UNIVERSITY BEGINS SIXTY-FIRST YEAR OF GROWTH

THE UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA

Sixty years ago Sept. 7 the University of Nebraska was founded. "U" hall was the only structure on the campus at the time. It was at that time a three-story building, the two top sections having been torn down to prevent collapse. James Stuart Dales, present corporation secretary to the board of regents, is the only surviving member of the first graduating class of 20. E. A. Burnett, now chancellor, was brought up from dean of the college of agriculture when Chancellor Samuel Avery became chancellor emeritus a few years ago.

DEBATE CANDIDATES SHOULD SEE WHITE

Debate Seminary Open Only To Those Chosen for Regular Teams.

Students interested in trying out for debate, especially for the international debate with a team of two Turkish students to be held late in October, should see Prof. H. A. White in Andrews hall 122 before they make plans to try for the teams.

Several students have registered for English 96 under the impression that this is the general course for debating. This course, however, is the debate seminary, and is only for those students who have been chosen for members of the debate teams after trying out.

No others are eligible for the course. The members do not register for it until they have been chosen to candidacy for the debate teams.

REGISTRATION STILL RUNNING 500 LOWER

Expected Increase in New Students Fails to Materialize.

4,698 TOTAL BY FRIDAY

Altogether not yet completed, registration Friday evening was still running more than 500 below last year, the expected increase in new students to balance a 280 drop in those returning to school having thus far failed to materialize.

A total of 4,698 had been enrolled Friday night as compared with 5,290 last year, a drop of 552. By Wednesday night at the close of the official registration period 4,474 students had been enrolled; 122 were added Thursday and 102 Friday. In 1930 at the regular close, 4,812 students were enrolled, while on Thursday 361 registered and Friday, 77.

With registration incomplete Friday 343 had been registered at the medical college at Omaha, an increase of twenty-two over last year's figure. Changes in registration will be continued at the assignment committee in the armory this week.

Numbered Slate Photography Is Thrill to Frosh

"Did you get your picture taken?" "Yes, ain't that swell, getting something for nothing?" "Boy, I just can't wait until I see my photo that they took over at the coliseum. I think I'll have a half dozen made if they turn out as good as I believe they are."

These and many other exclamations were heard over at the field house during registration when all freshmen and new students in the university were "snapped" for the records and also for their identification cards.

Some difficulty was experienced with some of the more fair maidens who didn't believe the camera was a camera at all but was just another box. A few were told by upperclassmen it was necessary to have their thumb prints taken for their identification cards but discovered that they were being fooled by the time they got to the improvised photograph gallery.

As usual, the scared and worried looking "frosh" thought they were in jail or some other institution of reformation, what with all the wires and ropes and "guards," and most of them were convinced of it when they had to write their names on a slate and pose beneath two 1500 watt bulbs holding said slate while trying to "look natural."

Some time later in the semester the pictures will be developed and printed and distributed to the students for their identification cards, at which time they will be convinced that they were really photographed. Oh! Disillusionment!

NEBRASKA BEGINS SIXTY-FIRST YEAR ACADEMIC CAREER

J. Sterling Morton Spoke At Inauguration on Sept. 7, 1871.

U HALL LONE BUILDING Campus Grows Enormously Since Chancellorship of A. R. Benton.

The University of Nebraska is turning into its sixty-first year of academic instruction. Sept. 7 marked the sixtieth anniversary of the opening of this institution for it was on that day in 1871, following the inauguration of Chancellor A. R. Benton on the previous day that the doors of University hall swung open for the first time.

When the university was founded, University hall was the only building on the campus. It was then an imposing four story structure with a tower. During these sixty years the upper three stories have been lopped off and all that remains is a one-story stub. In the first University hall housed every department of the university. Today it houses only the school of journalism, the department of romance languages, and three of the publications offices.

The Hon. J. Sterling Morton of Nebraska City, active in the political government of early Nebraska, delivered the principal address at the inauguration ceremony which actually marked the opening of the university sixty years ago. "To-day," he said, "we open wide the doors of the university to the state of Nebraska as a token of perpetual, organized, systematized war against ignorance and bigotry and intolerance and vice in every form among the people of this state and the youth who in a few fleeting years will become its legislators, its judges, and its governors."

CHANGE IN SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED BY BELL

Course on American Indian Replaced by Study of Sea Islanders.

"The American Indian," listed in the catalog as sociology 277 meeting on 11 Tuesday and Thursday, has been dropped from the schedule. The new course, which is offered at the time for which sociology 277 was originally scheduled, meets in social science 105. It deals with the peopling of Oceania, racial and linguistic distributions, and is a vivid and accurate presentation of life in the famed South Seas islands.

Montana Wants Lineman; Cash For Right Man

The University of Montana is evidently badly in need of good linemen. At least, they are willing to put out good hard cash jobs to men who seem to have a bright future in the line.

The University of Nebraska fully realized the situation at the Missouri school when they were given a telegram received by Gall O'Brien, varsity lineman, from Charles Blankenship, former classmate of O'Brien's at South Omaha high school, now enrolled at the University of Montana. Blankenship was a member of the freshman team at Nebraska last fall.

The telegram reads: "Have good cash job, takes care of everything. Stop. Fine country. Stop. If not going to Nebraska or not satisfied there, how about coming out. Stop. Can help on fare. Stop. Getting along fine and like it very much. Stop. Wire reply as soon as possible."

O'Brien has indicated his intention of remaining on the Cornhusker squad in spite of the strong offer from the northern school.

The University of Montana is coached by E. F. "Bunny" Oakes. Nebraska line coach last year.

LISTS SHOW DROP IN RUSH RESULTS

Alpha Phi Accept Thirty-Three to Lead Sororities; Tri Delta Is Second With Twenty-Eight; Kappa Kappa Gamma Close Third.

A. T. O. HEADS UNOFFICIAL FRATERNITY COUNT

Interfraternity Council Must Approve New Affiliates To Men's Houses; Violations of Rules Will Result in Usual Heavy Penalties.

Fraternities and sororities on this campus have dropped the curtain on official rushing and pledges have been tabulated and reported. The official count on sorority pledging shows a drop of nearly fifty over last year when three hundred were taken in. This year the total number of pledges joining sororities amounts approximately to two hundred and sixty. Official count on fraternity pledging will not be available until sometime this week when reports are turned into the Interfraternity council office.

Alpha Phi led sororities in the number of pledges with thirty-three neophytes on the roll. Delta Delta was second with twenty-eight and Kappa Kappa Gamma put the pledge pins on twenty-five for third in numerical honors. A year ago Delta Gamma was high with twenty-six and Delta Delta Delta was second with twenty-five.

Altogether definite results cannot be given for fraternities, since no distinction has been made between holdover pledges and new men. It appears that Alpha Tau Omega ranks high with twenty-nine. This is not official and formal rankings on fraternity pledge lists cannot be made until later in the week.

Fines for Violation of Rules. All pledging is subject to the approval of the Interfraternity council and some changes may be made before the week is over. Violations of rules will result in fines and broken pledges.

The sorority lists are: Evelyn Adams, Omaha; Mary Catherine Vahle, Lincoln; Wynona Bowen, Lincoln; Lenora Chase, Lincoln; Dorothy Clark, Omaha; Jeannette Clark, Omaha; Peggy Combs, Lincoln; Mildred Clark, Omaha; Helma Doherty, Lincoln; Helen Harkness, Omaha; Hazel Jenkins, Davenport; Ruth Jones, Lincoln; Georgia Kimes, Lincoln; Ruth Long, Hastings; Jean Marie, Hastings; Mildred Nelson, Lincoln; Edna Peterson, Lincoln; Mary Jane Porter, Omaha; Bernice Rindell, Wahoo; Arthode Rude, Lincoln; Doris Warner, Beaver Crossing; Alice Wren, Lincoln.

MORE APPLICANTS ARE WANTED FOR COUNTRYMAN JOBS

He is urging others to file for positions.

As previously announced, applications in all three departments have been received in the Cornhusker Countryman office in Ag hall upon the college of agriculture campus. Since no prospective editors are in view for future semesters, Round says it is an opportunity for newcomers to get experience for editorship in the future.

CHEER LEADERS TRY OUT

All Candidates Urged Meet At Vogler's Office Tuesday at 4.

All men interested in trying out for cheer leaders are asked by Robert Kinkead, member of Innocent society in charge of cheer leaders for this year to report to Rudolph Vogler's office in the coliseum at four o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Vogler, director of intramural athletics, has agreed to coach the varsity cheer aspirants.

Kinkead points out that time is growing short with the South Dakota State game scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 26, and he urges those men above the freshman year who are interested in cheer leading to be present at the meeting. Men without previous experience should not hesitate about trying out, according to Kinkead.
