Since last semester many students have been waiting for some group to assume leadership in a cause which merits the closer attention of every campus organization. The activities conference, as the meeting has been titled, will fulfill this need if organizations will make a positive response.

The conference will attempt the following things, according to Richard Devereaux, president of the Innocents society, who will have charge of the meeting.

"We are aiming not only toward the fulfillment of present campus needs as concerns things extra-curricular, but we are pointing toward the future as well. Another article in the agricultural publication this month tells of the experiences of Mitrofan Afanasieo, a graduate student from the Soviet country, in Russia.

Among other features the magazine includes an article dealing with the work of Phil Baker for the United Fruit company in Central America, by John McClean, and another relating the experiences of one of the professors on the campus as a forest ranger in the Cache regions, written by Bill Ralston, associate editor of the Countryman.

Awgwan Campus Sale Cleans Stands by Wednesday Afternoon.

EXCEEDS EXPECTATIONS

New Features of Magazine Meet Approval; More Copies Not Planned.

A complete sellout of the February issue of the Awgwan was registered yesterday. Editor Marvin Robinson stated Wednesday. This month's issue moved off the stands very quickly and the supply failed to meet the demand. Temporary plans for the printing of additional copies have been abandoned.

"We expected to continue the sale Thursday but the entire supply was wiped out today and no attempt to further the sale of this issue will be made although it is quite possible that copies will be printed to supply the newstand sale which was curtailed to fill the campus demand," said Mr. Robinson. "The campus quota was sold out early Wednesday afternoon and greatly exceeded previous expectations," explained the editor.

The February Awgwan met the campus approval with a number of new features and alterations in form. The cover drawn by Norman Hansen carries out the Valentine motif and a number of short articles and features are outstanding.

A new department, Campus Tempo, is one of the leading features in this issue. Another new feature, the "Campus Calendar", contains some unusual material.

Other short articles and material include: The Barb's Lament, the Daily Gripaskan by Theta Sigma Phi, What is This Thing (Continued on Page 4.)

DOCTOR SENNING OF POLITICAL SCIENCE DEPARTMENT FAVORS LAME DUCK BILL

Voicing his opinion on the "lame duck bill" that is now before the present session of congress, Dr. J. P. Senning, head of the department of political science, characterized the bill as a "very distinct step in the right direction."

The lame duck amendment is one introduced by Senator Norris of Nebraska, providing for the meeting of congress after the election. At present, the newly elected congressmen may not take office until thirteen months after the election.

This, according to Dr. Senning, is a situation to be deplored, as the lame duck congress does not represent the people because of the many defeated candidates. Their attitude will not be the same as the newly elected candidates on certain bills and the fate of important measures is likely to be affected. Then, too, they are open to the influence of outsiders and thereby legislation will be hindered.

PROM PROCEEDS GO TO CHARITY

Committee Announces Novel Plan for Closing Formal Event of Season; Ticket Prices, Reduced by $1, Set at 1.50 This Year.

FACULTY TABOOS OUT OF TOWN ORCHESTRA

Local Bands Promise Cooperation With Charity Plan; University Grants Free Use of Coliseum; Pasteboards Go On Sale Soon.

Proceeds from the annual Junior-Senior prom, traditional closing event of the campus formal season, will go for charity to be used for relief in the drouth stricken areas of northern Nebraska, it was announced following a meeting of the prom committee Wednesday afternoon.

"The committee feels that the students are willing to do their bit toward relief," William Devereaux, co-chairman of the committee, stated. "Students are being helped thru the support of the university by the state and may, in a measure, show their appreciation."

"The prom will be as much a tradition as it ever was," he continued, "but the objective will be much more worth while if we can give for a charitable cause."

The prom will be held in the coliseum Saturday, March 5. The university, co-operating with the committee, has granted the use of the building free of charge for the dance.

In keeping with the general idea of the prom, negotiations have been carried on to secure full co-operation from local orchestras to carry out the charity aspect. The orchestras seemed willing to help as much as possible, subject to the approval of the musicians' union.

Tickets Reduced.

Several nationally prominent orchestras had been considered for the affair, it was announced at the committee meeting, but the faculty committee refused to allow an out-of-town orchestra to be booked.

Tickets for the prom will go on sale within a few days. Several campus organizations have promised support in the sales campaign which will probably start some time next week. The price will be only $1.50, a reduction of one dollar in the usual price of the prom.

The feature attraction of the prom will be the presentation of the prom girl, who will be elected that night from a group of five candidates chosen by the student body at large in a general election. Elaborate plans for the presentation are being worked out.

MRS. HINMAN TALKS AT FORUM LUNCHEON

Possibilities of Disarming Treated by Speaker at Wednesday Meet.

"We live in an age when it is possible to inform ourselves upon what national action should be taken without engaging ourselves in a war," said Mrs. E. L. Hinman, active member of the League of Women Voters and recognized authority on the question of disarmament, in a speech before the World Forum luncheon Wednesday noon.

Disarmament as a possibility, was the theme of the talk. Mrs. Hinman defended the League of Nations in all the actions which it has taken in the past, and especially the attitude that it has assumed during the present Chinese-Japanese crisis.

"Many people object because the league has done little more than send messages to the two opposing armies," continued Mrs. Hinman, "and still China and Japan continue their battle despite this interference. Yet if it wished, the league could bring a similar criticism against the United States. It could honestly assert, that we have also corresponded with Japan with no results," continued the speaker.

She called attention to the peace conferences of the past, and the beneficial results which accrued from each. The Washington peace conference abolished the Anglo-Japanese alliance and put the Anglo-American Japanese alliance in its place.

Among the other important movements for peace was the Locarno pact, which consisted of an alliance between Germany, France and Czechoslovakia the Briand-Kellogg pact which labelled war as an international crime and the London conference.

"It has been asserted," said Mrs. Hinman, "that the London conference achieved nothing, but it has whittled out a scheme by which the naval force of any nation can be measured."

In conclusion, Mrs. Hinman summed up the purpose of the present disarmament conference at Geneva. "War at the present time," she said, "is a threat to all of the ideals and securities which we now enjoy. It is for you, the younger generation, to prove that armament is vain, and that the peaceful security of our nation can be maintained only thru arbitration and disarmament."

DEFENDS LEAGUE ACTS
