

Bible Drills Huskers for Tilt With Montana State

VARSITY BREAKS UP PASS ATTACK

Defense Appears Stronger Than at Any Time During Season; Visitors Expected to Use Overhead Game in Saturday Gridiron Battle.

MATHIS, ROWLEY, MANLEY STILL ON SICK LIST

Marrow Barks Signals for First String in Scrimmage Last Night; Young, Kreizinger and Frahm in Backfield; Frosh Score Once.

Coach D. X. Bible used two complete teams last night as he sent his Cornhuskers through a drill designed to fit them for their tilt with the Montana State Bobcats Saturday. Freshman gridgers used Montana plays against both of the varsity aggregations.

The varsity had more success in blocking of freshman passes than they have had all season. Montana State has used a passing attack to good effect in past years, and according to reports from that section this year is no exception. Nebraska fans undoubtedly will see a great deal of the aerial game in the tilt Saturday.

Three Regulars on Bench.
Chris Mathis, Rob Manley and Claude Rowley will not be used in the Bobcat game. All three are still nursing injuries received in the Iowa State game last week.

The first team used in the scrimmage last night was composed of Frahm, Young, Kreizinger and Marrow, backs; with Ely, center; Greenberg and Koster, guards; Rhea and Broadstone, tackles; and Hokuf and Prucka, ends. The second team to take the field was made up of Paul Brown, Nelson and Penney backs; McPherson, center; Campbell and Justice, guards; Kroger and Hubert, tackles; and Bokenkroger and Durkee, ends. Stansberry and Perry alternated in the backfield.

Frosh Score Once.
The freshman team was composed of Q. Minick, Blasak, LaBounty, and Traylor, backs; with Mostman, center; Marmon and Justice, guards; Bentley and Blackstone, tackles; and Lunney and Cole, ends.

The varsity showed real scoring power in the practice last night, scoring two touchdowns in the comparatively short time that the scrimmage lasted. A single freshman touchdown was made when Minick intercepted a varsity pass and ran sixty yards for the counter. That was the only time the varsity goal was threatened.

Staab, Nesmith Promoted.
Carlyle Staab, Ansley, and Norris Nesmith, Wagneta, were advanced to the varsity squad from the nubbins last night. Staab is a backfield man, a fast, clever open-field runner. Nesmith, an end, will fit in with Bible's passing attack.

Capt. Lehman will be sent east to scout the Pittsburgh-Notre Dame game at Pittsburgh Saturday. Bill Day will watch the Kansas U-Iowa State game at Lawrence on the same day. Both Pittsburgh and Kansas will be Nebraska opponents in the two weeks following the Montana State game.

OKLAHOMA AGGIES TO MEET BEARS FRIDAY

Washington Team Presents Formidable Threat to Southerners.

STILLWATER, Okl.—(Special)—With 55 points on their side of the book and a zero marked for the opposition, Washington university's Green Bears present a formidable threat to the Oklahoma Aggies in their game Friday night on Lewis field here.

Washington kept its record clear in an easy 14 to 0 win over Westminster college last Saturday at St. Louis. Previously, the Bears had defeated Illinois college, 44 to 0 and tied William Jewell, 0 to 0. A great set of hard running backs and a stonewall defense that Aggie coaches expect to be as stubborn as any they have faced, will be presented by the Bears Friday night.

Led by Sausele, all-Missouri Valley back last year, Washington had everything so much its own way that it was forced to show little, and Roy W. Kenny, Aggie line coach, who scouted the game, was able to catch only fleeting glimpses of the offensive the Aggies expect to encounter this week. In Hornsby, a fine punter and a fierce line-plunger, and Miller, light and scrappy halfback, the Bears boast two ball carriers whom the Aggies must watch constantly, since either is likely to get away for long gains.

In 1926, last time the two teams met, Washington won 6 to 0.

WAUSAU, Wis.—(IP)—After a summer tour of Europe, George K. A. Shields, 75, has returned to commence his 60th year of teaching.

The highest temperature during the past summer season was recorded in Death valley, eastern California, where the thermometer registered 130 degrees one day.

The Benchwarmer

Hand in hand with the discussion of good smoking goes a consideration of the new heating plant. Don't become alarmed as this is not going to be a proposal to have the fair damsels enjoy their cigarettes in the heating plant. It is merely another kind of smoke with a different fault.

For several years Cornhusker football teams were bothered by the smoke which issued from the smokstack of the old heating plant. Huge clouds of it would swoop down upon the gridiron, blotting the player and field from the view of spectators.

Players were choked and blinded, women screamed and little babies were thrown from the top of the stadium. And the worst thing about all these smoke screens was the ability to come at such inopportune times. It was always a safe bet that a smoke cloud would happen along if the score was tied and either team was on the one-foot line.

K. U. GRIDDERS LOOK TO IOWA STATE TILT

Hargiss Giving Men Hard Drills in Preparation For Saturday Game.

LAWRENCE, Kan.—University of Kansas players who saw most service in the K-Aggie game last Saturday were put through signal practice, while the rest of the squad engaged the freshmen in stiff practice as a start for a week of intensive training for the Ames game here next Saturday. A chalk-talk review of the K-Aggie game by Coach Hargiss showed up weaknesses of the team and was the basis of instruction on how better to meet the situations.

Coach Hargiss recognizes the power of the Iowa Cyclones, and is drilling his men with view to meeting the Iowa play. In spite of snow flurries, he is giving the Jayhawkers stiff workouts.

Bausch on Bench.
Jim Bausch, who sustained a slightly wrenched knee in the Manhattan game, was not suited up Monday and may be out of practice the greater part of the week, but it is expected he will be in trim by the end of the week. Other backs came through with only minor bruises and sore muscles.

From Ames comes word that Paul Trauger, backfield man who has been ill, is again in the lineup, much to the relief of the Iowa State fans. The Cyclones are continuing heavy practice and recognize K. U. as one of the hardest games on their schedule.

Coach Noel Workman is uncertain as to his lineup and said it might not be decided until a few hours before the contest. Coach Hargiss usually selects his Jayhawk warriors the day before the game.

Colorado Girl Weds Hindu Leader; Will Make Home in India

DENVER, Colo.—Miss Irene Hall, twenty, coed of the University of Colorado at Boulder, became the bride of Gopal Singh Khalsa, one of the three representatives of the Indian National congress in this country, Tuesday night.

Khalsa has been identified with Mahatma Gandhi and his followers, who compose the congress which Khalsa represents in this country. He met Miss Hall while giving lectures at the university a year ago.

After a honeymoon trip through Europe, the couple will go to India, where Khalsa hopes to open a chain of newspapers, provided the British ban on native press is removed.

Mr. Khalsa has done considerable writing, and while in this country published the Hindustani, a newspaper, in San Francisco.

Iowa State Town Girls Form Own Organized Group

AMES, Ia.—Ames girls at Iowa State college now have an organization of their own through which they can take part in intramural athletics and many other activities from which they have previously been barred because they were not members of a college organization.

The Town Girls council, recently chosen representatives of the town girls, have elected Maxine Heard president and Emily Conklin secretary-treasurer.

This organization will form a nucleus for many activities for 274 Ames girls. Seven hundred girls live in dormitories and more than 200 in sororities.

Under the stadium every day and they should be in shape for a big season.

The year isn't a total failure yet!

GAMMA PHIS WIN IN SPEEDBALL TOURNEY

Defeat Alpha Chi Omega 4-3; Herma Beckman, Alice Buffett Star.

WORKMEN are now hard at work tearing down this abominable smokstack as the old heating plant has gone to the same place as the second story of University hall, wherever that may be.

Spectators at games this year may be reasonably sure of seeing all the game. With the passing of the old smoke stack the campus has lost another landmark which will linger long in the memories of Cornhuskers. Every time anybody thinks of the darn thing he will probably start cursing.

If the smoke belcher had not gone the way of all good smoke stacks it would have been necessary to issue "smoke checks" in the place of rain checks and refund money if people missed over three-fourths of the game.

NEBRASKA'S football team is just as good as the men composing that team think they are. If the squad could become infused with the spirit of "unbeatableness" it would be a long, hard afternoon for any team facing Nebraska. The thing which seems to be troubling the coaching staff at the present time is the belief of the men that they are only a mediocre team.

Any team that takes the field with a belief that it is not so good and the other team has a good chance of walloping it is liable to take a licking. But the team that thinks it is unbeatable and refuses to be licked will make the going tough for any opponent.

The Husker line functioned like a million dollars against the Iowa team. The backfield performed smoothly and showed a lot of promise. The only thing that was weak was the pass defense.

NOW, if any team has a strong line, a dependable backfield and a good defense, both against passes and runs, it is a tough combination to beat.

Nebraska has all of these things. True, the pass defense did slip a little against Ames and the play against Oklahoma was not what it should have been.

Let's forget the past and look towards the future. We have Pittsburgh, Kansas, Missouri, Montana and Kansas Aggies all left on the schedule and the team has only met with one defeat in three starts. All this was accomplished with a comparatively green team.

It takes time to develop football teams as any student of football will tell you. Starting with a team which did not quite show the promise of past Husker teams, Coach Bible has developed a team which has tremendous possibilities.

Bible is waiting for the team to "explode" and when this occurs, look out!

OTHER Cornhusker teams and coaches are already planning their campaigns.

Coach Charley Black and his basket tossers are all set for a big season and have a chance to bring a Big Six championship home with them.

Morrise Fisher, Steve Hokuf, Don Maclay and others will be back to help the cause along.

Coach Schulte has his track men running around in circles un-

HUSKERS CAST EYES TOWARD BASKETBALL

Five Veterans Back for Winter Campaign; Will Play On West Coast.

FIRST PRACTICE SOON

By Cliff F. Sandahl

With the football season almost half over, University of Nebraska students are now casting their eyes toward the possibilities of the 1930-31 basketball term, prospects of which look bright at this time.

Although the first practice period will not take place yet for a couple of weeks, Coach Charley Black is already beginning to gather in his old charges in order "to look them over."

When the roll is called at the opening practice at least five lettermen as well as a sprinkling of good reserves are expected to respond. All are enrolled in the university at present and will be eligible to play—at least as far as scholastic requirements go.

The five veterans compose a team in its entirety. They are Don Maclay, Auburn, center; Morrise Fisher, Lincoln, center; Seldon Davey, Lincoln, forwards; Cliff Jensen, Omaha, and Steve Hokuf, Crete, guards.

The feature of the forthcoming season will be a jaunt to the Pacific coast, where the Scarlet and Cream cagers will battle with the University of Washington tossers in a three day series. These games will take place during the Christmas holidays.

GOOD ROADS MEN ARE ENTERTAINED BY IOWA COLLEGE

OMES, Ia.—Ninety-six men, interested in good roads, representing twenty-four countries, were guests of Iowa State college, Ames business men and the state highway commission at a luncheon in Memorial Union building on the college campus here Tuesday noon.

The delegation was made up of men who attended the International Good Roads congress in Washington, D. C. about two weeks ago and who are now on a tour of the United States previous to returning home. A total of about 200 persons attended the luncheon. Dean Anson Marston, of the engineering division, acting for President R. M. Hughes, welcomed the visitors.

Before leaving for Des Moines, from where they will go to Columbia, Mo., the delegates visited the highway commission shops in Ames.
