Dearest Dad: I really don't owe you a letter, but I have something special to tell you about. It's Dad's day.

You know I spoke to you about it before school started and you said you'd be sure to come down for it. Well, November 1 is the big day. We can go to a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce together and see all the other students (?) and their fathers. I just know you'll have a good time.

After the luncheon we can go to the football game. I think Nebraska plays Pittsburgh. All the girls say it will be a wonderful game. We can sit together and have just a marvelous time.

Don't forget, now. It's a week from this Saturday November 1. November 1. November 1. Let it sink in. ALICE.

TO DADS AND MOTHERS

We wish to take this opportunity, through the columns of The Daily Nebraskan, to extend a welcome to all the fathers and mothers who have sons or daughters registered in the University.

Dad's day has been planned for you. Your son or daughter expects you. They will be disappointed if you do not come. They wish to show you the campus and the places where they live and work. Incidentally, they want to show you something about the student life and introduce you to their friends.

The students at the university are proud of their dads and mothers. They have planned to show you a good time. They are in dead earnest when they send you this invitation. Other dads are coming, so let's come along. The Pittsburgh-Nebraska game will be a great game. Better say "yes" and join the crowd, you will be glad you came.

THE CHANCELLOR.

DEAN INVITES DADS

Dear Dads:

It is indeed a pleasure to join with your sons and daughters in extending you an urgent invitation to visit the university Saturday, Nov. 1. In fact I believe you know that you have a standing invitation at the university at any time.

We should like to have the opportunity to acquaint you more fully with the type of work done here. You would enjoy, I am sure, observing your son or daughter about his daily school tasks.

Then, too, many of you would find many objects of interest about the university in the form of the museum, the laboratories of natural and applied sciences, and the libraries.

Many from among you have expressed a desire to meet the instructors who teach your sons and daughters, and we hope that in time you may become acquainted with the splendid men and women who are giving instruction in the university.

Perhaps if you can not meet all of them, you may find time during your visit on Nov. 1 to get acquainted with the favorite instructor of your son or daughter.

In conclusion please know that while you are here Nov. 1 or any other time for that matter, the university's "latch string" is out. If it occurs to you that the university through any of its agencies can make you more comfortable while here, please feel free to command us.

Yours sincerely, T. J. THOMPSON, Dean of Men.

Students Can Trade Tickets Dad's Day.

Selleck Announces It is the sincere wish of the Student Activities office to aid as much as possible in making Dad's day, set for Nov. 1, a real success.

To insure such a success, we are offering students who hold student athletic tickets exchange their tickets for other seats, so that they may be seated with their parents on Dad's day.

Since it is impossible to provide tickets for parents within the student section, it is our desire that students exchange their tickets for others enabling them to sit with their parents if they wish.

(Signed) John K. Selleck, Director.

BAPTISTS TO OBSERVE GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Dr. Walcott Plans Special Sermon; Dr. Stuff Will Address Students.

A special program for Go to Church Sunday, which is being sponsored by the Big Sister board and Interchurch council of the Y. W. C. A., has been planned for students of the Baptist faith at the First Baptist church on Fourteenth and K streets. Next Sunday, Oct. 26, has been named as Go to Church day.

Dr. C. H. Walcott, pastor of First Baptist church, will deliver a sermon for students. Special sections will be reserved for their use and students will be given an opportunity to join the church by affiliation. This will not sever their membership with the student's home church, but makes a stronger tie to the church while he is attending university.

At noon Dr. F. A. Stuff of the department of English will address the special university class on the subject, "Ideals of God." Young People's meeting will be held at 6 p. m. for a social half hour. At 6:30 Mrs. Ralph Gemmill will lead the discussion group.

Students will conduct the church services at 7:30 o'clock. Reports will be given of the Estes park student conference held last summer. Walter Kiener, a university student and a park ranger at Estes park will show lantern slides of various mountain scenes. Special musical numbers will be offered by Prof. Carl Heeden and Naomi Randall.

Second Baptist church at Twenty-eighth and S streets has also extended an invitation through its pastor, Rev. James Macpherson, to university students who may wish to affiliate.

The "Y" requested Mr. Schultz to speak on the elephants in Morrill hall, a subject with which he was conversant, as he has done field work for the museum for the past three years. He secured many of the specimens in the museum.

MUSEUM GETS RARE ELEPHANT SKULL

Bertrand Schultz returned yesterday from North Platte and vicinity with an elephant skull for the collection in Morrill hall. The skull dates from the tertiary period, and was found and donated by Charles Gardner of Bloomington. According to Dr. Barbour, the museum has long sought for a skull of this particular type, which he says is exceedingly rare.

INSTRUCTOR WRITES IN NATURE MAGAZINE

Miss Marjorie Shanafelt of Museum Tells of Maggie Captured Here.

An article entitled "Just Maggie" in the current issue of Nature magazine is from the pen of Miss Marjorie Shanafelt, of the university museum. This is one of a series of fourteen items Miss Shanafelt has promised to write for the periodical.

The story treats of the first appearance on record of magpies flying over Lincoln. Many people, not recognizing the birds, thought them harmful and shot them. The university obtained one which had been wounded, and it is the subject of Miss Shanafelt's writing.

The magpie was maintained and nourished in the museum, where it was a center of interest for many months last winter. When last heard of, it was the pet of a boy to whom Miss Shanafelt had given it.

Lincoln, Nebr. (Somebody swiped the calendar.)

Dear Dad: About that extra money—don't bother. I sold an old suit yesterday, so I'll get by all right.

Say—don't forget about Dad's day. It's Saturday, Nov. 1. That shouldn't be hard to remember, because it's the day you shoot me my allowance.

Well, Dad, I want you to come down for the big affair. All the other guys' dads are around and I want you to meet them and the fellows I play around with. They aren't much to look at, but you got used to me.

And there'll be a real football game that afternoon. Nebraska plays Pittsburgh. It ought to be a darned good game. You've heard about Pittsburgh—that's where they make the smoke.

Just found out that I owe the money I got from the suit, so maybe you better slip me a little. Not much. I obtained one. See you Dad's day, dad!

GEORGE.
