PRICE FIVE CENTS

NEWLY ELECTED GOVERNING BODY TO MEET TODAY

Student Council Convened For Election of Next Year Officers.

TO TRANSACT BUSINESS Ruling of Senate on Barb Disqualification to Be Considered.

The first meeting of the newly elected Student Council operating under the new constitution will be held this afternoon at 5 o'clock in University hall according to an announcement of Robert Kelly, retiring president.

Officers for next year will be elected.

There are thirty-one members of the new council, four of whom are holdover members elected by the present council to serve with the newly elected council, and two others elected according to the proportional representation plan by the Yellow Jacket faction.

It is possible that the membership of the council may be increased to thirty-three by the appointment of two students to represent the barb faction. The barbs had only one candidate for the student council and one for the student publication board, and although neither was elected, the faction polled a sufficient vote according to the plan of proportional representation, to entitle it to two representatives on the council.

Subsequent action on the part of the council, confirmed by the university senate, in disqualifying the barb faction candidates because of the infraction of rules in regard to the distribution of election handbills leaves the faction without representation. The council at the meeting today may recommend the disqualification of the candidates to represent the faction on the council.

Old Chairman Presides.

The constitution provides that the chairman of the old council shall preside at the first meeting of the newly elected governing body. Robert Kelly will preside and offer some recommendations to the new council preceding the election, following which he will yield the gavel to the newly elected president. Any council member is eligible for the presidency.

Other changes and additions are the presentation of the fraternity and sorority sections, the enlarged feature section and a humor section which excludes personalities.

The change created in the Greek sections has made possible larger individual pictures and gives the:

Much More to Office of Registrar Than Most People Think, Says Miss McGahey; Must Know Entire Campus

There is much more to the office of registrar than the figures, which the average person imagines, declares Miss Florence I. McGahey, registrar of the University of Nebraska.

"The office here knows of almost all the happenings on the campus before the students," Miss McGahey stated. Through the faculty meetings of which Miss McGahey is secretary, much is learned of proposed changes on the campus and events which have occurred.

Through the students themselves coming to the office for information the registrar's office is informed of almost every event.

"Students are coming here more and more to find out anything which they do not know and, of course, we never attempt to tell them unless we know definitely that our information is correct, consequently we have to be well informed on every subject," Miss McGahey said.

Fascinating Work.

Miss McGahey regards the compiling and publishing of the catalogs for each college as a fascinating task. "Every year we begin work on them early in the fall. There are many changes and specifications which we must know," she asserted. This year more time has been necessary for the preparation of the catalogs because of the addition of the school of music to the university.

"We now have all of the catalogs except the school of fine arts and the school of medicine," she declared. These were completed and sent to the press Tuesday.

FACULTY MEN TO SPEAK Gramlich and Derrick Will Appear on Feeders' Day Program.

Two University of Nebraska faculty members are appearing on the first annual western Nebraska feeders' day held at North Platte Thursday. Prof. H. J. Gramlich, head of the animal husbandry department, and W. W. Derrick, state extension agent in animal husbandry, are the featured speakers.

Prof. Gramlich, Derrick, R. F. Thalman and Ray Ferguson, of the Omaha Journal-Stockman, intend to leave early this afternoon for North Platte for the meeting. They will travel by automobile.

FIRST ALLOTMENT OF CORNHUSKERS SOON EXHAUSTED

Demand Causes Temporary Pause in Distribution Until Tomorrow.

With a demand for 1931 Cornhuskers greater than ever before in the history of this annual student publication, the entire first allotment of over 1,000 was consumed yesterday. Since the heavy run exhausted yesterday's supply, the office will be closed until 1 o'clock tomorrow when a second portion can be obtained from the printer and publisher, according to Edwin Edmonds, business manager.

When the office opened at 8 o'clock yesterday to issue the new books of 536 pages, the entire business staff were kept extremely busy taking receipts and allotting the annuals. Between the hours of 8 and 5 the staff issued approximately two per minute.

The 1931 Cornhusker is acclaimed by the many who have observed it as one of the best and most unusual ever produced by Nebraska students.

One of the several innovations in this new book which has attracted much attention and which has inspired a great number of favorable comments is the theme, "One for all, and all for one," which runs through the book. Opening each section of the entire publication there is the portrayal in various forms of the three musketeers, in the comparison of students and the university of Nebraska, as they cried in the immortal novel of Dumas, "One for all—all for one."

Other changes and additions are the presentation of the fraternity and sorority sections, the enlarged feature section and a humor section which excludes personalities.

The change created in the Greek sections has made possible larger individual pictures and gives the:

PI SIGMA ALPHA TO SECURE SPEAKERS ON POLITICAL PROBLEMS

To bring prominent speakers to the University of Nebraska is one of the chief aims of the newly formed chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha, national honorary fraternity in political science, according to Dr. John P. Senning, chairman of the department of political science. To secure men who will discuss practical politics, both foreign and domestic will create added interest in public affairs among students, he thinks.

Dr. Senning is especially pleased that the movement to form the local chapter of this fraternity came from the students rather than the faculty.

"Since 1922 I've been importuned to start a Nebraska chapter," Dr. Senning said, "and recently a group of students came to me for approval of the plan. I had hoped that the movement would start in this way, for now that the students have undertaken it the responsibility for its success lies with them."

Mrs. Minnie Miller, Whom Gramlich Classes as Best Woman Livestock Breeder in U. S., Visits Ag Campus

By GEORGE ROUND.

Imagine any University of Nebraska coed as a prominent livestock breeder twenty-five or fifty years from today. Perhaps it seems impossible but such may be true. At least Mrs. Minnie Miller of Salt Lake City who recently visited the college of agriculture didn't know she was to become a nationally known livestock breeder when she was going to school.

But today Mrs. Miller is recognized as a national figure in Hampshire shorthorn and Guernsey cattle circles. She came to the college of agriculture to inspect the sheep herd which is under the direction of Prof. A. D. Weber.

When asked how she went into the livestock breeding business, Mrs. Miller modestly admitted she didn't know. Though but middle aged now, she became interested in livestock breeding some thirteen years ago. It didn't take her long to get to the top. She has held the office of president of the National Hampshire Breeders Association for three years and is nationally known for her Guernsey dairy herd.

is Premier Woman.

Prof. H. J. Gramlich, head of the animal husbandry department at the college, describes Mrs. Miller as the premier woman livestock breeder in the United States today. After speaking before an animal husbandry class, boys in the college believe Professor Gramlich is right.

FACULTY SENATE PASSES PLAN FOR NINE DAY EXAMS

Schedule for Final Quizzes Would Be Lengthened Under Change.

TWO SESSIONS PER DAY

Three Hour Periods to Be Held; Utilize Both Saturdays.

A new plan for conducting final examinations to go into effect next semester has been passed by the university faculty senate whereby longer examinations will be given, and the period of scheduled examinations will be lengthened. Students taking five hour courses will be given three hour examinations, while professors in charge of three hour courses may use their own judgment as to whether or not they will give two or three hour examinations.

Replacing the present system which allows one week, beginning Monday and ending Saturday for examinations, the new plan provides for a nine day examination period, making it impossible for any student to have more than two examinations on the same day. Examinations will begin on Thursday and will be concluded on the Saturday of the following week. The Saturdays of both weeks will be utilized for examinations. The schedule of assignments for examinations is as yet tentative but it is certain that nine days will be used for the period of finals.

Many Protests.

The new plan was formulated as a result of protests from both students and faculty members, who disliked the system because it is possible that students may have three and even four examinations in a single day. The senate appointed a committee of which Prof. Thomas M. Raynor was chairman, to investigate the situation. Inquiries made of some of the largest state universities in the country disclosed a tendency to lengthen the period of examinations to more than a year.

Prof. Raynor explains that the new system is not a very radical change, since the only courses which are offered in only a few departments. The individual choice of faculty members will determine how much difference will result in three hour courses which are by far the greatest in number of courses offered.

Quarterly examinations, as now conducted will not be altered unless instructors prefer to dispense with quarters and adopt the longer final examination period. The lengthened period of scheduled examinations will not materially affect any course since it will deprive one hour courses of only one class period and five hour courses of only two.
