

SOCIETY

A variety of social events will enliven the week's activities. Greek organizations are vying with each other in staging numerous and different social functions, ranging from early morning breakfasts to evening parties. House parties planned by pledges as well as activities will take up the evening hours while teas and dinners will break up the schedule and give an added zest to the formal dances.

Theta Sigma Phi Plans Dutch Treat Dinner

A dutch treat dinner will be given by members of Theta Sigma Phi, women's professional journalistic sorority, Thursday evening at the University club. Places will be arranged for twenty. A program is being planned for the dinner which will be served at 7 o'clock.

Alpha Sigma Phi Give Chanticleer Breakfast

Alpha Sigma Phi will give a chanticleer breakfast dance for members of the fraternity and their guests from 5:30 until 8 o'clock on Saturday morning. The chaperons for the party will be Miss Coletta Aitken, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ramsay, and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard F. Oakes.

Thetas And Phi Psi's Breakfast Together

Nearly sixty Thetas and Phi Psi's had a waffle breakfast together at the Phi Psi house Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. The tables were decorated with small Christmas trees and red candles. After breakfast, cards and dancing entertained until noon.

Pledges Of Sigma Alpha Mu To Entertain Activities

A huge pledge pin of Sigma Alpha Mu displaying the scarlet and cream as well as the fraternity colors, purple and white, will be a feature decoration at a pledge party to be given for the active members at the chapter house Saturday evening. Small birch paddles cleverly engraved with the name of each guest will be distributed as favors during the evening.

Delta Sigma Phi Gives Annual Sisters' Dinner

Delta Sigma Phi held its annual sisters' dinner Sunday afternoon at the chapter house. Those sisters present were Misses Dorthea Manne, Margaret Danielson, Zelma Bloom, Mable Rosse, Helen Free-

All Right for Girls.

"Dormitories may be all right for girls," declares Arthur Kreczek, an engineering college junior from Omaha, "but I believe men are perfectly able to take care of themselves. I don't want my life to be regulated by a set of rules," he said.

William Taylor, Hebron, a senior in the school of journalism stated that he believed the plan was a good one, "but I wouldn't want to live in a dormitory myself," he said. Walter Kollmorgen, a senior in the college of arts and science from West Point opposed the plan because it would deprive bars of their present state of freedom.

Wouldn't Work Here.

Arthur Murray of Bird City, Kas., a junior in the school of journalism stated that he did not believe the dormitory plan would work at Nebraska, although it was successful at many smaller schools.

Robert McVicker, a freshman in the college of pharmacy, and Glen Morris, a first year student in the arts and science college, both of Cozad, are opposed to the plan because of the regulations which it would entail. They also stated that they were satisfied with present conditions.

Herbert Ronin, a junior in the arts and science college from Aurora, is very much opposed to dormitory building. "I am decidedly against any measure," he stated, "which would curb my present liberty of doing whatever I please, when I please."

Ag Men Join Opposition.

Dean Eckhoff, '31, Archer; Leonard and Frederic Peterson, both freshmen; Walter and Steven Holcomb, also freshmen, and Keene Ludden '31 of Surprise, all of whom are registered in the college of agriculture stated that they opposed dormitories. They gave for their reasons the belief that the plan would lead to strict regulation of university men, depriving them of their present state of freedom, that they did not think they would get rooms any cheaper, that the present housing facilities were sufficient to care for all stu-

LEWIS SWINGLER, A YOUTH FROM TULSA, MAKES WAY THROUGH SCHOOL

teacher, who spent the early years of his life in slavery wanted Swingler to attend the Fisk and Walden school for negroes in Nashville, Tenn. He himself was a graduate of Fisk. Oklahoma, also, maintains a state college for negroes at Langston, where about 2,000 students are enrolled. (Negroes are not permitted to attend the University of Oklahoma.)

When asked why he chose to come to Nebraska, Swingler replied that he did not attend any of the negro colleges because of the inferior facilities which they offered. He pointed out that only 2 per cent of the money appropriated for educational purposes in Oklahoma goes to the support of negro schools. He declared that he had experienced very little racial discrimination at Nebraska and had been treated fairly by all members of the university faculty.

Finishes Course in June.

Swingler has not taken full time work in the university on account of his part time employment and consequently five years were required to complete the course of study which ordinarily takes but four. He will be graduated in June. Swingler is president of Alpha Phi Alpha, one of the negro fraternities on the campus and chairman of the racial commission of the Y. M. C. A. He is active in Y. M. C. A. work.

Since early youth he has always been interested in church work and during three years of his high school career he was superintendent of the Sunday school of the negro Baptist church of Tulsa. At present he is president of the B. Y. P. U. of the Mount Zion Baptist church in Lincoln. Since he has to work Sunday mornings he is unable to attend Sunday school and morning worship.

Swingler is a correspondent for the Kansas City Call, a negro weekly. The field of journalism offers broad opportunities to negro journalists, according to Swingler. At present there are no negro dailies but there are prospects of founding one in cities containing large negro populations, such as Chicago, Detroit, and Atlanta.

Changed Course.

When he first entered college Swingler intended to study law, but when he saw the many opportunities which the journalistic field offered he changed his course. However, he has not given up his desire to study law and expects to enroll in the law college after he has spent several years at newspaper work and saved some money to finance his course.

After four years of working his way through school, Swingler says that he has no regrets. He doubts that a white person entering school under the same handicaps which he did would have had an easier time. "I realize," he said, "that shining shoes is the lowest, most menial type of work one could engage in, but one should not look with asstance upon any job which enables him to earn a living and at the same time finance his education."

GILMAN WRITES OF CUSTOMS OF NEW ZEALAND PEOPLE

Gilman remarks that the citizens are very haughty to Americans. "No one has a word for you. They are stiff, conservative. They object to the fact that American products flood the market and that the United States tariff excludes their own commodities. They are starting a campaign: Buy New Zealand and British made goods."

Gilman eventually left Wellington and went to Lyttleton on the south island, where he first stayed at the Y. M. C. A. and finally moved to the place from which he wrote the letter. The district is very peaceful and reminds one of stories of dreamy English villages. The cost of living is very cheap. At noon, the entire population journeys to the river bank to lunch. Everyone rides bicycles.

Visits Americans.

Gilman called on the Rawletts, the family of an American electrical engineer who has lived out there for about twenty-five years. There he gained a good example of life at home. Tea was very much in evidence as a beverage. The New Zealanders seemed to be of the opinion that Americans spend their time fighting Mexican, galloping horses around the plains and running beer. The people are all very fond of England, and though many have never been there and are about as far from it as the Y. M. C. A. and finally moved to the place from which he wrote the letter.

ROD LA ROQUE PRAISES UNIVERSITY TRAINING FOR PERSONS WHO DESIRE TO GO ON STAGE OR SCREEN

after the tour of the United States they would spend the summer in London for a few months. "Cherries Are Ripe" Following the stage production it is probable that they will make a talkie of it and average the sentiment of their some nine hundred audiences in producing it, he said. He praised highly the character work of George K. Arliss, who he declared followed the same plan. He lamented the apparent stupidity of some of the undesirable material things which accompany stardom, saying that his chief joy and reward came in the pleasure of his work.

In a jovial manner he recalled his first appearance on the stage at the age of seven in the old Lyceum theater in Duluth where he played with Willard Mack. As the prompter tapped on the door calling a five minute warning, Mr. LaRoque closed his visit, declaring that of all the pictures he had made he most enjoyed working in the "Giglio," "Resurrection" and the "Ten Commandments."

BIG SIX ADOPTS RULE FORBIDDING FRESHMEN GAMES

After voting permission for each Big Six team to play nine games next fall in order that Kansas might be given a place on the schedule, the faculty representatives of the Big Six decided to abolish all extramural freshman competition. A further proposal that the conference follow the example of the Big Ten in placing "B" teams in the field was deferred until the next meeting at Norman, Oklahoma in March. The committee further decided that no Big Six school shall schedule games with institutions which have been

DELAWARE U OFFERS FOREIGN STUDY PLAN

Course Provides Students May Spend Year in French Schools.

Delaware foreign study bureau, in a communication to Dean J. E. LeRossignol's office recently, announced the plans of its operation for the present academic year. The plan has been in operation for several years, but a few changes have been instigated.

The plan is forwarded through the financial aid of the service citizens of Delaware. It was instigated because of the recognized need of the service of citizens of the United States who are thoroughly versed in foreign social, economics and political conditions. Such a need is becoming more urgent, according to the announcement, because of the ever growing foreign relations of the United States.

Good Standing Required.

Undergraduate students in good standing from any university in the United States which is recognized in the list of the Association of American Universities are eligible. It was announced that students in their junior year were preferred as candidates for the year of study in France.

The year of study is accomplished under strict supervision. The time consumed is approximately one calendar year, starting on July 1. A twelve week summer session begins at the University of Nancy during the latter part of July. The session is spent in the study of rhematics, grammar, and the French language in general.

Study in Paris.

Following the summer session in October, comes the regular term of eight months. This term is spent at the Universite de Paris and the Ecole Libre des Sciences Politiques where a varied program of studies, including literature, history, geography, philosophy, economics and other studies are offered the foreign student. The regular form of instruction is followed. Formal lectures are given which are supplemented with outside reading and informal discussion groups.

The foreign study opportunities are open to both men and women students. The students live in private French homes, and thereby are subjected to a typical French atmosphere. Women students are required to comply with the strict rules made necessary by the more strict rules of convention which are in vogue in France.

Must Speak French.

Applicants must know the French language, must have an aptitude for foreign languages, and must be acquainted with a reasonable number of French books. Such students must have a strong character, excellent scholarship, pleasing personality, and must be fit to represent his college and his nation favorably. The student must pledge himself to consistently use the French language during his whole year in France, and must agree to accept the supervision and authority of the Delaware foreign study bureau in France.

Application blanks for admission may be obtained from the sec-

New Type of Deer Is Prepared for Museum

Paul McGrew has just finished a panel mounting of a new type of fossil deer found by himself and the museum field party south of Valentine last summer. This deer is new to the experts, and has peculiar flat horns over its eyes. It is smaller than an ordinary goat. It will be placed on exhibit as a part of the collection of Hector Maiben, who has been a donor to the Morrill hall museum.

IOWA MILITARY COST IS $200,000 A YEAR

IOWA CITY, Ia.—More than $200,000 is spent every year in military training in the University of Iowa and Iowa State college, the Iowa committee on militarism reported Dec. 2. The committee also reported that 2,500 Iowa college students are taking compulsory military drill three times a week under the instruction of forty-four regular army officers and enlisted men.

Since the defense act of the state does not require compulsory military training, the committee advocates that it be made optional, letting those interested take the course for credit, but not requiring it for graduation as is done under the present system. The objections given by the committee are that it is of no physical value, gives little training that would be of value in time of war, instills a militaristic attitude into the minds of some of the youths required to take it, and leads them to depend upon the military method of settling disputes.

Committee On Militarism Advocates That Drill Be Made Optional.

University Prints "Primer of Facts" The University of Nebraska has published a "Primer of Facts" to be distributed to Nebraska taxpayers telling of the organization of the university, student enrollment, finance, faculty, athletics, student life and buildings. It explains what the university costs the individual taxpayer and discusses some of the needs of the schools.
