Welcome, You Grads!
Tomorrow the campus will be busy with one of its long standing traditions. Grads will be filing in from all parts of the country to visit their Alma Mater.

Homecoming does not mean the same to the students as it does to the alumni. Students are toiling at their books and struggling with various other tasks.

The students are interested, however, in showing the grads a good time. Greek houses are decorated, and banquets are held.

This year a new idea is being injected into Homecoming. Heretofore, fraternity and sorority parties were held to which only Greeks were invited.

So The Nebraskan says "Welcome Grads." Kosmet Klub had better be on the lookout. The lawyers may get an injunction on the Nebraska Sweetheart presentation.

out to full effect in his daily conduct, which make a man of the fullest living. Edison, as Emil Ludwig remarks in his forthcoming "Gifts of Life," was the "unrecognized King of America."

Yet, the Wizard of Menlo Park has done all this without the so-called higher education as offered by modern institutions of learning.

The Oregon State Barometer wants to know: Is there anything in the world more disheartening than to await three weeks for a date, get it, and then to have the girl decide to go home for the weekend?

Pardon Us, But About This Floor.
There comes a time in the life of every editor when he is moved to disbelieve the oft-repeated and overemphasized axiom, "the power of the press."

Now we have explained; we have deplored, and we have scorned; we have pleaded; we have done all manner of things possible for a mere wielder of the pen can do.

Even though material results were not achieved by all the agitation put forth on this problem, balm to our wounded ego would be easily applied by an answer from someone in authority as to why it would not be profitable or possible to accede to the demand.

It is the policy of faculty, advisers, groups, in fact everyone on the campus to stress good scholarship as the prime goal for every student.

We advocate good scholarship; we advocate floor coverings for the reference library; we are consistent. Other groups who have something to say about the acquisition or lack of floor covering advocate good scholarship; they do not, however, act in regard to promoting conditions conducive to the end in view.

A recent editorial in The Nebraskan mentions that the Cornhusker spirit is bottled up. No doubt Homecoming will see a good number of the bottles opened up.

MORNING MAIL
Quit Muddling.
The cake rides of students around university thoroughfares Thursday afternoon were rudely segmented by baits at stop buttons which have sprung up most obnoxiously over night.

As yet, the traffic situation at the University of Nebraska has not resolved itself into the problem of pedestrian safety. The streets and malls are sufficiently wide as to allow students to cross with ease and safety, with traffic as is.

NEWSPAPER TALK
Humor in the Lecture Halls.
A professor in history injected two jokes into a recent lecture—the first light of humor to break the monotony of this semester.

Y. W. Dancing Classes
Not to Meet Tonight
The Friday night dancing class of the social staff of the Y. W. C. A. will not meet tonight because of the homecoming rally.

FROSH HEAR DR. EICHE

Speaking on the topic, "Men and Women Relationships," Dr. Fred Eiche, eminent Lincoln physician, spoke to the freshman council Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, in the Temple building.

TASSELS WILL FREE A CLOUD OF RED, WHITE BALLOONS ON FIRST NEBRASKA TOUCHDOWN AGAINST K. U. SATURDAY.
Customs! Great things. Everyone thinks so, but some think more strongly than others. The Tassels are not content to remain passive when moments are flying, moments when traditions might be established.

KOSMET PLANS NEW AWARD AT MORNING SHOW
The trophy has been originated to reward the organization working hardest in the show. It is also thought that it will inspire more work among the acts chosen and will create a stronger desire for organizations and others to get acts in the show.

LEDIOYT NAMED TO HEAD PLANS FOR AG FORMAL
Janas, and shapeless felt hats.
The biggest problem has been to abolish automobile accidents, which cannot be as long as university students are allowed to drive cars.

C/O. RALLIES, Prop. L7147, 1234 O St.

The women will strut in gingham dresses and colored aprons. Following the precedent set by those who introduced the custom, the ball will be open only to those actively enrolled in the agricultural college or those who have dates with members who are. The purpose of this ruling, which is very strictly abided by, according to Nash, is to make it one outstanding event of the year which is exclusive to ag students.
