FACULTY MEMBERS EXHIBIT PAINTINGS

Miss Faulkner and Dwight Kirsch Show Work in Oil at Museum.

MANY ARTISTS DISPLAY

Two members of the University of Nebraska faculty, Miss Kady E. Faulkner, and F. Dwight Kirsch, are exhibiting paintings at the forty-first annual exhibition of the Nebraska Art association in Morrill hall. An oil painting by Miss Faulkner, "Quarry at Rock Quarry" may be found in gallery A. Mr. Kirsch also has an oil painting, "Chimene Bay" in this group.

Many Display Work.

Many prominent artists have pictures on display at Morrill hall during this exhibit. In gallery E are pictures by the Chicago Art Institute. The upper corridor is filled with paintings by Schwartz, and room 204 contains sketches of murals by Allen T. True. For a short time pictures by Twachtman and Duvrek will be shown in the exhibit. Weinfeld Reiss has five portraits in gallery B, and in the west end of the lower corridor are the exhibitions of the Lincoln artists.

An exhibit of Danish glassware, silver, porcelain, pewter and ceramics is shown in cases in the front corridor. The ceramics are colorful with the bright blues, reds and yellows. The pewter has been called unusual, showing the work of the Danish craftsman. This exhibit is from the collection of Meta Lassen, and is exhibited by Brodegaard Brothers company.

Nationally Known.

Among the nationally known artists who are represented at the exhibition with paintings are: Jessie Arms Botke, Cornelius Botke, Leon Kroll, Ivan G. Oliniski, Briger Sandzen, and daughter Margaret Sandzen, William P. Silva and Grant Wood. From paintings by these artists, the Nebraska Art association will purchase a painting for its collection in Morrill hall. Last year the association purchased "Siesta" by Leon Kroll.

University students are admitted to the galleries by their identification cards. The galleries are open from 9 to 12, and from 1 to 5. Twenty-five cents admission is charged for adults. The exhibit will continue until March 15.

PARTY PLANNED FOR FEB. 20 BY PHI TAU THETA

The regular Phi Tau Theta meeting was held Tuesday evening at the Wesley Foundation parsonage, when the group took up the discussion of the Apostle's Creed. Among the business matters taken up by the group was the Phi Tau Theta-Kappa Phi party, which will be held on Friday evening, Feb. 20, at Grace M. E. church. Bernard Malcomb, chairman of the party committee, reported that plans are being completed for a gala event.

Next week the organization will take up the second of a series of subjects, dealing with their idea of God. A week from next Tuesday they plan to have a dinner meeting, and an outside speaker will be called in to lead the discussion.

WOMEN TO NAME QUEEN OF MAY IN TODAY'S POLLING

Every Junior and Senior Will Choose Ivy Girl And Her Maid.

ONLY SENIORS ELIGIBLE

All of the Candidates Will Have Names Posted At the Polls.

May queen and her maid of honor for the traditional Ivy day festival will be named by a vote of all junior and senior women today. Voting will take place at the booth in the first floor corridor of social science hall from 9 to 5 o'clock and in the parlor of home economics hall at the college of agriculture from 12 to 1 at the same time that nominations are made for Mortar Board.

Only senior women are eligible for the choice. Names of all those with the scholastic and activity eligibility requirement will be listed on the ballots. Voters will check one name. The two receiving the highest vote will be named May queen and maid of honor, respectively.

No Politics.

Removed entirely from the realm of politics by popular selection, the honor is recognized both by those within the university and by those not identified with it as one that goes each year to the outstanding woman of the senior class, Mortar Board society members declared.

Dorothy Silvis, Prom Girl Candidate, Heads Thetas; Is Journalism Student

Editor's note: This is one of four of a series of stories on candidates for Prom girl, who will provide at the junior-senior prom this year.

BY ART WOLF.

If you see a Nebraska coed on the campus—sure, beautiful, and unassuming—that you feel you would like to know, the chances are that it is Dorothy Silvis, one of the four candidates for prom girl for 1931.

Miss Silvis was born in Wagner, S. D., some twenty-one years ago. She attended grade school there and was graduated from high school in 1927.

She matriculated at Nebraska the same year in the school of journalism. She affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and this year is president of that organization. Her outstanding work in journalism resulted in her election to Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalistic sorority, last spring. She held the position until a short time ago.

Last year she was an assistant sorority editor of the Cornhusker and this year has charge of the sorority section of the yearbook. She is also a member of the Pan-Hellenic council.

NEBRASKA DEBATERS MEET DRAKE TODAY

Huskies Take Affirmative Side of Free Trade Question.

THREE OTHERS PLANNED

Two University of Nebraska debaters will leave today for Omaha, where they are scheduled to meet the Drake university debate team at North high school at 3:30 this afternoon.

Bernard Plak, Norfolk, senior in the law school college, and Jack Deboe, Lincoln, junior in the law college, will represent Nebraska in the debate. They will argue the affirmative side of the question: "Resolved that the Nations of the World Should Adopt a Policy of Free Trade."

A series of three debates have been scheduled for Feb. 26 and 27, and March 1, with the University of Nebraska being represented by Alan Williams, Lincoln, and Charles Gray, Omaha. A fourth debate will be staged at noon on Feb. 26 with Drake university, before the junior chamber of commerce at Des Moines, Ia. On the evening of Feb. 27 the Nebraska debaters will face the University of Iowa team at Iowa City. They will then move on to Chicago, where they have a debate scheduled with Northwestern university, on the afternoon of March 1.

In each of these three matches the Nebraska debaters will take the negative side of the subject. "Resolved that the Several States Should Enact Legislation Providing for Compulsory Unemployment Insurance, to which the Employer Shall be Required to Contribute."

All Writers Have Idiosyncracies; But Bill McCleery Is an Exception Although He Eats Before He Writes

By JAMES G. ROBERTS.

Every writer in the world, save one, has some idiosyncrasy connected with his writing. Smelling sour apples, looking at doughnuts and apples, writing with one's feet in ice water and other methods have been recommended by the best authors (see Doc Loury C. Wimberly for further reference). But William C. McCleery, commonly known as William T. McCleery, is an exception.

In the composition of his musical comedies accepted by the Kosmet Klub, he neither smells sour apples, looks at doughnuts and apples, nor puts his feet in ice water. He declares that he writes better on an empty stomach—without having eaten anything—but always eats before writing.

By the way, Mr. McCleery has promised that there will be no puns in his coming comedy "High and Dry" successor to "Don't Be Silly," presented by an all male cast in 1929, and "Sob Sister," presented by men and coeds in 1930.

McCleery's shows drew record crowds to Kosmet Klub's productions the last two years. Robert "Red" Young, Norfolk football player, and Doris Powell, Lincoln, had the leading parts in last year's productions.

"High and Dry," this year's production, is concerned with a private yacht, a sea, and a desert island. Act one takes place on the yacht, bound for some civilized port. A mutiny by the crew upsets plans, and the captain of the yacht and the passengers are put off on a desert island. Two sailors on the yacht, who remain loyal to the captain, also are put off on the island.

Confusion reigns supreme, when one of the sailors falls in love with the queen of the island, and the captain of the yacht and a passenger both make love to Jane, the feminine lead, also a passenger on the yacht. Various other unique situations are introduced into the play.

STUDENTS TALK AT DOANE

Evelyn Adler and Woodward Magee Appear Before College Groups.

Evelyn Adler and Woodward Magee spoke at Doane college Wednesday evening before a joint meeting of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. on unemployment. Doane college will participate in the week end industrial conference which will be held in Lincoln Feb. 27-28.

The conference registration will be taken at the Y. M. and Y. W. offices and a fee of 25 cents will be charged for Lincoln students. Registration of one dollar will be charged for out of the city registrants.

Word has been received of the acceptance to speak at the conference of Powers Haggood of Columbia Conserve company and Karl Borders of the University of Chicago.

PAMPHLET OUTLINES ALL HOME EC WORK

New University Publication Discusses Purposes of Department.

10,000 WOMEN STUDY

"What is Home Economics?" a pamphlet recently published by the university, gives a brief resume of the work of the different divisions of the home economics department and the purpose of the home economics education. The need for more adequate classroom and laboratory facilities to carry on the work of the department is mentioned.

The department of home economics in the university was established by the state of Nebraska to develop and direct a program for the betterment of its homes," the pamphlet sets out. "The department equips its graduates as superior homemakers and to enable them to make a livelihood in the numerous vocations it opens."

Added to this is the spreading throughout the state of better homemaking. More than 10,000 women in Nebraska last year studied different phases of homemaking under the auspices of the college of agriculture, the pamphlet shows.

"Homemaking is the biggest business of the state," says the pamphlet. "As a girl looks forward to founding a home of her own, she would not consider choosing a partner who was not trained to earn an income. Is she going to be as well prepared for her job as her partner?"

DISCUSSIONS ON "WHY RELIGION" WILL END SUNDAY

The concluding topic of "Why Religion" will be given at the First Presbyterian church by the young peoples' group next Sunday evening. Social hour, in charge of Marjorie Compton, will begin at 6 o'clock. The open discussion will follow at 7. All university students are invited to attend.

Grant Koontz, Warren Allison, Eastle Anderson, Jim Story, Lucile Cypresen and Margaret Walker will each give a three minute talk on "My Religion and How I Live Up to It."

Devotions will be led by Tudor Williams and refreshments will be served by Almira Thomas.

COUNCIL TABLES MOTION SETTING UP COMMITTEES

Members Deem It Wise to Have All Councilors Present in Vote.

CONSIDER REAFFILIATION

Group Is Divided on Values Of National Student Organization.

Deeming it wiser to wait until more members are present, the Student council voted Wednesday afternoon to table formal action on a new proposal for the erection of two faculty-student committees to enforce council legislation until the next meeting. Motion for tabling came from Fred Grau, senior council member who introduced the new resolution to be added to their pending constitution.

Discussion during the meeting centered around proposed contacts with a sub-division of the National Student Federation, and the report of Walter Huber, chairman of the council committee on athletic relations. In connection with the afternoon's work the student government group passed favorably on a constitutional charter submitted to them by a newly organized student group known as the McLean Hall society.

Delegate Enforcement.

The resolution on which action was deferred until the next meeting deals with an arrangement for delegating enforcement of Student council provisions to various extracurricular organizations on the campus such as the Interfraternity council, the Pan-Hellenic association, and the A. W. S. Board. It recommends the appointment of two committees—a student judiciary committee and a faculty executive committee.

$125,000 GIVEN TO JOURNALISM SCHOOL

Chicago Tribune Will Aid Northwestern During Five Year Period.

The Chicago Tribune is giving $125,000 for the support of the Medill school of journalism, to be paid over a period of ten years, President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university announced this week.

Ten years ago the Tribune offered Northwestern a $125,000 a year for five years toward the expense of a school for training men and women of the middle west in the fundamentals of journalism. The university accepted and named the school in honor of Joseph Medill, founder of the Tribune. The latest gift will insure continuation of the school until 1941. There are now more than 300 students enrolled under nineteen instructors.

The Tribune states its purpose in aiding to develop a school of journalism is not only to stimulate a better training in journalism but also to provide through this annuity a source through which it could receive better trained men and women for its own staff. In this way it is developing a sort of training school as a feeder for its own news and editorial work, the newspaper feels. The $125,000 a year was not only a contribution to the advancement of journalism but also a legitimate expense toward better development of its own staff, it is said.
