

STUDENTS STAGE RALLY FOR FAIR THURSDAY NIGHT

Annual Farmers' Exposition To Supersede Others Say Officers.

SMITH GIVES ADDRESS Professor Stresses Value Of Organization; Miss Elwell Talks.

College of agriculture students who crowded ag hall Thursday night for the second Farmers' Fair rally of the year were told that the 1931 exposition is going to be the greatest of all times. Faculty members, board officers and committee chairmen addressed the students who packed the auditorium on the ag campus to capacity.

That Farmers' Fair this year will stress the educational exhibits more than ever before was the keynote of the rally. Members of the Senior Fair board expressed the hope that the students would cooperate in making the exhibits more successful than usual. In the past the Fair has been charged with commercialism and the fair board said they desired to overcome this criticism in presenting the 1931 show.

Professor Smith Speaks.

Professor Chauncey Smith of the agricultural engineering department urged the students to get behind the Fair board and make the Fair a success. He stressed the value of organization and the value of all committee members working together. Likewise Miss Bernice Elwell of the home economics department boosted the fair. Practically every Fair committee held individual meetings after the short rally and discussed plans for the 1931 show. These committees are to meet again within the next week or so and formulate definite programs for their part of the Fair.

In stirring up pep for the rally, members of the corn cobs and tassels helped the Fair board in putting the second rally of the year across. Manager Myrtle White expressed himself as being pleased with the enthusiasm shown by the ag student body.

NEW AWGWAN WILL APPEAR ON MONDAY

Third Issue Of Humor Sheet Is Devoted To Campus Beautiful.

WENKE DESIGNS COVER

Appearance of the Campus Beautiful issue of the Awgwan is scheduled for Monday, April 6. In conformity with this idea several new art contributors will present drawings and several photographs will be reproduced of some of the more beautiful but unexplored nooks on the campus.

The cover design by Sterling Wenke is something entirely new in the experience of the Awgwan so far this year. Articles by Gene Robb, Bill McCleery, and Fred Oetgen are features of original wit and humor concerning important personages and happenings on the campus.

This number will be the third edition of the publications since its reinstatement on the Nebraska campus. Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalistic fraternity, is sponsor of the humor sheet.

LELAND SPEAKS AT HOLY WEEK MEETING

Interprets Events Of One Day Of Last Week of Life of Jesus.

Continuing the series of Holy Week services which are being held every afternoon at 5:00 p. m. in the University Episcopal church, Rev. Dean R. Leland, Presbyterian student pastor, yesterday interpreted the events of Thursday in the last week of the life of Jesus. The services are being sponsored by all the university pastors on the campus.

Reverend Leland in his talk stressed the meaning of Jesus and his disciples for the Last Supper where Jesus expressed to them his desire to be remembered. It was in this light of remembrance that the symbols of the Last Supper are to be interpreted.

The services will be continued the remainder of the week with Rev. W. L. McMillan, Episcopal rector of the University Episcopal church in charge of the Friday service.

FOUR UNIVERSITY TEACHERS HAND IN RESIGNATIONS

Lowe, Weber, Yowell And Sealock To Take Up New Positions.

SALARIES TO BE HIGHER Classics Head To Become Director Of School In Greece.

Resignation of four faculty members was announced Thursday by Chancellor E. A. Burnett. All four men are leaving the teaching staff of the university to take positions at higher salaries. Those resigning are: Dr. Clarence G. Lowe, chairman of the classics department; A. D. Weber, associate professor of animal husbandry; J. M. Yowell, instructor in accounting; and Dean W. E. Sealock, teachers college head.

Dr. Lowe has resigned to become director of the Gennadius library of the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, Greece. Dr. Lowe came to the University of Nebraska in 1927, and since 1928 has been professor and chairman of the classics department. Prior to coming to Nebraska, he taught in Washington University at St. Louis, the University of Illinois, and Yale. Dr. Lowe feels that his new position will offer him opportunities for study and research that can be equaled nowhere in America. His resignation takes effect Sept. 1.

Yowell Gets New Position.

Mr. Yowell, instructor in accounting in the business administration college, is leaving the university staff to take a position as general auditor for the Omaha Cold Storage company at almost double the compensation the university has been able to pay him. Mr. Yowell came to the university in 1928 as assistant instructor, and was raised to the instructorship the following year.

Associate Professor Weber, whose resignation takes effect July 1, will join the staff of the Kansas State Agricultural college at Manhattan. In his work there he will have charge of the beef cattle work in the animal husbandry department, which will round out his work in the field of animal husbandry. Mr. Weber joined the faculty of the University of Nebraska in 1926, and at (Continued on Page 4.)

PLAYERS REHEARSE FINAL PRODUCTION

'Bird In Hand,' Comedy By Drinkwater, Selected To Close Season.

TO NAME CAST SUNDAY

Rehearsals for the final production of the University Players, "Bird In Hand," have begun and the cast will be announced Sunday.

"Bird In Hand," by John Drinkwater, is one of the author's most popular plays, enjoying a long run on Broadway within the last few seasons.

With this well known play, the Players will climax the most successful season in many years. "Bird In Hand" is a comedy in keeping with the fact that the plays presented this season have been predominantly of the variety of comedy entertainment. Some of the outstanding comedies presented this season included "Ladies of the Jury," by Fred Ballard; "The Importance of Being Earnest," "Holiday," and "Fashion."

Try To End Affair

"Bird In Hand" is the name of an inn where all the action takes place. Thomas Greenleaf, the proprietor, is concerned throughout the play with attempting to terminate the love affair of his daughter with Gerald, the wealthy son of a wealthy English lord, because he considers their stations in life should make the daughter too proud to go with one above her simple life.

The family quarrel which ensues is participated in by several non-descript guests at the inn who together with the girl's mother take (Continued on Page 3.)

FACULTY MEN RESIGN POSITIONS

J. M. YOWELL

DR. CLARENCE G. LOWE

Who tendered their resignations to Chancellor E. A. Burnett within the past month. Both of them are leaving to take up positions elsewhere offering higher salaries and advancements.

J. M. Yowell, instructor in accounting in the college of business administration, leaves the teaching profession to enter the business world. He will act as general auditor of the Omaha Cold Storage company of Omaha after school closes here. Mr. Yowell came to the university as a member of its staff in 1928.

Dr. Clarence G. Lowe, since 1928 professor and chairman of the department of classics, has resigned to become director of the Gennadius library of the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, Greece. He came to the university in September, 1927 from Washington university in St. Louis.

Easter Rabbit Is Behind On Quota Of Eggs Because He Is Overworked, Oppressed By Grass Cutting Work

By E. STR ABBITT

As Told to Mrs. Watch N. Gabb.

Members of the Daily Nebraskan staff were interrupted yesterday in their contemplative seances which each day are responsible for the issuance of the official student publication of the university by the groans and whines of some person or animal apparently very much in distress.

Being humanitarian in instinct as well as training, one reporter—and she would have to be enterprising to correctly label her position in current usage—climbed out of the hold or hole—pardon the typewriter—and using that good old nose for news so characteristic, went investigating. After some times he noted Mr. Himself Easter Rabbit lying prone in the grass, sides heaving, emitting moans of anguish while his tiny paws stroked the region where gastronomic juices play tag.

Reporter Diagnoses.

Using her stethoscope-pencil, the reporter diagnosed the case as clearly gastronomic satiety—in more plebeian terms, a condition following over-indulgence in proteins, carbohydrates, and fats.

"Why, my good fellow," said the reporter ingratiatingly as is the wont of reporters, "what's the matter? Too much grass?"

"Grass?" groaned the Easter bringer of joy, never mentioning the word to me again. Yes, and furthermore, never mention anything which even borders on green. I tell you," he went on to elaborate, "after some groans, 'this is getting to be too much of a good thing."

"Spill it," the reporter encouraged characteristically, pencil and paper in hand.

Tells Grievances.

"Well in the first place," said the little fuzzy animal, there has been an increase in the amount of labor placed upon the employees of the university, and it's just wearing me out. In fact, I haven't (Continued on Page 2.)

CRETE RESIDENTS VISIT THOMPSON IN HOKUF BEHALF

Citizens of Athlete's Home Town Wage Fight for Reinstatement.

CLAIM HARSH DISCIPLINE Past Records Do Not Show Severe Treatment Says Committee.

A committee of Crete residents composed of Mayor F. J. Kobes, County Attorney John E. Mekota, C. D. Blauvelt editor of the Crete News, H. A. Davis city engineer and R. M. Flansburg druggist, carried the fight to reinstatement Steve Hokuf, suspended last week following a raid at the apartment in which he lived, direct to the university administration yesterday afternoon.

Calling on Dean T. J. Thompson in a body to protest against what they termed "severe discipline without due cause" they petitioned the university administration to take whatever steps necessary to reinstate Hokuf immediately in order that he might be able to continue his university work and remain eligible for football competition next fall.

Speaking for the committee, Mayor Kobes stated that there was no doubt that the stellar Cornhusker athlete was acquainted with the fact that beer was being made in the apartment but that the fact that he was not in the city at the time of the raid nor had ever been before the university administration for disciplinary measures prior to the time of his suspension should have entered into the case.

Cite Past Cases.

"It is evident," continued Mayor Kobes, "that past cases in which liquor and university students have figured had no bearing on the ruling of the administration in Hokuf's case. 'University records will show that in more than one instance students have been discovered under the influence of liquor in their possession both on and off the university campus and have been dealt with much less harshly than has Hokuf.'

Mayor Kobes added that the committee during the past week had received many letters, messages and telegrams asking that residents of Crete take some kind of definite action in an effort to gain Hokuf's reinstatement and offering any such aid as might be needed.

Senators Accompany Men.
