NEBRASKA, IOWA STATE UP IN SIX AS FINALS NEAR

Saturday's Husker-Cyclone Battle Will Name Champions.

KAGGIE HOPES BLASTED

Missouri Pushes Sooners Down When Passing Game Clicks.

By MURLIN SPENCER.

Nebraska continued on its steady march for the Big Six championship with a 6 to 3 victory over Kansas Aggies in the feature game of the week. The Cornhuskers are now tied with Iowa State for first place and the result of this Saturday's game will tell the tale. Missouri beat Oklahoma 7 to 6 in the only other conference game, giving the Tiger its first conference win.

In nonconference games, Iowa State lost to Drake 6 to 7 and Kansas won from Washington university, 28 to 0.

Nebraska's win over the Aggies was spectacular, the Huskers entering the contest as the underdog. There was no question as to Nebraska's superiority, rolling up nine first downs to four and holding the Wildcats' vaunted power attack to a standstill. A seventy yard run by Lewis Brown in the closing minutes of play gave the Huskers their score after a long march down the field had stopped seven yards from the goal line.

Missouri Shows Power.

Missouri rose to their full strength in turning back the Sooners. A pass, Stuber to Bittner, over the Sooner goal line accounted for the Tiger score. Percy Gill kicked the extra point and Missouri held this lead to win her first Big Six game of the year. Oklahoma threw the Tiger into a frenzy when she earned a first down on the Missouri 1-yard line, but three trials at the goal resulted in losing three yards and Schiele wound up in possession of the ball on the last attempt.

Kansas really found herself at last after a long string of defeats when she took Washington 28 to 0. The Jayhawks have gone a long time with a powerful team unable to find itself, and by the looks of things something must have broken Saturday. Page, Schaake, and Carnie Smith were outstanding in the Kansas victory.

Drake Downs Cyclones.

Drake's victory over Iowa State was an upset. Drake took a bad trouncing from Missouri last week, and the Cyclones, contendors for the Big Six title were slated to win hands down. Possibly Iowa State is holding everything in reserve or this Saturday at Lincoln. The highly publicized toe of Dick Grefe failed to come thru in the first period after Duesenberg had plunged for the touchdown and his kick was no good. For three games Iowa State has been the underdog and has upset the dope bucket to win. The first time they are slated

APTITUDE TEST GIVEN TO MEDICAL STUDENTS

Manter Supervises National Association Examination On Dec. 11.

Medical aptitude test of the Association of American Medical Colleges will be given to premedidcal students at the University of Nebraska Dec. 11, in Bessey hall auditorium at 2 p. m. The tests which will require about two hours will be supervised by Prof. H. W. Manter.

The aptitude tests were adopted by the association in October, 1930. They were administered throughout the United States for the first time last year. More than six hundred colleges will give them this year. The previous test contained the following six parts: Scientific vocabulary, premedical information, comprehension and retension, visual memory, memory for content, and understanding of printed material.

A nominal charge of $1 from each student taking it covers the cost of administering the test. All papers are graded by the committee of the association and the results compiled in book form and confidentially reported to the deans of all class A medical schools in America.

The annual tests are used by the admissions officers of the medical schools as one of the criteria in admitting students.

MISSIONARY DOCTOR SPEAKS ON CHINA AT CONVOCATION TODAY

Judd Will Describe Nation's Struggle for Self Government.

China's struggle toward self government will be the subject of Dr. Walter H. Judd, graduate of the University of Nebraska, in an all-university convocation in the Temple theater Tuesday at 11 o'clock.

Dr. Judd has been in charge of a large hospital at Shaowu, China, for the past seven years, and has been given extensive opportunity for observing the recent economic, social and political changes in China. He is acquainted with many of the Chinese political and military leaders, and has several times dealt with various bandit chiefs.

Dr. Judd's experiences during the various upheavals China has undergone make an interesting story. During the revolution and civil war of 1926-27 his hospital was six times commandeered by armies of the region. Threats against his life have been numerous. Recently he was saved from a firing squad only through the timely intervention of a Chinese officer whom he had once befriended.

RIFLES MEET TODAY ON DRESS PROPOSAL

Honorary May Act on Plan To Wear Uniforms to Military Ball.

SPOERRY FAVORS KHAKI

Pershing Rifles will meet tonight to determine whether they will all attend the military ball in uniform, it was announced yesterday. This action is being taken in response to Captain Spoerry's suggestion that all who attend wear uniforms.

Officers in charge of the ball are endeavoring to get as many basic cadets to turn out for the occasion in their uniform as possible. The reasons for such action are two-fold. As given by the captain, the first is to make the event as truly military as possible, since it is sponsored by the R. O. T. C. unit of the university. The second reason is to make it possible for those basic students to attend who cannot afford full-dress attire. In addition they will be able to obtain their tickets 50 cents cheaper if they appear in uniform.

"Last year there were only a few students who wore the basic uniform and those who did declared they felt conspicuous," the captain declared. If Pershing Riflemen go on record as favoring the basic uniform and agree to support such attire for the occasion, other cadets will likewise support such action for they will not be afraid of being one of a few in uniform.

Announce Orchestra Tomorrow

The orchestra which will be the central feature of the major event will be announced Wednesday. One of the six eastern orchestras which the committee on music has been dealing with will be decided upon within the next two days.

Tickets were placed on sale last Friday when all cadets appeared on the campus in uniform. The tickets are of three kinds at three different prices. A ticket of blue will be sold to advanced students of military science for $1.50. Red tickets will be sold to basic students appearing in uniform for $2 and civilians will be able to purchase their green tickets tickets for $2.50.

Both the red and green tickets have been reduced this year. The

HUMOR MAGAZINE SHOWS SLUMP IN NOVEMBER SALES

Renaissance Issue Awgwan Released Monday on Campus.

DISTRIBUTION CONTINUES

Nebraska Comic Will Be on One Stand in Social Science Today.

Sales of the Renaissance issue of the Awgwan, released yesterday, will continue this morning from a single booth in Social Sciences, Robert Lau, business manager, announced at the close of yesterday's distribution. With sales on the campus slow, 1,200 copies of the November humor sheet were distributed on the first day.

About 200 copies, 100 under last month, were sold from four booths on the city campus and at the college of agriculture yesterday, he reported. The drop he believes may have been due to the release of the magazine at the same time the new student directory was placed on sale. He believes today's sales will bring the number up to the same as last month.

Block subscriptions to fraternity and sorority houses remained the same as for October, at 700 copies. Three hundred magazines were placed on sale at Lincoln news stands.

Erickson Writes Feature.

Feature article for the issue is written by Jack Erickson. Under the title "They Weren't So Dumb," he discusses renaissance literature and customs. The cover, designed by Norman Hansan, shows a typical "renaissance period" street scene with persons dressed according to the custom of the time.

A photograph of college life by Dwight Kirsch is the frontispiece. Other art work for the publication was done by Marvin Robinson, editor, and Marjorie Quivey.

A photograph of the Nebraska Sweetheart chosen by a private vote of the law college is shown.

Editorial contributors include Francis Cunningham, Robert Singer, George Dunn, Roger Wilkerson and Lawrence Hall.

EXTENSION TO OFFER NEW TEACHING PLAN

Community Organizations in State May Study History.

EIGHT WILL INSTRUCT

Thru the extension division, the university is now offering study center work in history by members of the department staff to communities in the state, according to a bulletin issued by the extension division recently.

Eight instructors in the history department are teaching these courses, which are being offered in the various towns under the auspices of local elementary and high schools, local colleges, the country superintendent of schools, the American Legion, the Parent-Teacher associations, and similar groups.

The work is conducted in the same manner as the night extension classes, and courses are open to students who desire to receive class credit or to those who desire merely to audit the courses, the bulletin reads.

Have Ffiteen Class Periods.

Fifteen class sessions of two college recitation periods, or 100 minutes, are required, and those registering for credit must meet the regular requirements fo the course, according to the extension division bulletin.

The following courses are being offered by the instructors in the history department: Prof. C. H. Oldfather, "Classical Antiquities and Ancient History"; Prof. F. M. Fling, "History of Civilization," "The World War," and "The Paris

FOUR ANSWER FIRST KOSMET KLUB CALL FOR MUSICAL SHOW

Deadline Not Set; Will Be Soon After Holiday Vacation.

Four persons have answered Kosmet Klub's call for manuscripts for the annual spring musical show. The call was issued late last week. More acceptances are expected shortly by the organization, Dick Devereaux, president, indicated yesterday.

The first call for the manuscripts which was issued last week officially opened the beginning made by the Klub to obtain a play for the spring show.

Altho the definite deadline has not yet been set, it will be shortly after the Christmas holidays, Devereaux declared. If these are any questions any student would like to ask or if there is anyone who already has work to turn in, they should get in touch with Devereaux, if the Kosmet rooms are not open when they call.

The play, conforming to Kosmet tradition, is to be a musical production of three acts, written with the thought in mind that it will be, preferably, a presentation by an all male cast. "Sob Sister," the second of William McCleery's three consecutive productions, was the only play to deviate from Kosmet's tradition of an all male presentation.

No Female Players.

There will be female roles in the play this year as in the past, but they will be portrayed by men.

It is the desire of the Klub that this year's manuscript which is accepted for the spring show be so composed that it take care of a cast of approximately thirty. Fifty dollars will be awarded the person composing the winning manuscript for the spring presentation. This is the same prize awarded to winners of former years.

A number of Nebraska towns have already tentatively agreed to support this year's musical production in its tour of the state during spring vacation. Each year the Klub takes the show on a road trip and play before citizens of the larger towns of Nebraska.

DIRECTORY SELLS HUNDREDS COPIES DURING FIRST DAY

Distribution of Handbook Will Continue Until Saturday.

PRICE IS FIFTY CENTS

Volume Contains Addresses, Phone Numbers and Affiliations.

First day sales of the new edition of the student directory were entirely satisfactory, but several hundred copies still remain to be sold, according to a statement made yesterday afternoon by John Gepson, advertising and sales manager of the handbook.

The sales campaign will continue throughout the week at the booths in social science hall and at ag college, Gepson announced. Copies of the books have been placed in the two book stores, Longs and the Co-op, for sale also.

The supply of directories is limited, James Crabill, editor, reports. Only 2100 copies were printed by the McKelvie Publishing Co. The price of the publication is 50 cents, the same as in former years.

Has 230 Pages

The directory contains about 230 pages, and the cover is white with red lettering. The book contains lists of faculty members, organization presidents, and lists the students of the university alphabetically, according to home towns, and according to fraternity or sorority affiliations.

Sales of the directory were delayed until the Cornhusker annual sales campaign was completed so that there would be no conflict in sales, Gepson announced. Some delay was caused also by the necessity of waiting for some advertising copy.

This year's directory is edited by James Crabill. Associate editors are Dick Moran, Bill Crabill and Frank Jenkins. William Comstock is business manager of the publication. John Gepson is advertising and sales manager, and Milton Mansfield is assistant business manager.

DR. JUDD DESCRIBES CHINESE SITUATION

Missionary Speaks Before Members of Religious Groups.

REV. M'MILLIN PRESIDES

Reviewing the situation in China today and suggesting its needs, Dr. Walter Judd, medical missionary from China who is traveling for the Student Volunteer movement in the United States at present, spoke before a group of fifty at luncheon at the Grand hotel Monday.

Dr. Judd named and discussed five phases of the complex situation. He told of the origin and development of the feeling of nationalism. After speaking of industrialism and the system they employ, Dr. Judd told of the workings of the communist group in China.

All groups which are not sincerely sympathetic with the communistic movement are beheaded, stated the speaker. However, said Dr. Judd, they feel that in killing the members of four great groups they are only destroying one out of every ten citizens. The groups which the Chinese communists feel are detrimental to their progress and force, are the old officials of the government, the new patriotic administrative officials who oppose the communist regime, the capitalists who are those persons in China who saved money to take care of themselves day after tomorrow, and the teachers of religions, stated Dr. Judd.

"At one time a group of college students stated their disapproval of the communist group and were promptly beheaded as soon as their identity could be determined," declared the speaker.

The climax of Dr. Judd's address was his announcement of the national student volunteer convention which will take place in Buffalo, N. Y., from Dec. 30 to Jan. 3. Representatives from many parts of the world will attend the sessions.

Rev. L. W. McMillin presided at the meeting as chairman of the University Council of Religious Welfare which is composed of a faculty, religious workers and students delegation. Members of the Students Volunteer group and representatives from all student religious organizations on the campus were present.

ENGLISH COMEDY OF STAGE OPENS WEEK IN TEMPLE

Players Begin Six-Day Run 'Trelawny of the Wells' Monday Night.

DOROTHY ZIMMER LEADS

Elbridge Brubaker, Zolly Learner Play Star Male Roles.

By RO PIZER.

"Trelawny of the Wells," an amusing four-act comedy by Arthur Wing Pinero, was presented by the University Players Monday evening at the Temple theater. The first act is rather slow moving, but the action picks up in the second act and the play proves to be an entertaining one.

Dorothy Zimmer playing the leading role as Rose Trelawny adds another chapter to her record of good work. She is well suited to the part and plays it with her usual grace and charm.

W. Zolley Lerner takes the part of Sir William Gower, the vice-chancellor. Sir William is the character lead in the play and Mr. Lerner almost steals the show with his very fine intepretation of the exacting old gentleman. Sir William is the source of most of the wit and humor of the show.

Elbridge Brubaker appears opposite Miss Zimmer as the grandson of Sir William, madly in love with the heroine of the piece, Miss Trelawny of the Wells. Dorothy Weaver injects some very lively comedy into the play as Avonia Bunn, a young actress with extremely strong vocal chords.

Tom Wrench, the struggling young playwright-actor is portrayed by Jere Mickel with ease and a great deal of poise. Robert Reade plays Mr. O'Dwyer, the explosive stage director, and an extremely explosive person Mr. Reade turns out to be. Mildred Alexander is Mrs. Mossop, the kindly landlady. Russell Lindskog does a bit of good character work as Augustus Colpoys, the bland gentleman who is the object of fierce jealousy on the part of Ferdinand Gadd, played by Carl Humphrey. Madeline Wostaupal "looks" her part of Mrs. Telfer (Violet). Miss Wostaupal is effective.

Other characters in the play are: Dr. Ralph Ireland as James Telfer, Olive Leuthauser as Imogene Parrott, John Chapman as Mr. Denzil, Mae Ekstand as Miss Brewster, Neil McFarland as the hall-boy, Wesley McDonald as Mr. Mortimer, Lucille Cypreansen as Clara de Foenix, Rolland Martin as Captain de Foenix, Donald Crowe as Mr. Ablett, Pat McDonald as the butler, and Ann Kavich as Sarah.

Wells was formerly a popular mineral spring in Islington, London, situated not far from the better remembered Sadler-Wells theater. This theater was always familiarly known as the "Wells" and still exists. It is this theater about

POOL CONSTRUCTION PROGRESSES SLOWLY

Late Arrival of Materials Causes Delay; To Be Done Dec. 15.

Work on the swimming pool has been progressing rather slowly due to the delay in the arrival of material, but it will probably be completed about Dec. 15, according to Ted Goldammer, foreman in charge of the construction.

Workmen are now employed with the tile work, which is under the supervision of the Cornhusker Tile and Marble company. The pool is to be faced with glazed tile and the ten foot walk around it will be laid with ceramics. Depth indicators will be placed around the pool on the upper edge.

The ceiling has been covered with ceil-tex, into which has been set eight high illumination lights. The large ventilators have also been built into the ceiling. Large, tall windows have been placed around the pool on three sides, and several long radiators have been placed on the east side of the pool.

The shallowest end of the pool will be about four feet deep and the deep end about ten feet in depth. Three diving boards will be mounted at the deep end, two of which will be regulation height and the third mounted on a ten foot tower. All the water that flows into the pool will be filtered by a large filtering plant.

A.W.S. FROSH GROUP MEET

Freshmen Will Participate In Arrangements for Costume Party.

The freshman activities group sponsored by the A. W. S. board met Monday at 4 o'clock in Ellen Smith hall with Marian Smith, president, in charge. Margaret, sponsor of the group, announced the Cornhusker costume party for women which will be held Dec. 11 in the Armory. The freshman group will serve on many committees to plan the affair, according to Miss Upson. It was announced that at the next meeting Bereniece Hoffman president of the A. W. S. board, will explain the point system and how it is enforced.

Colleges Take Depression Seriously; Princeton Cuts Cost of Senior Prom

BY OLIVER DEWOLF

The depression is twisting the Princeton's Tiger's tail. News from the Black and Orange school tells of a drastic price reduction in the annual senior promenade which was held last Friday and Saturday nights. The cost of the music was reduced one-third, and the refreshment costs were clipped 75 percent.

The prom is evidently quite an affair. Two orchestras provided music from 10 until 4 Friday night or Saturday morning and from 9 until midnight Saturday evening. The price of admission was $2.00 per couple, and $1 for stags. In order to bring about this price reduction, the prom committee in conjunction with the university authorities, cut the cost of flowers to one-seventh of the 1930 total, and decreased the number of free tickets, besides reducing the cost of music, and refreshments.

In view of this the University of Nebraska is evidently not the only school cutting down on expenses. The Military Ball has a four-bit cut to its credit just to start the "ball" rolling. However, there is some criticism directed at the military department for not cutting the price down to $2.00 per couple. Many students have expressed the intention of waiting for the orchestra to be announced before buying tickets.

Greeks Here Act.

The recent move of the Interfraternity council and the Pan-Hellenic council to lower the cost of orchestras, and ballroom accommodations was another successful step in the economy program, and now we have a little agitation about walking dates. The Princeton dispatch said nothing about this little innovation, that isn't really an innovation, because girls and boys have walked arm in arm through the moonlight for many years before this article even thought of appearing in print.

One thing is noticeable, however, despite the success or failure of Nebraska's latest move, the universities throughout the country, contrary to public opinion, are cutting down on unnecessary expenses, and really taking an interest in this matter of economy.

Prohibition Officers Contemplate Suppression of Student Directory

News flash—University of Nebraska student directory issued yesterday was in grave danger of being raided. Prohibition authorities noted within its covers a Still. And not only that, but these protectors of Volsteadism uncovered Ales, Brews, Steins, Beer, and a number of Brewers.

A late conversation with officials last night, however, indicated that no action would be taken. The fact that all these things are being kept under cover seems to be a mitigating circumstance.

The honorable name of Johnson leads all others this year in the publication with a total of forty-eight from various parts of the state. The Smiths place second with forty-two. The first name in the book this year is Aakhus and the last is Zutter.

Lack of space seemed to have caused several omissions. Amos is among the first in the book but Andy is not listed. Adam is only half there, too, what with Eve being gone. Probably, however, there are some Lilliths around the campus. John Alden is present, too, but Priscilla and the brave Miles Standish are among those absent. Another reason advanced for these omissions is that the staff wished to avert scandal.

The usual zoo and color chart is included and the list of seasons is complete again this year. There are two Specks in the publication but not a Spot.

There are Upps and Downs, Bridges and Brinks, Brays and Bosses, Gass and Gasswicks, Rocks and Stones, and so forth and so on.

The longest name in the book is Schimmelpfennig and it seems that the famous Mr. A who won the short name contest this summer is in no danger here as the shortest ones are three letter affairs.

A story with a moral is told in three of the names. The short short story runs like this, Wink, Waltz, Walker.

The moral to this story (a moral must be drawn) is that those who know not what they write should not write.
