KOSMET KLUB TO PICK 'HIGH AND DRY' ORCHESTRA

Joe Alter Will Supervise Choosing Members Of Band For Show.

BUTLER WRITES MUSIC Ineligibility Causes Delay In Announcement Of Cast Selection.

Orchestra tryouts for the Kosmet Klub 1931 show will be held next Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock in Temple 205. Joe Alter will be in charge of the tryouts. The orchestra will be taken on the road trip of the show, "High and Dry," this year to various cities in the state in which the play will be presented during spring vacation. Instrumentation required for the musical group, according to Alter, will include a violin director, trumpets, trombones, saxophones, pianos, drums and basses.

Eligibility Hinders Appointments. Ineligibility of various members of the cast chosen delayed cast announcement, according to Leroy Jack, acting manager of the show. The cast was to have been announced today but the check for scholastic eligibility pruned out a few of the chosen members.

The music for "High and Dry" is being written by Eddie Butler, Columbia staff pipe organist at KOLI.

Work on the show has already begun, according to Jack who believes the show to be the best the Kosmet Klub has ever produced. McCleery is another.

"High and Dry," a naughty, nautical romance, was written by William T. McCleery, especially for Klub presentation. This is the third piece from McCleery's pen. He also wrote "Sob Sisters" and "Don't Be Silly," the productions of the past two years.

The show will be composed of an all male cast again this year, the Klub having departed from that tradition last year in production of "Sob Sisters" when a mixed cast gave the show in Lincoln.

The Klub is also arranging for a road trip throughout the state during spring vacation. Last year the show was presented in Lincoln only.

Lowell "Jiggs" Miller, director of the 1929 show, "Don't Be Silly" is the director of this year's production.

STUDENTS ORGANIZE CLASS IN LEADERSHIP

Lloyd Watt Is Director Of Methodist Group To Give Training.

The first session of the class in leadership training, sponsored by the Methodist student council will be held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Lloyd Watt is director of the group which is handling the class.

About twenty people are enrolled in the class according to the Rev. W. C. Fawell, instructor. The group purposes to study the present situation in the Sunday schools and Epworth leagues of the city with the idea of offering suggestions for their improvement. After some definite work in the local field the class will visit churches in surrounding communities.

The course offered is number 72, on "Young People's Materials and Methods." Those enrolled in the class will receive credit with the board of education, after completing the course. A deputation team for the carrying on of field work will be organized from the class.

Businesses are Similar. "In the United States," declared Prof. Macchioro, "you find the same products in the stores regardless of what section of the country you are in. I find the same kinds of groceries, the same retail stores, and the same merchandise. At first I thought that everything was the same, but as I stay in a section for some length of time, I find that the people in the various sections of this country differ greatly."

For purposes of clearer explanation of this point, Prof. Macchioro told of the differences in the people of West Virginia, and of Virginia. Although one merely crosses the Blue Ridge from one state to the other, he found that in Virginia the southern frame of mind is prevalent while in West Virginia the people are distinctly different.

COLUMBUS BOY WINS STOCK JUDGING PRIZE

Robert Smith Takes First Place at Operator's Short Course.

Robert Smith of Columbus is the best livestock judge among the 100 Nebraska farm boys attending the farm operator's short course at the agricultural college. The Columbus boy was announced the winner of the contest at a convocation held in the student activities building on the ag campus on Tuesday morning.

Other winners in the order they placed included George Stanek, of Walthill; Arnold Luschen, Irvington; Maurice Kuhl, Plainview; and Laverne Harrington, Bradshaw.

Those competing in the contest judged six classes of livestock, including two of cattle, two of hogs, one of sheep, and one of horses. It was the first annual judging contest to be held for the farm boys, according to Walter Tolman, the course animal husbandry instructor.

Gramlich Makes Awards. Prof. H. J. Gramlich, head of the animal husbandry department, made the judging awards at the convocation. Winners received ribbons. In naming the winners, Gramlich urged the boys who had failed to place not to be discouraged. He reversed the order of naming the winners when he named the tenth place winner and thence the first place winner of the grand champion judge.

It is highly probable that the livestock judging contest for the short course boys will continue as an annual event was the statement made by H. K. Douthit, the short course director, this morning at the college. He was elated over the success of the first venture.

Prof. A. D. Webb and Guy McCord acted as judges in the contest.

Dean Upson Believes Chemistry Department Has Adequate Room Except For Graduate Division

Editor's note: This is the eighth of a series devoted to the different university departments. The articles will tell of possibilities and needs of the departments, with something of their history.

By LEONARD L. CASTLE. The chemistry department of the university is one of the few larger departments that is not greatly in need of new improvements according to Dean F. W. Upson, chairman of the department and dean of the graduate college. The department is exceptionally well situated in regard to classroom and laboratory space for undergraduate students although additions should be made in the graduate college.

Besides the needed improvements in the graduate college more instructors are also needed by the department. The members of the staff are now carrying from 18 to 22 hours of classroom work a week and Dean Upson feels that this load should be lightened. If additions to the staff were made this would give the members more time for important research work. Although much research work is being done now Dean Upson feels that the department should be contributing more in this field of endeavor.

Laboratory Space Needed. The main need of the graduate department is increased space for laboratory work. The number of graduate students has greatly increased since the department moved into the chemistry building (Continued on Page 2.)

GEOLOGISTS SPONSOR SECOND OPEN HOUSE

Professor Swezey Talks At Meeting Held In Morrill Hall.

The second geology open house of the year, sponsored by Sigma Gamma Epsilon, was held at Morrill hall last Tuesday evening. The event, scheduled to bring the students of geology and the faculty into closer contact, was attended by more than fifty men.

The principal speaker, Prof. G. O. Swezey, head of the astronomy department, gave a very interesting illustrated talk on "The Earth and Theories of Its Origin." He was introduced by Leon W. Ashton, president of the organization.

Dr. E. H. Barbour, director of the museum, and Prof. E. F. Schramm addressed the group on the pressing need of more space for both the astronomy and geology departments. Dr. A. L. Lugh, also of the geology department, told those present of some of the methods employed and instruments used by other institutions which offer courses in geology. He commended the organization for its fine work by obtaining speakers from other branches of science which are closely associated with geology.

Mr. Ashton announced that members of the local chapter are working out plans for a geologists' field day sometime in May. The group plans to organize a trip to all the interesting geologic formations in eastern Nebraska, including the famous quarries at Snyderville and Louisville. Guides will lead the party.

A closed business meeting was conducted by the actives at which final arrangements were completed for the faculty banquet which will be held on April 10 at a downtown hotel. Several of the national officers will attend.

LATTA TALKS TO NU-MEDS

Instructor Thinks Students Should Have Three Years Work.

That medical students before entering the advanced school of medicine should have completed at least three years of preparatory work and if possible have a degree, is the conclusion of Dr. John S. Latta, freshman instructor in the university college of medicine.

Dr. Latta spoke to the Nu-Med society at the Grand hotel Wednesday night on the phases of professional school education and related some of his observations of students in his classes. He stressed the fact that medical college requirements are gradually being raised and that the present day physician should possess a knowledge not only of scientific subjects but of cultural subjects as well.

This requires not less than two years of premedical study, he said. The student who has had more work than the university requires, Latta observed, does superior work to that of the student who has merely fulfilled requirements.

YEARBOOK ENGRAVING SECTIONS TO CLOSE

Campus Organizations Must Submit Copy, Settle for Space.

A single day intervenes before the engraving sections of the 1931 Cornhusker yearbook are closed to campus organizations, according to Ed Edmonds, business manager.

All engraving copy for the new annual must be turned in and financially settled for by tonight, if the staff is to be sure of having the printed.

"There are still five organizations who have turned in pictures and have contracted for a page of space in the Cornhusker, who have not paid," Edmonds declared yesterday.

"These organizations must make financial arrangements for their pictures and space before Friday evening or their copy will not be sent to the engravers," he declared.

Organizations Prompt. The majority of campus organizations, including fraternities, sororities and others, have been unusually prompt in meeting their space obligations, according to members of the Cornhusker business staff. There are a few, however, who have neglected, either purposely or unknowingly, to make settlement with the business manager. They must make arrangements within the next twenty-four hours, or their pictures will not be sent to the engraving jobbers.

Fraternity and sorority editors of the new yearbook have announced that Friday evening is the deadline for fraternity and sorority membership lists. These lists, divided according to pledges, sophomores, juniors and seniors, must be turned in to the printers at once.

Several sections of this year's annual have already been run off at the printers. Members of the staff expect to have the new book ready during May.

This pamphlet carries national, state, and city news to members of leagues all over the state, and reports the bills passed in the state and national legislatures, it was said.

Wisconsin Union Building Overlooks Lake Mendota as Edifice of Beauty

Realization Came to Meet Need for Promotion Of Contacts.

Editor's note: This is the fifth of a series on student unions at other schools. The articles will deal with the purpose of student unions and will contain some of the details of financing.

BY ARTHUR MITCHELL. A large flagstoned terrace overlooking beautiful Lake Mendota, with game courts and a shady beach for swimmers is one of the main attractions at Wisconsin's student union. The rear of the building overlooks the lake, thus providing a favorite recreation spot during warm weather.

The Wisconsin union, according to university bulletins, is "the organized fraternity of students, faculty, alumni, and patrons of the University of Wisconsin, created to provide a common life and a cultivated social program for its members. All students are members automatically upon enrollment. Faculty, alumni, and patrons may become members upon application."

PROFESSORS AND STUDENTS STRIKE AT SMOKING BILL

Enforcement Of Measure Called Impossible On Campus.

DISOBEY PRESENT LAW

'They Can't Legislate Our Way To Heaven,' Says Robert Kelly.

Intense student opposition to the state legislature's smoking in the university bill was expressed all over the campus yesterday following action of the state senate Wednesday night in pulling the bill from the committee and placing it on general file by a vote of 17 to 16.

"Impractical—impossible to enforce—ridiculous as there is already a regent's rule against smoking which is not enforced—these were some of the comments hurled at the legislative measure. Obtains Opinions.

In an attempt to find out what the more representative students and faculty members think of the law, The Nebraskan obtained opinions from several of the best known students on the campus and three of the representative professors.

"Maybe the legislators haven't seen the university janitors in action. Smoking in buildings is against a university ruling now—and it is being enforced as effectively as it could be if the legislature stepped in. This is not an institution for moral correction, but an educational institute. Passing a state regulation which would make more law breakers than ever—and we have plenty now."

"Aside from being impractical, impossible, it is almost ridiculous to pass such a measure. We'll have to give a B. H.—Bachelor of Hypocrites—if we have many more rules around here."

The above is the comment of William T. McCleery, president of the Innocents society, treasurer of the Student council, member of Kosmet Klub and various other student organizations.

Cunningham Gives Opinion. H. F. Cunningham, head of the department of architecture, declared yesterday that he was smoking (Continued on Page 4.)
