

FROSH CAGESTERS CHALK UP WIN IN FIRST SEASON GO

Take Initial Tilt From Ag Quintet by 26 to 13 Score.

FAHRENBRUCH IS HIGH

Makes Three Field Goals; Parsons and Wahlquist Work Smoothly.

Coach Browne's freshman cagers doubled the score on the Ag College freshmen to win the first game of the season 26 to 13, on the coliseum court Tuesday afternoon. Both coaches substituted frequently throughout the game in order to give as many men as possible a chance to play. "Tater" Fahrenbruch was the high point man of the game with three field goals.

Try Center Post.

Gordon Eno, former College View basketball player; Belka of Crete, and Eisenhart of Culbertson, divided the majority of time at center. At the guard positions, Eldridge of Norfolk, and Fahrenbruch of Crete worked together nicely. Funky, of Gary, Ind., guard, showed up quite well while in the game.

According to Coach Browne, about sixty men are reporting for the frosh squad. Besides those mentioned before, Bier, of Lincoln, MacDougal, of South Dakota, Barnes of Lincoln, Wampler of Lincoln, Kosman of Omaha Benson, Sorensen and Taft, have been showing up well during practice. No other games have been scheduled for the remainder of the year, although it is likely that the two frosh teams will meet again before the season is over. The starting lineup of the teams:

The Growler

BY HARRY FOSTER.

Religion is one of the most touchy subjects in the world to argue about, it's also one of the most interesting. The idea that a person's own belief constitutes the one and only religion is one of the worst assumptions that can be made in life. It is the breeder of intolerance and persecution.

Religion and church denominations are differentiated. A denomination is merely the belief of one or a group of individuals. Therefore these beliefs are subject to the same fallacies that man himself is.

The competition between churches is cutting the throat of religion. People constantly associate the two as one and the same.

The material, rather than spiritual work of the church is accentuated too much. Each church tries to build a better and bigger House of God than its rival. Ministers are hired for the sole purpose of handling the program for the erection of such "Temples of Midas."

This isn't religion. "Where love is, there God is also." The humblest of churches will serve as a place of worship as adequately as will the most palatial of cathedrals. A financial burden is placed upon the shoulders of the congregation and a man refuses to give until it hurts, he is branded as being un-Christian.

Modern civilization, with its tarnished hands is wrecking the humility in religion and is hurting the belief in religion. The structures, instead of being built upon rock, are being constructed upon jealousy.

The ascetic value of such structures as are being edified does not justify the motives behind the erection. People brag about the new half million church that they attend. Everywhere we find churches disregarding the doctrines that they preach.

"The mind is its own place..." says Milton. Worship of God can be carried on in such structures but the harm done in keeping the church holy is a blight upon the name of religion. The competition between churches, in building and in accumulating the largest attendance should stop. It places the church upon the level of our materialistic age.

The belief in God, as the symbol of perfection, will endure forever. The interpretation of religion, what I have called denominations or sects, must suffer and bear the mutilations that society inflicts upon it.

The address will be the second in a series on the general topic of "Crucial World Situations," according to C. D. Hayes, secretary of the university Y. M. C. A.

at the start of the second half and with only three minutes of play gone came within two points of tying the score. Koster pulled one of the most sensational plays of the evening in breaking up a high Jayhawk pass and dribbling down the floor for a basket. Johnson came in with two contributions and tied up the score at 19 all.

Henriou added two more points for Nebraska, followed by Mason with a charity flip. From then on it was Kansas most of the way. Harrington, Johnson and Page started the fireworks for Kansas which ended after they had acquired a 12 point lead. Nebraska failed to count during this time.

Then came the fill, Mason for the Huskers with Brownley for the Jayhawkers shooting the works, but the game ended with the Huskers on the low end of the score, 31 to 34.

Men Warned as Women Play Leap Year Attack on Prerogatives of the Male

The season is open. The hunted creature turns and relentlessly pursues the hunter. Leap Year is upon us.

For the benefit of coeds and fair instructors whose thoughts may wander toward members of the University staff, the "Pigger's Guide" has been consulted to discover who is and who isn't eligible. The survey brought out the fact that there are but twenty eligible men, so competition is apt to be keen. However, a brief mention of the possibilities should be of value.

Are you interested in music and the arts? Louis Artau and Dean John J. Landsbury of the school of music, and Fraser Brownell, instructor in interior design, are unattached, according to our authorities.

Or do your interests lie in the fields of political or social science? Prof. Waldo Schumacher and James D. Barnett of the political science department, and John H. Mueller, associate professor of sociology, are listed as unmarried.

Several members of the English department are eligible, but the mortality is somewhat high, for we will be made next spring at the Bomb Beauty dance, shortly before the publication of the book.

LACK OF MEN FACES AMES TRACK MENTOR

Only Seven Veterans Are Available to Coach Bob Simpson.

AMES, Ia., Jan. 12.—Bob Simpson, Iowa State college track coach, is faced with the most perplexing problem of his coaching career this winter in developing an indoor track team that will compare with the Cyclone teams of past years.

With but seven lettermen returning Simpson is forced to build his team largely with men inexperienced in intercollegiate competition. To make his problem more acute, four of the seven lettermen available are candidates for the distance events and three are dash men, leaving all of the field and hurdle events open to new men.

The Cyclone team is best fortified in the distance events, since Nagel, Eichelkraut, Chapman and Labertow, all veterans, and Duncan and Chisholm, sophomores, are reporting. Labertow, however, will take things easy for some time because of a broken leg suffered in the final two mile team race at Nebraska last fall.

Nagel and Labertow were two of the flashiest half-milers in the conference last spring, the latter breaking the Big Six meet record with a time of 1:55.4.

The other three veterans reporting are Wells, dash man, and Wessling and Henderson, quarter-milers. Around these three men Coach Simpson hopes to build a crack mile relay team.

The graduation of Bob Hager has left the hurdle events wide open.

Coach Simpson this week sent out a call for more candidates, stressing the fact that the opportunity of making good never was any better in the history of Iowa State. He pointed out that many Cyclone track stars, among them Ray Conger, Ray Putnam, Hubert Meier, Bob Hager and others who won state and national recognition, had had no track competition before matriculating at Iowa State.
