

CAGE SQUAD ENDS PREPARATION FOR SATURDAY BATTLE

Black Must Depend on New Men in Opener With South Dakota.

LINEUP IS NOT NAMED Sauer, Boswell and Koster Will Probably Not Start Game.

Coach Chaley Black sent his Husker basketball team to a long session Thursday afternoon, using several combinations in scrimmage against each other. With the opening game of the season with South Dakota university only one day away, the Husker coach was still undecided as to his opening lineup.

The addition of Sauer, Boswell and Koster to the squad has helped materially, although it is doubtful if they will be among the starters this week.

Black's material this season consists almost entirely of new, inexperienced men. George Koster, Mutt Davison and Art Mauch are the only men who have had any previous varsity competition. Davison, guard, Mauch, forward, are both making a strong bid for regular positions although they are being pushed hard by Paul Mason, Chuck Scheinost, George Sauer, and Lensen.

Wallis Norton seems to be the logical choice for the center position although Frank Crum and Wischmeier are pushing him hard.

Practice last night was long and concentrated, with every man on the squad getting into action at

Some time or another. Little is known of the South Dakota quintet other than that it was one of the strongest teams in its conference. Nebraska last year edged them out by one point in a fast and exciting game.

With the football season just over, Koster, regular guard, has had little time for practice and it is probable that the starting lineup will be composed mostly of inexperienced men.

Kansas Investigator Reports Grid Sport Comparatively Easy on Team

LAWRENCE, Kas.—Football is not the strenuous game it is sometimes thought to be, according to Dr. James Naismith, professor of physical education at the University of Kansas. Less than one minute in five is used for strenuous play; the other four minutes are times of comparative relaxation, according to Dr. Naismith.

If the total elapsed time, from the kickoff to the final whistle, with all its official time out, time between periods and the like, is considered, the playing time is decidedly small, he says.

Dr. Naismith has made several studies of basketball and football, (activities of teams and of individual players) and based his conclusions on exact measurements of time.

For example, the Haskell-Emoria Teachers game at Haskell

The follow up editorial concerning the football situation at Nebraska was more or less of a retraction for the opening editorial written in Wednesday's Nebraska. Whether the editor intends to back down from his previous belief or whether it is merely a slip is difficult to say.

In Wednesday's editorial the statement was made that "at Nebraska we have the same situation except that our team did not make such a poor showing." In Thursday's issue the editor writes, "The situation as pictured by yesterday's editorial was not a reflection on our own athletic department or its directors. As a matter of fact our situation here is much less painful than in many other schools."

It would seem then that Nebraska has nothing to worry about and that the statement made in the original editorial was unfounded. If the editor continues, however, to hold to his original opinion that football is an advertising scheme for the university and that it is detrimental to the players both in a physical and mental way he will have to furnish more proof for his accusation.

It is difficult to believe that football as it is played at Nebraska could be any different from the game as played in any other school. Aside from the situation of buying players or soliciting men to come to Nebraska, there is no reason to believe that the general situation here is any different from any other part of the country. Therefore if the statements made regarding football do not hold for Nebraska they will not, in most instances, hold for other schools in the nation.

The University of Utah Chronicle carried the following statement in a recent issue:

According to a Washington paper, the Huskies have decided to drop the Utah from their 1932 schedule. The paper explains that the sort of competition afforded by the Utes "is too tough for an opening game and too hard for a breather between conference contests."

In answering the Chronicle said: "Your reasoning is perfectly logical, Washington; we understand. Nevertheless we would have you know that your decision is not an entirely original one. Nebraska felt the same way about a clash with the Crimson."

Utah is making itself more or less obnoxious regarding their estimated football prowess. In their own conference they are world beaters—out of their conference they are only ordinary. Utah played two inter-sectional games this year, losing to the University of Washington, 7 to 6 and losing to Oregon State 12 to 0. Neither of these two teams were noted for exceptional strength, yet they were too much for the Utes. Possibly Utah will get over their conceited idea of themselves now and get back to earth.

Nebraska's basketball team may be seen in action Saturday when the Huskers take on South Dakota university. South Dakota is represented by a strong team this year, almost the same team that held Huskers to a one point margin last year. Coach Black has a lot of potential strength in the squad, but it is doubtful if they will be able to get going until the regular conference season is underway. In other words, Nebraska fans do not need to worry if the Cornhuskers

TUCKER ANNOUNCES EDITORIAL CONTEST

Intercollegian to Sponsor Compet for Work on Disarmament.

An editorial contest, sponsored by the Intercollegiate Disarmament Council, is announced by Luther Tucker, Yale university, chairman of the council. The contest is for the best published student editorial on the subject "How Students Can Help Achieve World Disarmament." The first prize will be forty dollars; second prize, twenty-five dollars, and third prize, ten dollars.

The judges for the contest will be John Finley, Harry Emmerson Fossick, and Florence Brewer Boeckel. The winning editorial will be published in the February number of "The Intercollegian."

The editorial must have been written by an enrolled undergraduate, and must have been printed in a college paper or magazine. No manuscript containing more than five hundred words will be accepted. The editorial must be submitted by the author, and must be in the hands of the editorial contest editor of "The Intercollegian," 347 Madison Avenue, New York, on or before Dec. 21.

PLAN COMMUNION SUNDAY

Newman Club Open Day With Mass Followed by Breakfast.

Communion Sunday plans for the entertainment of members of the Newman club, Catholic student organization, have been completed, according to an announcement made yesterday. Members of the group will meet at the Cathedral, 14th and K, at 8 o'clock for a mass opening the day's event.

Following the early mass, the guests will breakfast at the Cornhusker hotel where a program will entertain the club members. In the afternoon there will be a rally at the Newman club rooms, 1325 R st.

The complete breakfast program includes:

- Piano solo by Miss A. Krebeck.
- Introductory, Charles Pierce, Jr.
- Dance by Clark twins.
- "Prayers of a Catholic Student in the State University," Miss Loretta Granzer.
- Vocal solo by Lyle DeMoss.
- Benefits Derived from the Newman Club," Francis Higgins.
- Piano solo by Francis Sherman.
- Speech by Rev. Anthony Grzeser, chaplain.

The club invites mothers of club members, active and alumni to the various events scheduled for the annual Communion Sunday ceremony.

Football is commercialized and football is an advertising scheme at the University of Nebraska and in the United States. The players themselves resort to the playing of football because they enjoy the game or because the playing of football is a means of access to university life and to a university education.

The idea that football players and those connected with football are the only ones that can talk competently on the subject is not only fallacious but idiotic. Football is like anything else; it has a good and bad side. The good side has been flooded and praised, the bad side has been condemned.

Football gives exercise and physical training to those who do not need it anyhow. Character building is extraneous to football itself. Football players are no more moral than anyone else. They have no more strength of character than anyone else. They are good and bad and indifferent. The idea that football teaches co-operation and co-ordination is correct. But how much of this is carried over from the gridiron to day life? Again I say that football players don't co-operate in extra-gridiron activities any better than anyone else. Football may have an influence upon the participants of the sport but it isn't noticeable. If you recognize a football player it isn't because of his strength of character.

Football supports the other sports. That's fine, but did the other sports flourish before football became the patron saint? I think so. If the other sports cannot be carried on without the help of the proceeds derived from football, the game may be justified.

I wouldn't go so far as to say that there is out and out subsidization of Nebraska. There is a germ of it, though. If a football player
