Judging Pavilion, as Repaired After Fire, Improvement Over Old Building

It may be a good thing that Puss, the cat, was forced to make a quick landing without a parachute from the flaming judging pavilion on the college of agriculture campus for today the animal husbandry department occupies the newly repaired building which rivals any on the campus. The judging pavilion today resembles a more recently erected structure rather than the old dilapidated building which the department formerly occupied.

The new building or more correctly stated the recently repaired structure has four classrooms and the judging arena. All have modern equipment. New chairs occupy each room. Three of the four classrooms are located on the second floor of the building while the other is on the first floor, adjoining the judging arena.

About the only thing that is lacking in the new building is the life-size steer who formerly occupied one of the classrooms on the second floor. He was at one time a big winner in the international livestock show and later was mounted for exhibition purposes. Too, Puss and Puss, the cats, are missing from the judging pavilion. Nebraska students will recall that they were heroes of the fire which swept thru the building last spring. Jumping from the second story.

Guards—Glen Justice, Fred Hunt, Lloyd Anfin. Historian—Leroy Askwig. Marguerite Hollenbeck, Alpha Omicron Pi, and Bill Karns, Beta Theta Pi, passed the candy Monday evening.

John F. Hansen, Alpha Tau Omega pledge Lincoln, and Imogene Saunders, Kappa Alpha Theta, are among those who have passed the candy.

Chi Omega mothers will postpone the tea which they were to have at the chapter house Tuesday afternoon until Feb. 9.

Cornhusker pictures are now being taken at Hauck's, 1216 O St.—Adv.

The Growler BY HARRY FOSTER.

Derbs may come, and derbs may go, but the law derby is gone forever (sayeth the criers). This irreparable loss, as the dean calls it, has been laid at the door of the school of journalism, or to be more specific the Daily Nebraskan or to be still more precise a certain reporter.

When cross examined by the larval ambulance chasers the reporter was thrown into a dilemma and about tossed out of the moon. The fundamental underlying common law, i. e. a man is innocent until proven guilty, was overlooked by the gentlemen of THE profession.

Too abashed to admit that the engineers had pulled a fast one, they immediately tried to accuse innocent typepeckers of the crime in question. There's no justice. Circumstantial evidence! Words, just words!

The leap year party of the Mortar Boards is a good idea if the girls don't expect too much in return for their pecuniary expenditures. Take the boys up to the door when the light flickers, fix all punctures and engine trouble, omitting horrible language. Don't expect too much of him if it is his first date. Don't get the jitters or sing fraternity songs to the tune of "Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching." If the boy orders a mait and a tridecker sandwich don't start commenting on the large house bill this month. If he sees some perfume that he wants, buy it, he probably needs it worse than you do. If he has that "red stuff" all over his finger nails keep thy peace. And so far into the night...

A harbinger! The storm approaches. Man the boats, a typhoon is phooning its way. This week is the week before the week to come. There comes a time in every man's semester when the books must be opened. The proper psychological attitude is a necessary thing for every student to have as he descends into the maelstrom of examinations. The most essential thing is confidence. Patience, diligence and perseverance are necessary. The failure of examinations to same floor, W. W. Derrick and Ed Janke of the agricultural extension service are also offered there. Nat Tolman occupies another office. Downstairs the Block and Bride club has its old room, located to the southwest. It, however, has none of the ugly features of the old room but is new and up to date.

The Mortar Board's leap year party to be held in February. But consider the poor coed who would have to hire a car to taxi clear out to the college for her date, take him to the coliseum, feed him and take him home. The cost would be excessive, so many fellows are planning on meeting the girls half way. It is said that George Dunn, senior student in the school of journalism, is getting to be quite the columnist. At least authority tells us that he's scribbling off a column or six every week for a weekly at Pierce, Neb. But no one has been able to figure out the title of his column yet. It is even hard to remember.

Contract to let for addition to nurses' building. (Continued from Page 1.) for these buildings, although the cost will probably be less than the allotted amount, present figures indicate.

The university class shop laboratory at Curtis, maintained in connection with the university, is now the scene of the erection of a new $20,000 shop building. Tentative plans are now under consideration, according to Seaton, for building a new seed house and laboratory at the agricultural college. $40,000 are left from the original appropriations and will be used for this addition. The building will be of such material as to harmonize with the present buildings out there now. It is to be used as an experiment station where seeds and grains will be brought in, assorted, and tested. The girls dormitory will be completed about the July 1, and ready for occupation as the fall school terms opens in September.

HAYSEED and HAYWIRE By GEORGE ROUND

With both Nebraska and Kansas out for blood in the junior livestock judging contest held at Denver Saturday, most anything is apt to happen. Both schools have won two legs on a large trophy and need but another single win to gain permanent possession. Prof. M. A. Alexander of Nebraska feels confident that the Cornhusker team members will give a good account of themselves.

Times really must be getting bad out in the state. Just recently a northwestern Nebraska farmer offered to deed a quarter section of South Dakota land for a carload of feed for his dairy cattle. With practically no crop during the past year, farmers in that end of the state are resorting to many methods in order to keep what few animals they have left.

The newspaper reports of the drought area conditions may not be correct, a dispatch from Cedar county recently declared that residents of a portion of that district are killing their hogs and horses for meat consumption. The hogs would, in all probability, be suitable for table use but for most families the horse would be black balled.

People who have traveled, however, tell us that the Belgian people eat horse meat most every day of the year and maintain it is a palatable food.

Most college of agriculture men students are said to be in favor of the Mortar Board's leap year party to be held in February. But consider the poor coed who would have to hire a car to taxi clear out to the college for her date, take him to the coliseum, feed him and take him home. The cost would be excessive, so many fellows are planning on meeting the girls half way.
