reached a point where efficiency will allow the people to do less work," declared Mr. Russell. Mr. Russell is of the opinion that America needs at least 20 percent of her population in the rural districts.

"Try and build up a rural civilization that will be so pleasant, so prosperous, that the children will not want to leave," advised the speaker.

However, Mr. Russell does not advocate conflict between the rural and urban communities. They are fundamentally one, pointed out the speaker, and organization makes the farmer a better buyer for the city's products.

GREEKS SANCTION GREEN HEADGEAR

Interfraternity Group Passes Resolution Upholding Tradition.

ALPHA THETS AGREE

As a followup to the unofficial action taken last week, the interfraternity council last night officially gave its sanction to freshmen green caps as a university tradition.

The motion stating that the council go on record as favoring the tradition was unanimously accepted after it had been tabled at the previous meeting because of the objection of one fraternity. Alpha Theta Chi, who previously in the year instructed its freshmen not to wear the caps because of apparent lack of enforcement of the rule, last night rescinded its objection because of the unanimity of consent to the tradition by the other fraternities as shown through their council representatives.

Some Discard Caps.

The question of how long the caps are to be worn was brought up. Some of the houses said that their freshmen had thrown away the caps following the victory of the freshman team over the Oklahoma freshmen Saturday. President Fred Graub said that the outcome of the Pittsburgh game would decide whether or not the freshmen would continue to wear the caps.

Announcement was made that Wilbur Walden, an official of the national interfraternity council will speak to all fraternity men on the subject "Fraternity and Its Problems" Thursday, Nov. 26. The talk will probably be given in the Temple theater. All fraternities were urged to send as many men as possible, especially their freshmen.

A method of getting better orchestra rates for parties was discussed by the council. However, most of the fraternities are satisfied with the present prices.

Discuss Scholarship. Methods of raising fraternity scholarship were taken up with a discussion of the advisability of a definite scholastic standard initiation requirement for all men whether or not they have twenty-four hours or more in the university. New scholarship plaques are to be provided by the council this year. A committee for this purpose will be appointed soon.

"Modern warfare is ruled by the pocketbook," said Mrs. Ellery Davis in her talk at Vespers last night. She made an appeal for the municipal power plants instead of the privately owned plants.

Mrs. Davis gave as her reason for studying politics, the fact that she would like to see more people support the office holder who is trying to do right than oppose him.

Mrs. Davis' talk was followed by a piano solo by Mary Jo Ryan. Matias Cuadra, a Filipino student, gave a talk telling what Christianity has done for him. He was dressed in his native costume and explained its features. Cuadra told the story of his life in the Philippines and his coming to America.

CORNHUSKER PHOTOS TO BE TAKEN TODAY

Gammill Says Pictures of Students Must Be in Earlier This Year.

ASKS FOR CO-OPERATION

Taking of first pictures for the junior and senior and fraternity and sorority sections of this year's Cornhusker will start today, according to Kenneth Gammill, editor of the yearbook. The time limit has been set at a much earlier date this year than last year. The photos must be sent to the publishers before the first of the year.

"It is absolutely necessary that we receive co-operation from the student body in this matter," the editor said yesterday. "As our contract states that the pictures must be at the publishing house at a comparatively early date. Any people who do not have their pictures in when the time limit is reached will be denied a place in the Cornhusker. There will be nothing else we can do."

Regular Procedure Followed.

The regular procedure for making appointments will be followed this year. When the juniors and seniors call at Hauck's or Townsend's studios for sittings they will be given a card to fill out which will ask their names, organization affiliations, class and university activities.

In an endeavor to give the largest possible number of students a chance to get their pictures taken, the Cornhusker office has inaugurated a system whereby they will call the members of the student body and assist them in making photographic appointments.

It is hoped, by members of the yearbook staff that students will make their appointments early, for the picture taking will end at an earlier time.

The presidents of fraternities and sororities have been asked to appoint a member of their organization to take charge of the picture appointments. This member is expected to aid in securing the photographs for his or her organization.

BY JACK ERICSON. The race is over! Campus factions have shinned the political tree and the blue shirt political faction has appeared with four plums, each one signifying a class presidency.

More than 2,000 students went to the polls Tuesday to cast the largest fall election vote in the history of campus politics. The same 2,000 campus voters who named the class presidents also balloted for honorary colonel but her identity will not be revealed until the night of the Military ball. Kenneth Gammill, blue shirt candidate won the senior presidency race with 259 votes. Gammill had a majority of two votes, and a plurality of fifty-six votes over Don MacLay, yellow jacket, his nearest opponent, who drew 203 election marks. Stanley Mengler, the nonfraternity nominee obtained fifty-two ballots.

Athletes Win.

The other three class presidencies went to athletes. In the contest for the junior highest office, Steve Hokuf, blue shirt, polled 241 votes and with them the presidency. Coburn Tomson, the yellow jacket representative, offered close opposition, polling 216 votes. The barb faction showed comparative strength when its junior candidate, Glen Burton received 3 ballots.

Chris Mathis, blue shirt, took first honors in the sophomore office competition. His supporters at the polls numbered 243, while his closest rival, Lawrence Ely on the yellow jacket slate, was given 205 votes. Ralph Copenhaver, the barb candidate received a relatively warm support with 46 ballot sheets marked in his favor.

The new freshman president is Bill Weir, blue shirt, whose vote totaled 249. Willard Anderson, freshman nominee for the yellow jacket organization, received 177 votes and Gordon Williams, running under barb colors polled 48 ballots. Don Edwards, listed as an independent candidate, obtained 34 votes without the support of any political faction.

Both the blueshirt and yellow jacket factions showed a gain in ballot strength as compared with the totals recorded at last spring's Student council election, while barb stock took a noticeable drop. The vote, however, was undoubtedly affected by the sorority vote which did not figure in the spring election.

The total blue shirt vote was 992. The yellow jackets obtained 798 ballots, and the barbs counted 205 times at the polls. Last spring the count stood: Blue shirt 686, yellow jacket 583, barb 333.

Commenting on the result of the election Neal S. Goman, president of the yellow jacket political faction, has the following statement to make:

Temple Presents Warlike Scene as Players Present 'Journey's End'; Civic Groups Serve Doughnuts

BY ROSELINE PIZER. Not a trench, not another war, but the decorations in the lobby of the Temple theater that lend atmosphere to "Journey's End," which opened the University Players' season Monday night. It's like a war ought to be with doughnuts and coffee after the first dose of shell fire.

A real machine gun, loaned by the military department, sand bags, colorful bunting, national flags, and the cadet regiment colors transform the Temple into a fit setting for "Journey's End." Guards stationed at the doors and ushers dressed in cadet outfits, lend a realistic touch. Pershing Rifles is the organization in charge of the decoration. A Red Cross booth occupies one corner and doughnuts and coffee were served after the first act in another corner. Miss Mae Pershing, sister of General Pershing will serve on Wednesday night. The Women's Over-Seas League took charge Monday night, the American Red Cross will do so Tuesday, the Knights of Columbus Thursday, the Salvation Army Friday, the Y. M. C. A. at the Saturday matinee, and the American Legion Auxiliary at the last performance Saturday night.
