Echoes of Y. M. Y. W. Conference at Estes Park Heard in Campus Opinions

Echoes of last summer's Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. conference at Estes Park were heard this week when three students who attended were interviewed concerning their experiences while there.

The conference is held each year in Colorado soon after school closes to gather together students from the Rocky Mountain region for the purpose of discussing campus problems.

Meredith Nelson expresses his views of Estes thus:

"The social meaning of religion was somewhat new to me, and I think it is quite new to religion itself. Estes awakened me to the fact that religion is vitally concerned with great aspects of individual and social life which we ordinarily accept complacently divorced from our ideals."

The conference has extended the range of my thinking, and thereby given me a clue to the meaning of my own life."

What Estes has meant to Lucile Ledwith who has spent two summers there is told in these words: "Estes has opened up for me whole new areas of life that I had never wanted to explore before. And it has given me a clear vision of how these great fields of life function when they are at their best. Besides this, Estes has given me a set of ideals and a philosophy of living that is helping me to practise those ideals and thus become a better citizen of the world."

And, above all, Estes has given me many true and lasting friendships."

"The contacts with the great personal ties which one finds at Estes has been a profound stimulus to my mind."

Ruth Schill said when questioned as to what Estes had meant to her: "Ten days in the mountains with new ideas to meditate upon is hard to beat."

Out of the five hundred who attended Estes last year between fifty and sixty were from the University of Nebraska. It is considered likely that there will be about that many this year.

ruling passed in 1923 has made military drill noncompulsory in many states.

That professional militarists and manufacturers of war materials were responsible for a great deal of the war propaganda now being published, was one of Mrs. Park's contentions.

It is the hope of the Women's Peace union that a constitutional amendment will eventually be passed forbidding the United States "to declare, engage in, or carry on war."

OKLAHOMA AGGIE COACH PICKS 16 FOR MAT MATCH

STILLWATER, Okla.—After four days of challenge competition, involving a score of bouts, Coach E. C. Gallagher has chosen his Oklahoma A. and M. college lineups for the double-header wrestling program which will open the 1931 mat season here Friday night.

Grapplers of East Central and Northeastern State Teachers college will oppose the Aggies, each visiting team to enter eight men against as many Gallagher entries.

Two men in each class have been chosen by the Aggie mat mentor, but he is yet undecided how he will assign them against the invaders.

Eight of the sixteen are lettermen. Because of the absence of six lettermen, who are expected to be available for the second double header Jan. 23, Coach Gallagher anticipates a more difficult assignment for his proteges in the first sixteen match event than in the next, in which Oklahoma City university and Southwestern State Teachers college will present the combined opposition.

WOMEN'S UNION HITS AT MILITARY DRILL

Group Opposes R. O. T. C. Courses at Stanford, Other Schools.

PALO ALTO, Cal.—That the Women's Peace union is unalterably opposed to any form of militarism at Stanford was the statement made by Mrs. Alice Park, secretary of the Palo Alto branch of the organization, yesterday.

"Not only are we opposed to militarism at Stanford, but we are likewise opposed to military training at other educational institutions. Members of the Women's Peace union are absolutists, and naturally we cannot concede to military training in universities under any circumstances," Mrs. Park said.

Mrs. Park added that she thought it a pity that Stanford should offer courses in military training when the university's first president, Dr. Jordan, was a great advocate of peace.

"Most college students don't think of the serious effects of war," Mrs. Park said, "they look at the matter in a trifling fashion, believing that they will either be killed or come back safe and sound. If students would only consider the number of men who come back from the front, wrecked both physically and mentally, they would not be so anxious to take courses in military tactics."

Mrs. Park also stated that there is considerable hope for a lessening of militarism in colleges since a

MISSOURI HOPES IN CAGE RACE ASCEND

Tigers Show Unexpected Strength; Collins May Play Again.

COLUMBIA, Mo.—The University of Missouri's basketball stock had pointed sharply up grade on Tuesday as a result of the surprising talent Coach George Edward's men displayed in their games here last week with the two agricultural members of the Big Six conference.

Although the Tigers, previously rated without the hope of retaining the conference title they won in 1930, have finished the pre-examination period with a record of two defeats and one victory, their recent performances have restored them to the status of possible champions.

Their claims become even more impressive with consideration of the fact that Max Collins, veteran guard, may be available for the rest of the season. There is also a possibility that George Edminston, who won a letter at forward last year, may be restored to the squad.

The return of Collins is the most important factor in the situation, however, for his experience and versatility on the floor would provide the features which have been lacking in the green team so far this year.

HUSKER WRESTLERS PREPARE FOR MEET

Kellogg Attempts to Whip Squad Into Condition After Bad Start.

Coach Johnny Kellogg this week will attempt to whip his Nebraska wrestling squad into condition for the conference meet the latter part of January. The Husker matmen got away to a bad start when they dropped their first two meets of the year to Iowa and Cornell.

The remaining meets on the schedule are all conference affairs, the first being with Kansas Jan. 31. Oklahoma will be here Feb. 7, and Kansas Aggies will invade the Husker stronghold Feb. 21. These two teams are considered the toughest in the conference this year. The Aggies have every man back from last year's strong aggregation.

The Huskers will take to the road Feb. 28, when they meet Missouri at Columbia. They will return home to meet Iowa State in Lincoln March 7, the last match of the season.

The team this year is very inexperienced. Peterson, the only letter man, made a letter two years ago, but failed to do so last year. Heady, 115 pounds, made his initial appearance at practice only a week before the Iowa meet and won his match with a fall. He had hard luck in the next meet at Cornell. Linsag, in the 125 pound class, dropped his first two varsity matches by decisions.

Larson, 135, won his first match and lost his second by decisions. He lacks experience. In the 145 pound class, Reese won his Iowa match with a decision and lost the second match by a fall. Shirley has lost both his matches, the first by a fall, second by decision. Robertson, 165, lost by a decision and won by a fall in the Iowa and Cornell meets. Adams, 175, lacked experience in his first two varsity meets, losing them both by decisions.

The only letter man and varsity veteran left to start the season was Peterson. He got off to a bad start, dropping the Iowa match by a decision. He came back to win the second match with a fall. The Iowa trips were made by automobile and the coach said that he thought the rest of the journeys would be made the same way if the weather permitted.

OKLAHOMA A. & M. TO CURTAIL TANK MEETS

Missouri Valley Swimming Competition Will Be by Telegraph.

STILLWATER, Okla.—Swimming meets by telegraph, to cut expenses entailed in trips, will be the program for Oklahoma A. & M. college tanksters this season.

Such a decision, announced here by E. C. Gallagher, director of athletics, is in line with a general curtailing of expenses of minor sports by all Missouri Valley conference schools this year.

Home and home swimming meets arranged for valley teams at biannual conference meeting in December will be foregone in favor of the telegraphic arrangement, except in some instances where northern conference members, located relatively close together, will conduct meets in the regular way.

A. & M. will have two trips, but both will be in Oklahoma, and will have one dual engagement in the college pool. Tulsa university will be met on home and home plan and the Aggies will meet Oklahoma university in the Y. M. C. A. pool in Oklahoma City.

Telegraphic meets for the Aggies will be arranged with all other conference teams, including Washington, Drake and Creighton universities and Grinnell college.

Diving events will, perforce, be eliminated in the telegraphic contests.

The Missouri Valley conference tournament will be a telegraphic event, too, this year, with diving excluded.

Tentative meets for A. & M. swimmers with squads of Kansas university and Kansas Aggies have been abandoned.

Director Gallagher says that Artie Ellors, of Washington university, has been empowered by the conference officials to rearrange the swimming schedule, to conform to the telegraphic plan. Ellers will undertake to schedule round-robin contests so far as possible.
