TREES LIVE ON PHYSICS BUILDING

School Narrowly Misses Having Roof Garden On Laboratory.

BY GORDON ROBERTS.

The University has almost acquired a roof garden. It only missed by that far, I mean. And the garden will remain unless it gets a fallen arches. Because the garden is on top of the Physical Laboratory building arch. The garden consists of five trees and possibly two or three embryo trees. To ascertain the number for certain might mean the ruination of one of the campus beauty spots. It is alleged that the wind planted the trees and deposited the dirt.

The largest of these trees, the one that stares down at you is a tall cottonwood tree, two feet six inches in height. Part of the trunk of the tree is kept hidden by an upward extension of the arch. When the first leaf first beamed upon the world from its lofty ramparts is a matter of speculation. Some say it first showed itself on Ivy day.

Three other cottonwoods are hidden from the casual observer. However, they may be easily seen from several places in the physics building at the risk of one's neck. The last tree is a blackhorse, a black wooden horse. The cottonwoods clasp themselves together at the north end of the arch.

The unknown remains at the south end, alone, silent, aloof. Some say it blew in one day from South America. Others say it is just a common tree. It's probably a bush.

STUDENT COUNCIL SETS MAY 19 AS ELECTION DATE

Group Also Hears Final
Constitution Report
From Committee.

ATHLETIC REPORT GIVEN

Huber Outlines Relations
Of Students With Department.

BY THE OBSERVER.

Campus politicians may now begin active and definite preparations for their spring's political campaign since the Student council last evening set May 19 as the election date, rather than May 12 as previously declared. At the same meeting a final council report on the new constitution was heard from Edwin Faulkner and minor changes in wording were made preparatory to submitting the draft of it to the University Senate, Saturday afternoon.

As soon as approval of the university senate is gained, and this action may normally be expected as a matter of course since the constitution will be recommended by a faculty committee on student affairs, the long-heralded code of by-laws will be ready for student vote. Members of the council are certain in their expectations that the document will be in shape for submission to student polling on May 19.

Is Good Draft.

The new constitution is a distinct gain in privileges and responsibility over the old set of statutes under which the council has been operating during its existence on the campus. It represents a new centralized hold over other campus organizations and embodies a means of delegating enforcement of council legislative enactments in an orderly and precise fashion. The constitution which goes before the University Senate Saturday, provides, unlike the old one, for equal representation on the new council for men and women. That will not be effective until a year from this spring, however, even if the senate and the students accept the new law code.

In conjunction with other business of the council it was decided that May 13 would serve as the date for the next council meeting. At this time four holdover members (two men and two women) will be selected from junior membership on the council to serve next year.

PLAN INSTALL RADIO FOR SHERMAN TODAY

Friend's Collection Nears
Amount for Gift to Injured Musician.

DOCTOR SAYS IMPROVING

Friends of Francis "Frankie" Sherman, injured in an automobile accident Sunday evening, who have been taking up a collection to buy a radio for the injured musician announced yesterday that enough money had been obtained to install the set immediately.

A total of $7.40 had been contributed toward the fund yesterday afternoon and it was estimated that complete installation of the radio will amount to $10.25. It is expected that the collection will have reached that mark by this morning. Arrangements have been made to install a telephone radio early today and the set will be operating for Sherman this evening. The set will be installed in Sherman's home when he is removed from the hospital.

Dr. C. H. Arnold, Sherman's physician, reported yesterday that the patient is improving steadily and he could probably be taken home in ten days or two weeks. He will probably be confined to his home for two months after the removal, however, Doctor Arnold stated.

REGISTRATION FOR NEXT YEAR MOVES FORWARD SLOWLY

Total of 1,094 Is Reported
From Seven Colleges
Yesterday.

AG COLLEGE IS IN LEAD

Teachers College Led for Yesterday; to Close
Saturday Noon.

With registration for the first semester of next year progressing slowly, a total of 1,094 students had completed the process at 5 o'clock yesterday, deans of seven colleges reported last night. They predicted the usual increase in registration speed for the two and one-half remaining days before the close Saturday noon.

The college of agriculture lead in total numbers with 275 having picked their courses. The teachers college led in the number of students registered yesterday with 119. The college of agriculture's Tuesday registration of 130 remained the heaviest single day's run for any college.

Engineers Second.

Second in registration totals last night was the college of engineering with 258. This was the largest relative portion of the total number of students enrolled for any college. The other colleges reporting followed in total registration in the following order: teachers college, college of arts and sciences, college of business administration, dental college and college of pharmacy.

Although only eight students had completed registration in the college of pharmacy, the office of the dean reported that since the course for each class is prescribed in advance, the completion of the process would be a simple matter.

No Check in Law.

The college of law will have no definite check on the registration numbers until the end of the week. Registration will take place in the graduate college next fall.

Wednesday's registration for all colleges reporting was 547. No records were available for the third day last year, but comparison of totals for Tuesday and the second day last year showed current registration lagging by about 50.

Registration will close at noon Saturday. Any student who has not consulted his adviser by that time and completed his selection of first semester courses will be charged a late registration fee.

Fee statements will be mailed to students at their summer residences by the finance office sometime in July or August. Remittance must be made before September 2 to avoid the late registration fee.

Under a new system inaugurated this year by Prof. A. R. Congdon, chairman of the assignment committee, students will be given (Continued on Page 4.)
