

HUSKER QUINTET MEETS CYCLONES IN GAME TONIGHT

All-Sophomore Lineup Will Start Against Ames in Coliseum Tilt.

DAVISON BACK IN SHAPE

Veteran Guard Expected to Play Tonight; K-Aggies Beat Iowa State.

STARTING LINEUPS.

Nebraska—Lunney, Buswell, Cople, Barger, Mason.
Iowa State—(?) Roadman, Thompson, Heirman, Hawk, Huske.
Referee: E. C. Quigley, St. Mary's.

By Joe Miller.
An all-sophomore lineup will probably get the starting call for Nebraska tonight against the veteran Iowa State quintet, Coach Charles Black indicated Saturday. The Cyclones, who were turned back 19 to 15 by Kansas State

Frosh Must Report To Win Cage Awards

Freshmen who expect to earn their basketball numeral must report at least three times per week until the end of the season.
W. H. BROWNE, Freshman Coach.

Saturday night meet the Huskers on the coliseum boards at 8 o'clock in the final game of their current road jaunt.
Unless a last minute change occurs, the Cornhusker mentor plans to start Ken Lunney and Hub Buswell at the forwards, Lee Cople at center, and Paul Mason and Jerry Barger at the guard positions.

The tilt against the Ames outfit will signalize the return to the team of Minot "Mutt" Davison, who has been laid up with a broken hand since the exhibition games during the Christmas holidays. The scrappy Davison was the leading point getter for the Scarlet during the pre-season games, alternating between forward and guard. There is a possibility that he may start in place of Barger at a guard position.

Koster Out.
George Koster, guard, will see the game from the sidelines, as he has not yet recovered from an ankle injury received in the Oklahoma game. There is little likelihood that George Sauer will get into the fray, the blonde forward still suffering from his leg injury.

He did not suit up for practice Saturday.
Norton, who showed up so well against the Sooners, is expected to see plenty of action tonight, as Kurt Lensen and Art Mauch, the leads who led the basket assault against the Oklahoma team. Walt Henrion is also expected to be in there against the Iowa Staters.
Jack Roadcap, flashy Cyclone captain, was held to a single field goal by the Kansas State guards, the scoring burden falling on Al Heitman, center, who scored ten points. It was the work of Boyd, Kansas State guard, that spelled defeat for Coach Menze's team. Ames was leading 15 to 14 with six minutes to play, but Boyd sank two goals and a free throw to clinch the game for his team.

COMPANY 'G' TAKES CADET TRACK TITLE

Victors Nose Out Company 'D' in Close Race; Two Records Set.

Company G tallied 2,831 points to cop first place in the R. O. T. C. track meet completed last week, it was announced Saturday. Company D, ahead until the last two events, the high jump and 256 yd. run, was forced to accept a tie for second and third with Headquarters company. They piled up a 2,804 point total. In fourth and fifth places were Company F and Company M.

Company D had an eight point lead over the winners at the completion of the first four events, but the G company athletes forged ahead with averages of 4 feet 5 inches in the high jump and a time of 36.5 in the 256 yd. run.
Two new records were set up by cadet trackmen this year. William Green heaved the shot a distance of 40 feet 5 inches while Heye Lambertus and Harold Petz both stepped the 50 yd. low hurdles in 6.3 seconds, clipping three-tenths off the meet record.

Outstanding performances included marks of 5.8 seconds in the 50 yd. dash and 6.5 seconds in the low hurdles. Carlyle Staab, John Roby and Heye Lambertus were the trio who came within a tenth of a second of Jerry Lee's sprint mark of 5.7 seconds.

CHIH HSIEN YAO, HALL HUANG, CHINESE STUDENTS, DISCOURAGED OVER THE DARK FUTURE FACING THEIR NATIVE COUNTRY.

"But it can't do everything." As an after thought, he added, "I couldn't say these things in China. They (the Koumintang leaders) have killed students and professors for saying less."

Claim People Suppressed.
The Koumintang rose to power in China because of promises to make the country a unified state. Once dominant, however, it forgot its promises, established a virtual dictatorship, and suppressed the people as before, the student's declare.

Now even the Koumintang is in disagreement, the students say. It is divided into three factions, each with a program of Chinese nationalism that is more imagined than real, in their opinion. But the Chinese people are not allowed to voice their beliefs.

Because the people are so poor, because China is without adequate arms and because opposition to the Koumintang means death, little immediate hope for China is held by Yao and Huang.

They look with hope to the rise of socialism—which they say is not tied up with Russian propagated communism—but which is a movement growing out from the masses. But before socialism can achieve its purposes, more internal strife will be necessary.

Huang and Yao believe that the Koumintang leaders have acceded to the Japanese without more protest for fear of their own power. They realize that if their armies were wiped out by fighting, they could not get others from the Chinese people to obey their command. And without their armies they could not keep the Chinese masses in subjection, the students here declare.

That is why the Chinese army in Manchuria receded without fighting on various occasions. The generals feared for their personal futures if their forces were killed.

Preparing to Teach.
Huang and Yao admit that a vigorous nationalism is lacking among the Chinese, but they do not believe China will always be subservient to foreign interests. They believe that education can do more than anything else for their homeland and they are preparing themselves to teach, accordingly.

Huang, who has been attending the North Central college near Chicago, is enrolling in business administration at the university. Yao is taking political science.

Yao has been here nearly two years now. When he came he could not utter a single word of English though he had a slight reading knowledge of this language. Now he is able to read anything but both he and Huang, who has been in the United States a little longer, find it difficult to choose American words in their conversation.

They are the only two native Chinese students at the University of Nebraska.

MORITZ POINTS OUT DEPRESSION EFFECTS

compensating advantages. There has never been a time in the history of our schools when conditions were more favorable for raising professional standards. The over supply of well qualified teachers furnishes school officials the opportunity to raise their local requirements and employ more efficient and better trained teachers without incurring additional cost.

"The necessity for reduced expenses forces educators to examine the curricula of the school with a view to discovering what is essential and what may be eliminated. It forces administrators to study with even greater attention the economical operation of the school plant. It may even go so far as to force on the attention of the public the whole question of the sources of school revenues. And should a demand be created for a study of the equitable distribution of the burden of support of public education, we might find that we have not only made great progress in education but also solved our tax problem, since school expenses constitute the greatest single item of taxation."

"The problems of the teaching profession and of public education," Director Moritz concluded, "need careful and critical thinking before the situation becomes complicated by impulsive action, always a danger in times of depression. Make haste slowly" is an old platitude which we should be willing to heed."
