

MORRIE FISHER LIKELY OUT OF HUSKER LINEUP

Hole Left by Veteran May Cause Trouble in First Game.

GUARD POSITION EMPTY

Coyotes Have Veteran Club To Oppose Blackmen in Early Tilt.

The Cornhusker basketball team will probably be minus the services of Morris Fisher, flashy forward, when it opens the 1930-31 season this week end against the University of South Dakota at Vermillion. Scholastic difficulty will keep Fisher out of the contest although the veteran forward is expected to remove the barrier in time to compete in the game with Pittsburgh, Dec. 19.

Davey will probably start at one of the forward posts while the man getting the call at the other position will remain in doubt until Fisher succeeds in removing his ineptness. Phipps, Whitman and Davison are forwards from whom Charley Black will have to choose his substitute in this case.

Maclay is center. Don Maclay, high scorer in the Big Six last year, is almost certain to get the call at center. The guard positions are still somewhat of a riddle with Hukuf the only veteran available. Cox, Stipsky and Morley are the other men who will be given consideration in selecting the first string lineup.

Coach Charley Black has had two varsity teams running through practice the last two weeks in an attempt to develop a working combination. At the present time no definite selections have been made and several men are fighting it out to fill the individual posts.

Up at Vermillion, Coach "Rube" Roy Hoy, professes to be undecided about the starting lineup which opposes Nebraska Saturday night. The Coyotes have an all veteran quintet and will probably start this lineup.

Stewart at center, Adkins and Root, forwards; Crakes and Erickson, guards, were all regulars on the South Dakota team which won the North Central conference championship last year.

VETERINARY COURSE REQUIREMENT RAISED

Iowa State Demands Student Have Year of Previous College Training.

AMES, Iowa.—The veterinary school at Iowa State college Wednesday became the first college of its kind to require of students a year of college training before they are admitted into the professional veterinary course.

The state board of agriculture, meeting here, approved the policy on the recommendation of Dr. C. H. Stange, dean of the veterinary division. Under the new plan five years will be required for graduation.

It will be possible for students of veterinary medicine, by taking six years of work to secure both a bachelor of science degree and a doctor of veterinary medicine degree, the first after four years and the second after six years.

About half of the final year of the veterinary course will be kept free of prescribed studies so that students can select particular branches of the profession for special study.

J. C. Lewis, president of the state federation of labor, appeared before the board and urged that the state institutions do as much building this winter as they can to aid the unemployment situation. He also urged that they use Iowa labor and maintain union wages.

NEBRASKA CHARITY PLANS ANNOUNCED

Idea of Care for Needy Is Paralleled on Other Campuses.

Plans of the Interfraternity council for a Christmas party for the Lincoln newsboys and announcements by eighteen fraternities that they will hold Christmas parties for needy children of Lincoln next week are parallels of charity plans in other schools to help alleviate the hardship of the present depression during the coming winter.

Proceeds of the opening game of the Butler university basketball season will go to charity, it has been announced. Butler meets the University of Cincinnati in the Butler field house Friday night with the gate receipts going to a fund to provide clothes for needy school children.

At the University of Washington proceeds of an intramural basketball game will go to charity. A ticket sales campaign over the campus is being conducted to increase the gate—even the players and referee will have to pay! The charity game at Washington is sponsored by the University of Washington Daily.

The Benchwarmer by Gary Craig

MEMBERS of the Big Ten are not at all worried about the future of football as played in their conference. With the wholesale house cleaning which took place last year, resulting in the suspension of several Iowa athletes, the conference members feel they did away with all of the evils present at the time.

One of the members expressed the sentiment of the Big Ten in regard to football when he said: "It is easier to visualize the so-called evils of football after a losing season."

THE BIG SIX, a comparatively new conference, has just emerged from such a "clean up" as the Big Ten carried on. The excitement culminated in the expulsion of Big Jim Bausch of Kansas from Big Six athletic circles.

Now that Bausch is ineligible and will no longer compete in conference sports, many fans are going to miss the thrill they once received from watching this athlete in action.

Bausch is a wonderful athlete. Football, basketball and track all furnishing him an opportunity to be a star. Now that he is gone, many are lamenting the fact that that no more will they see this Jayhawk star in action.

On the basketball floor he was the same exceptional athlete, and in football he was a constant threat to Nebraska's success. So long, Bausch, you are a wonderful athlete.

LOUIS Dunkak, a former student of the University of Nebraska who left school and entered the prize fighting game, suffered an unexpected setback Tuesday night when he was flattened in the early rounds of a scheduled ten-round bout.

Dunkak has been making phenomenal strides forward in the fighting game since he left the University. His defeat may bother him quite a bit.

Although Nebraska does not boast a boxing team, Dunkak worked out most of the time while he was in school and won the intramural, heavyweight boxing championship. He also worked out for track, although never representing the school.

TUFFY Griffith, one of the contenders for the heavyweight championship of the world, used to play football for a Nebraska high school. The writer of this column saw Tuffy in one game when he was playing end for the Pender high school team in a game with Tekamah high school.

Tuffy went down under a punt but was injured when he made the tackle. His big brother, Bus Griffith who was playing on the same team, came storming down the field yelling "Who hurt my kid brother?" The big brother was quite a fighter so nobody confessed.

While in high school, Tuffy Griffith was one of the smallest members of the Pender team, although he more than made up for his lack of size. He had more fighting spirit than a bantam rooster and few gains were made around his end.

THE FAMOUS Four Horsemen of Notre Dame will swing into action again this week end when an all-star Notre Dame team meets the New York Giants at New York, Sunday, in a charity game.

It was while these Four Horsemen were members of Coach Knute Rockne's squad that Nebraska administered two successive defeats to them, 1922 and 1923—a feat never duplicated by any other football team.

In such a year as the Nebraska football team has just gone through, it helps our pride to point to Notre Dame and say, "Oh, well, we licked 'em twice in a row and that's more than any other team has ever done."

ALIMONY DEBATE PLANNED AT RENO BY COED TALKERS

RENO, Nev.—Feminine debaters of the University of Nevada have issued a challenge to the coeds of the University of Oregon to a forensic contest on a question dealing with alimony. The debate will take place in Reno, thus carrying the banner into enemy territory.

One of Reno's largest theaters has been hired for the occasion, in order to accommodate the throng of divorcees who are always ready to hear any discussion on alimony.

COUSINS HONORED AT TEA; TO TALK AT CONVOCATION

he sensed in it." After reading "Dust" by A. E. Dr. Cousins closed his discussion of the poet.

AE Was Painter.

AE never learned to draw, according to the speaker, but he knew how to paint. In contrast with this he pointed that Yeats was a fine drawer of mystic things.

The speaker cited the works of Charles Clarence Langdon, who wrote translations from old Irish; Sir Samuel Ferguson, who has many fine longer works, and Yeats' criticism of his own work, "To Ireland In Modern Times."

Younger poets were integral to the older group of Irish poets, according to Dr. Cousins. They break away in James Stevens, according to Dr. Cousins. Various group to the younger men met in various places in Dublin to talk among themselves. Some met in the lodge of AE to hear him talk of various truths. One artist realizing that all of them did not understand what he was revealing, put his vision of the group into poetry. He was James Starky, whose pen name was Chamus O'Sullivan.

Interpreted Country Life.

Chamus McCathneal took the field of interpreting country life of the Irish people. Dr. Cousins told of the advent and fall of the Irish drama and his part in restoring it.

According to the speaker, James Stephens entered the literary group of Ireland as a greater genius in their midst. "He lives as one who could silence AE, that is AE could not speak until he was through," Dr. Cousins said.

Climaxing the program Dr. Cousins read an original work, a transcription of what an old Irish lady had said to Dr. and Mrs. Cousins at one time. It was followed by a poem that he wrote while living in Lancashire. The setting was laid in a cornfield where Dr. and Mrs. Cousins saw a little ragmuffin perched on the edge of a gate blowing soap bubbles one summer afternoon. According to Dr. Cousins, his wife said, "That is God making worlds," giving to the writer the theme for a work.

Will Address Students.

Dr. James H. Cousins, Irish poet and educator who arrived in Lincoln this morning, will address a University of Nebraska convocation on "Education for Liberation" at the Temple theater at 11 o'clock this morning.

The Faculty Men's club of the university gave a special dinner for Dr. Cousins at the University club last night. An informal talk by Dr. Cousins was on the program.

A leader in the movement to re-establish Irish culture in his homeland and an educator of note who has spent a number of years teaching and supervising schools in India, Dr. Cousins is regarded as one of the three foremost men in the world's literary life today. He is making a winter tour of leading American universities.

Townsppeople as well as the university students are invited to the convocation this morning, according to Prof. H. Grummann, chairman of the convocations committee who will introduce Dr. Cousins.

Monk in the House of Lords

Among the picturesque figures in the House of Lords, at the opening of the present English parliament is the bishop of Truro, who is a member of a religious order and wears the leather belt of a monk. Dr. Frere was the superior of the community of the resurrection of Mirfield in Yorkshire for seventeen years.

CYCLONE WRESTLERS START HEAVY DRILLS

75 Seek Places On Squad; Only Three Veterans Back This Year.

AMES, Ia.—Although the first scheduled wrestling meet for Coach Hugo Otopalik's Cyclone grapplers is still more than a month distant, a strenuous training campaign is being conducted by more than seventy-five wrestlers who are on the varsity squad. A tournament, with several entries in each weight, is now in progress to determine the probable representatives in each division.

There are only three veterans, Williams, Cole and Captain Juhl, on the Iowa State squad and a hard schedule faces the Cyclone team. Every conference team, with the possible exception of Kansas, is represented by a team of veterans, and the three eastern schools, Rochester, Syracuse and West Point, which the Cyclones will meet on an eastern trip late in January, usually have strong teams. In the Big Six conference, Kansas State presents a well rounded team with two conference champions and a string of other competent grapplers. Members of the K-aggie team hold victories over the three Iowa State veterans.

Anderson Is Judge.

The show will be judged by B. M. Anderson of Kansas City, secretary of the Hereford Record association and former faculty member of the University of Missouri, instead of W. J. Kennedy of St. Joseph as was formerly announced, unforeseen conditions making it impossible for the latter to attend.

The coed showing contest will present eight entries in a class who will compete for the title of champion coed showman by showing a class of baby beavers from the college herds.

The men contestants will compete in the showing of two classes of sheep, two of swine, two of cattle, one of horses and one of dairy cattle, and the winners of each class will again appear in the grand championship class which will climax the evening's events.

The winner of the grand championship will be presented with the Ak-Sar-Ben trophy as a permanent gift from the management of the Ak-Sar-Ben of Omaha.

Special Events Planned.

In addition to the regular classes for competitive showmanship, several special events are planned, including an exhibition class from the college herds, a comedy showing contest featuring a Scotch Highland steer and other animals of unusual nature, and other short features of comic and musical nature.

Arrangements for the Ak-Sar-Ben ball, which will move the center of entertainment from the building pavilion to the activities building at 9 o'clock are complete, and it is expected to be an
