FILLEY GIVES TALK BEFORE POULTRYMEN

Professor Lectures About Marketing at Meeting Thursday.

Prof. E. C. Filley, head of the agricultural college rural economics department, was principal speaker at the Thursday morning marketing program before the poultrymen at organized agriculture.

He said, "Efficient marketing of any product should give extra service at the same cost, or as much service at the same cost as any competitive system of marketing."

"Assembling, grading and standardizing, packaging, processing, transporting, storing, financing, and distributing were listed as the successive steps in successfully marketing eggs."

"In order to get trade, common grocers are willing to handle eggs at little or no profit, and as a result they get about what they pay for and pay for about what they get," he declared.

"Somebody along the line between the producer and the consumer takes care of most of the steps of efficient marketing as well as possible and the spread between farm and consumer prices for eggs is generally a wide one. Co-operatives that have been successful have been able to do most of the marketing work for their producer members. These co-operatives have not attempted to the price on eggs. They have rendered a service and saved producers some of the usual profits taken by the private concerns that make it a business to handle eggs. In any case, the big problem is to give the consumer the kind of eggs he wants, when and where he wants them."

FORUM SECURES PAGE FOR NEXT SPEAKER

Famous Journalist Will Be Lecturer at Meeting Wednesday.

AUTHOR OF MANY BOOKS

World Forum has secured a speaker for its meeting next Wednesday, Kirby Page, famous author, editor and journalist. Mr. Page is editor of the "World Tomorrow," a pacifist publication, and is the author of numerous books and pamphlets.

In 1929 and 1930 Mr. Page made a leisurely tour of the world, stopping several months to study and write on conditions in England, on the continent, in Russia and in Japan and India. In India, Mr. Page was the personal guest of Mahatma Gandhi at his ashram for three days and was given other opportunities for intimate study of the political situation there.

CHICAGO, Ill. Knowledge of the amount of time needed for the necessary facts to pass examinations for a degree will be something which students at the University of Chicago must determine for themselves, effective next autumn.

Dean Chauncey E. Boucher, in announcing the new plan, said its aim is to set such a level that the average student can obtain the bachelor's degree in four years, the superior student in less time.

"It is our aim and anticipation," he added, "that the average student will not spend any longer time than formerly in getting an education, but that he will get much more of an education in the same time. The time required for the superior student to obtain an education and to qualify for degrees will be reduced in exact conformity with his superiority."

With the assistance and counsel of faculty advisers, the freshman entering college will be allowed to decide for himself what his curriculum shall be, according to the new plan. When the student and the adviser agree that the student is prepared, he may present himself for examination to graduate.

Engagement in extra-curricular activities will be left entirely to the individual student. The same tuition rates as are now in effect will be charged, unless it is found that shorting the course decreases the university's revenue.

A bill providing for the organization of junior college districts in the state of Nebraska was introduced before the Thursday morning session of the legislature by Senator P. P. Scott of McCook. The town of McCook has been supporting a junior normal.

The bill provides that a junior college district may be organized in any district having a total average attendance of 200 or more pupils in high schools and having an assessed valuation of $5,000,000 or more. According to the bill, when 500 electors in the proposed district petition to the county superintendent and a majority of the board of education of the district, approved by the state superintendent, the subject of forming the district shall be submitted to a vote of the proposed district, on twenty days' notice, for a special election. Expense of the election is to be paid by the school district.

The school board of the district is to serve as board for the junior college district.

The state superintendent may suspend a district when the number of pupils in the junior college falls below forty. A two year course may be maintained by the junior college district.

LARGE CROWD SEES BRYAN INAUGURATED

New Governor Has Fifteen Legislative Days to Prepare Budget.

GIVES ONLY MAIN IDEAS

Formal beginnings in state legislative and administrative procedure were made yesterday when Governor Charles W. Bryan was formally inaugurated before a joint session of the senate and the house. Galleries of the house chambers were crowded long before the hour of meeting and a packed gallery witnessed the ceremonies while many waited outside in an effort to gain an entrance.

Bryan was sworn in by Judge W. H. Thompson of the supreme court. After the inauguration Governor Weaver made his farewell message to the legislature and Governor Bryan listed his recommendations and policies. Bryan has fifteen legislative days in which to prepare his budget and he made no mention of the document in his message other than to state his main ideas.

Business in both sections of the legislature was postponed until Monday despite some effort in the senate to keep that body in session today. Standing committees in the senate will not be named before Monday, according to Chairman C. L. Jones of the committee on committees. Escort committees and notification committees were named.

An ideal day brought out a tremendous crowd and spectators packed the galleries. Many people were crowded out of hearing distance of the proceedings. The two executives, A. J. Weaver, outgoing, and C. W. Bryan, governor-elect, entered the chamber at 1:25 o'clock and immediately Governor Weaver was introduced and launched upon his farewell address.

Bryan appeared to be in a jovial mood. "I feel thankful on behalf of democracy," he said, "for the beneficently mild weather which we have had for some time. Many democrats have been out in the open for a long time. Without this mild weather they would have to buy overcoats."

Coeds May Show Skill in Basement of Andrews Next Week.

TEN TO MAKE UP TEAM

Tryouts for the girls' rifle team will begin next week in the basement of Andrews hall, it was announced at an intramural meeting held Wednesday noon.

It was said that there were new rules and strict requirements which would be enforced during the coming season. Any girl in the university interested in rifle marksmanship may try out. An hour of instruction will be required for each girl regardless of whether she has shot before or not; also an hour of practice shooting and the following week an hour of continued practice and record target shooting.

Ten Highest for Team. The ten girls shooting the highest scores will compose the varsity team. Scholastic eligibility will be considered according to rules for all varsity teams.

Credit will not be given for rifle as it was last year. Also twenty-five points will be given to each sorority and organized group for every member who gets a place on the varsity team.

Intercollegiate Matches. Immediately following the tryouts the varsity team will start shooting intercollegiate matches with girls' rifle teams from other universities. Last year the team competed with the University of South Dakota, University of Maryland, University of Washington and teams from various other schools.

Any girl who wishes to try out has been asked to sign in Grant Memorial hall before Monday morning when tryouts begin.

K. U. PROF TELLS OF SCHOOL'S EARLY DAYS

Beer Garden, Race Track Occupied What Is New Campus.

LAWRENCE, Kans. Mr. Orfield was not always the chaste home of learning that she is now," says Prof. E. F. Stimpson, who has lived in Lawrence since '72. Mr. Stimpson, now assistant professor of physics at Kansas University, and state inspector of weights and measures, remembers that when he was a boy there was a race track in the field back of the power plant, and a beer garden at the corner of Tennessee and Seventeenth streets.

"When my father, Prof. Fred E. Stimpson, brought the family here, there was not a house in the whole district south of the Hill," Mr. Stimpson recalls. "The nearest residence was Prof. A. T. Walker's house, which then belonged to Ben Akers, the owner and promoter of the race track. Akers kept a large racing stable, and managed at least one famous horse."

"The track began about where Sixteenth street now is. It was a mile long and had red brick buildings and barns at one end. The racing was a very popular sport. The onlookers, who often stood on the side of the Hill, were not supposed to bet, but of course they did."

"The University, which had just been moved over from old North hall, then occupied Fraser," Prof. Stimpson recalls. "My father, who taught at K. U. only two (Continued on Page 3.)"

WILSON PREDICTS USUAL PROGRESS OF SOIL TILLERS

Economist Tells Farmers They Will Forge Ahead Steadily as Before.

CLOSE WEEK'S PROGRAM

Dr. Rose, Marshall Are Other Speakers at Final Ag Meet.

American farmers will continue to progress as steadily in the future as they have in the past. That is the prophecy which M. L. Wilson, of Bozeman, Mont., offered to farmers gathered at the college of agriculture yesterday for the final mass meeting during Organized Agriculture week.

"I have a great deal of confidence in that," Wilson said in emphasis of his prediction. The speaker is head of the department of rural economics at the University of Montana.

Other Speakers. Dr. Mary Swartz Rose, of Columbia university, authority on home economic problems and Hon. Duncan Marshall of Toronto, Canada, former minister of agriculture in the Dominion of Canada, were other speakers at the meeting which concluded the week's program at the college.

M. L. Wilson was speaking of large scale farming in Russia and the effects Russia's five year program of industrial development will have upon the United States and world markets. The Montana economist has spent many months in Russia by invitation of the soviet regime. His job was to put Russian large scale farming on an economic basis, making a study of the entire situation.

"I think farmers here are tremendously interested in European conditions," Wilson announced. "Russia, during her five year program will throw tremendous amounts of grain upon the markets of the world. It is more natural for European countries to buy from Russia than from the United States. That will have much to do with this country."

Russia Overpopulated. "Russia is overpopulated," the speaker continued as he began to present a new light on the matter. (Continued on Page 3.)
