PRICE FIVE CENTS

NEGOTIATE WITH TWO ORCHESTRAS FOR PROM PARTY

No Definite Decision by Committee as to What Bands Will Play.

PROCEEDS FOR RELIEF

Committee Reduces Price And Pledges Profit to Drouth Area.

According to Art Pinkerton, chairman in charge of the orchestra arrangements for the Junior-Senior Prom, there has been no definite decision reached as to the orchestras that will furnish the music for the party. Negotiations are being carried on, and it is expected that a definite announcement concerning the music will be made early next week. Two local orchestras will probably be used.

Proceeds from the prom, the closing event of the university formal season, will go to charity to be used for relief in the drouth-stricken areas of northern Nebraska. The prom will be held in the university coliseum Saturday, March 5. University officials have granted the use of the building free of charge for the dance.

Tickets for the prom will go on sale within the next week, it was announced by Howard Allaway Saturday. Many campus organizations have promised their support in the sales campaign, he said. The tickets will sell for $1.50 per couple, a reduction of one dollar in the usual price for the event.

Presentation of the prom girls is the climax of the program will be the feature attraction of the prom. The prom girl will be elected the night of the dance from a group of five candidates chosen last week by the student body at large in a general election.

"A new and elaborate method of presenting the prom girl is being worked out," according to Jane Axtell and Jack Thompson, in charge of decorations.

Five Nominated.

Candidates nominated at the polls last Tuesday are: Virginia Pollard, Nebraska, Chi Omega; Harriet Nesladek, Omaha, Alpha Omicron Pi; LaVerle Herman, Nickerson, Gamma Phi Beta; Loraine Lallman, Arapahoe, Alpha Xi Delta, and Louise Cogswell, Alliance, Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Students interviewed concerning their opinions of the charity idea unanimously agreed that it is a splendid attitude for the prom committee to take. "People throughout the state are demanding that money be spent carelessly, and the students are co-operating to the fullest extent," states Art Wolfe, editor of the Daily Nebraskan.

Art Mitchell, business manager of the Awgwan, agreed. "It certainly displays the right spirit on the part of college students in their attempt to aid the less fortunate," he stated.

"To Be Outstanding."

Otis Detrick, Cornhusker editor, declared it was the best idea of the year. Marvin Robinson, editor of The Awgwan, says the reduction in the price of tickets is charity to no small degree. Chalmer Graham, assistant business manager of the yearbook, stated the assurance that profit would go to the drouth-stricken areas should encourage students to attend.

"The prom will be as much a tradition as ever," was the opinion of William Devereaux, co-chairman of the committee, "but the objective will be much more worthwhile if we give the receipts to charity. Students are being helped through the support of the university by the state and may, in a measure, show their appreciation."

He added that the move will foster a better feeling between the university and the people of the state. "We plan to make this party one of the most outstanding junior-senior proms ever held at Nebraska," he said.

Cuneo Writes of the Argentine; Says Promising Future Economically and Socially; Fears Internal Dissention

Editor's Note: Following the recent election of a new president of the Argentine republic the Nebraskan has asked James A. Cuneo, a member of the faculty who was born and raised there, to discuss the political situation in that country.

By JAMES A. CUNEO,
Instructor in Economics.

There are in Argentina three main social classes: (a) the big land owners or latifundistas, aristocratic, wealthy, conservative; (b) the middle class, cosmopolitan, moderately well-to-do, represented by the descendants of successful immigrants arrived to the Argentine shores in the last seventy years or so; and (c) the organized labor class of the cities.

In accordance with these classes—which are by no means hermetically sealed compartments—Argentina has three outstanding parties: the Conservative, the Radical and the Socialist. The Conservatives ruled until 1916 when, thanks to the adoption of the free and secret ballot, the Radicals (radical used in the sense of liberal) were able to win for the first time the presidency of the republic. Hipolito Yrigoyen was the first to be elected by the Radicals. His presidency lasted from 1916 to 1922. In 1922 another Radical, Marcelo T. de Alvear became Yrigoyen's successor and remained in power until the end of 1928. His minister of war

DR. KOO WILL SPEAK IN LINCOLN FEB. 27

Chinese Representative to Address Y.M. and Y.W. Luncheon.

TICKETS COST A QUARTER

T. Z. Koo will speak on "The Chinese Situation Today" at a luncheon meeting at the Grand hotel at 12 o'clock Saturday, Feb. 27. The meeting is under the auspices of the University Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. Tickets are twenty-five cents each and are obtainable at the offices of the two christian associations in the Temple and Ellen Smith hall.

Dr. T. Z. Koo graduated from St. John's university (Protestant Episcopal), Shanghai, China. He then served nine years in the administrative department of the Chinese railway service. From 1918 to 1921 he served on the staff of the national committee of the Young Men's Christian Association of China, with special responsibilities toward the schools, colleges and universities, to which later were added the cultivation of better international relations. In 1925 he was a member of the second optimum conference called in Switzerland by the League of Nations, being one of three chosen by Chinese people through thirty-four organizations, including the Chamber of Commerce, the Association for the Advancement of Education, the Red Cross society and the Overseas union. Of his standing at Geneva, the North China Daily News reports: "It is strictly true to say that in Mr. Koo's speech the voice of the prophet broke in where the voice of the diplomat and expert ruled, and that the prophet was in his grip on the ultimate realities and in his statesmanship, a finer diplomat and expert than they."

That year Mr. Koo was elected general secretary of the World Alliance of the Young Men's Christian Association.

POLLS WILL OPEN TUESDAY IN COED ANNUAL ELECTION

Mortar Board Candidates to Be Voted On; Name May Queen and Maid.

STRICT IN REQUIREMENTS

Should Consider Leadership, Scholarship and Service; Results Secret.

Candidates for Mortar Board for next year and the 1932 May Queen and her maid of honor will be elected Tuesday, Feb. 22 in the parlors of Ellen Smith hall and the Home Economics building on the agricultural campus will be open between 10 and 2 o'clock.

Only senior women will be eligible to vote for Mortar Board candidates, and they will be instructed to vote for not less than five nor more than 20 junior women. These 30 women who poll the highest number of votes will be those from whom the present chapter of Mortar Board will select its successors.

According to Jean Rathburn, the president, senior women should be sure to vote within the required number, because no votes containing less than 5 nor more than 20 names will be counted.

List Requirements. The first requirement for membership in Mortar Board is scholarship, according to the ruling as made by the national organization. The local standard set for the Nebraska chapter is an average of eighty for all previous semesters, and a record clear of all conditions incompletes or failures.

To the fulfillment of this requirement, the list of the 30 girls polling the greatest number of votes will be checked for scholarship at the office of the registrar, and anyone not meeting the requirement will be eliminated from the original list of 30.

The second consideration upon which the selection of future Mortar Boards is based is a girl's participation in extra-curricular activities.

PROFESSORS RECEIVE SPECIAL RECOGNITION

American Association Select Books by Dr. Weaver And Dr. Pool.

IN BOTANY DEPARTMENT

Two University of Nebraska professors and one former faculty member received recognition for their work when three of their books were selected by a committee from the American Association for the Advancement of Science. This committee was appointed to compile a list of important books on science for distribution to the American public and in this group were listed two works by Dr. R. J. Pool, chairman of the department of botany, and a book written by Dr. J. E. Weaver, department of botany, in collaboration with Dr. E. E. Clements, formerly of the university.

The first book by Dr. Pool to be listed is "Flowers and Flowering Plants," which is published by McGraw-Hill and Company. Dr. Pool's other work to be selected is his "First Course in Botany," written in collaboration with A. T. Evans, Miami university. This work is published by Ginn and Company.

"Plant Ecology" is the title of the book by Dr. Weaver and Dr. Clements which was named by the committee. It is published also by McGraw-Hill and Company.

The committee consisted of Dean E. W. Berry, John Hopkins university; Dr. P. R. Heyl, United States bureau of standards; Prof. B. E. Livingston, John Hopkins university and general secretary of the association; and J. L. Wheeler, public librarian, Baltimore, Md.

The committee was instructed to arrange for the selection of the most appropriate books on each of

BURNETT ISSUES CALL TO FACULTY FOR RELIEF FUND

Solicits Aid of Professors in Obtaining Aid for Drouth Victims.

AG COLLEGE GIVES $500

Martin and Gramlich Put in Charge of Work at University.

In connection with the state committee for the relief of the drouth-sufferers of the northern counties of Nebraska, Chancellor E. A. Burnett Friday issued an appeal to the faculty and administration of the university to contribute to the fund.

According to the letter sent out by the Chancellor, the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce is soliciting funds for the relief work. They are working in cooperation with the state committee so that no administrative expense will be chargeable against monies collected.

Members of the faculty of the agricultural college have already contributed $500 to the fund, contributions being based on $1.00 for each $1000 salary or fraction thereof, but many gave more than that. It is expected that much more will be raised before the campaign is completed. Professor O. R. Martin, chairman of the department of business organization and management, and Professor H. J. Gramlich, chairman of the department of animal husbandry, have been placed in charge of the work in the university by Chancellor Burnett.

"The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce is soliciting relief funds for the drouth sufferers of the northern counties of Nebraska," Chancellor Burnett stated in his letter. "They are working in cooperation with the state committee so that no administrative expense will be chargeable against monies collected. The distress in these northern counties has increased continually (Continued on Page 4.)

Popular Mountain Tours to Be Offered Again Says New Bulletin.

POOL CONDUCTS CLASS

Announcement of the continuation of summer botany courses, under the direction of Dr. R. J. Pool, chairman of the department of botany, at Camp Olympus in Estes park was made recently in a bulletin issued by the extension division. The course will extend over the six weeks from June 13 to July 21.

Dr. Pool has conducted similar classes in past years at Camp Olympus. The response to the project and the success of the class work years prompted the department to continue the plan.

Courses given are designed to be of value to teachers of botany, biology, and nature study in the public schools and colleges and to college students who desire to supplement their training and broaden their acquaintance with the subject.

The principal course, which will be general in scope, will utilize the natural resources of the mountain environment to present a broad view of modern biology with particular reference to flowering plants, forests, etc. Registration in the course will be limited to thirty students.

An advanced course will also be available for those with considerable training in plant taxonomy and ecology and for those who wish to be able to work independently or with minimum guidance. Registration in this course will be limited to ten.

Classes cover the region of study by a series of field trips by auto-bus and on foot. Usually three full day trips and two half day (Continued on Page 2.)

LUTHERAN CONCLAVE ENDS THIS MORNING

Sermon 'High Goals' Will Close Three Days of Regional Meet.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

"The High Goal," a sermon which will be presented by Dr. Gould Wickey, Washington, D. C., at the Grace Lutheran church this morning, will terminate the convention of the southwestern regional conference of the Lutheran students association of America.

The following were elected officers of the association at the business meeting late Saturday: Paul Rohm, Kansas State, president; George Florida, Midland college, vice president; Lois Romberger, Kansas University, secretary; Kenneth Boman, University of Nebraska, treasurer; Rev. Olesen of Lundborg, Kan., was chosen for the adviser for the four-year tenure.

The conclave, which was attended by 200 delegates from colleges and universities in Kansas, Colorado, Texas and Nebraska, opened Friday at 6 o'clock with a banquet at the First Lutheran church. The toastmaster was Herbert Fisher, Omaha, president of the National Lutheran League of the United Lutheran church.

The banquet was followed by an address by Rev. L. H. Steinhoff, field secretary of Midland college on "Right Choices." Rev. Steinhoff advised young people to benefit by other people's mistakes and make right choices in whatever they undertake. A mixer in the church parlors followed his address and terminated the first day's activities.

Rev. Steinhoff again spoke at a service in room 203 of the Temple at 9:30 a. m. Saturday on the subject, "Sources of Power."

GRAD ENROLLMENT GAINS

Report Says Final Total to Be 515, Compared With 503 Last Term.

With 500 graduate students enrolled in the University of Nebraska graduate college at the end of the regular registration period, which closed Saturday, Feb. 13, and with approximately fifteen late registrations yet to be completed, enrollment in the graduate college for the second semester promises to show an increase over the first semester total.

A total of 503 students, records reveal, took work in the graduate college the first semester of the current school year. With the late registrations, the total for the second semester will be approximately 515.

Chief Justice Goss States Youth of Today Is Morally Superior to Predecessors of Generation Past

By HOWARD VONHOLTZENDORFF.

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of four articles on "modern youth." In an informal interview Saturday, Chief Justice Charles A. Goss, of the Nebraska supreme court, stated that it is a popular misconception "that the typical college student of today is a ruthless, immoral, carousing, jazzhound type of individual."

Chief Justice Goss, prior to taking his seat on the Nebraska Supreme bench, presided over the state district bench in Omaha for six years. He taught a law subject at Creighton university for two years, is a son of the soil, and was graduated from Mount Union college, Alliance, Ohio.

He has always taken a great interest in youth, especially boys, being director of the Y. M. C. A. of Omaha a number of years ago, and an active individual in church work. At the present time he is a member of the state executive committee of the Y. M. C. A. He joined in establishing the much lauded "Community Play-Park plan" system in Omaha, which provides for the supervised recreation of children.

MORTAR BOARDS REVEAL MR. RAY RAMSAY AS KING

Nebraska Alumni Secretary Steps From Corn Cob To Take Honor.

MEN CAN QUIT WORRYING

Novel Idea Causes the Most Campus Comment Heard In Years.

Ray Ramsay, University of Nebraska alumni secretary, was the "surprise element" in the Leap Year party, sponsored by the Mortar Boards Saturday night. The "most popular man on the campus," as he has been designated by the senior women's honorary society, removed himself from a huge cornucopia, set on the stage that had been placed there for that purpose a few minutes before hand.

The presentation climaxes the widely advertised Leap Year party, which has been the subject for more campus comment than anything which has happened at Nebraska for a long, long time.

Senior men, representative male student leaders, in fact every eligible male student has been worrying in one way or another about the situation ever since the Mortar Board plan was announced. Such names as "Mr. Nebraska Sweetheart," "The Campus King," and others have been heard about the campus, and directed at men supposed to have been likely candidates.

Large Crowd.

About 700 couples were attracted to the party, mainly thru the desire to see who would be dubbed the most popular man. To say that the appearance of Ramsay was a surprise is to put it mildly. Coming out of his hiding place, with a fixed smile on his face, Ramsay met with instant approval. After making a short unceremonious jump from the platform, ran down the full length of the floor, and disappeared into the crowd. The entire affair was staged in the deepest secrecy, the identity of the gentleman not being known until the presentation at ten minutes after eleven.

Lights Flash Off.

A few minutes before the stroke of eleven the lights in the coliseum flashed off, and spotlight played on the crowd picking out various representative seniors. Under the cover of the darkness a platform was rolled out midway between the balconies just in front of the curtain. Flood lights located on the balcony, together with the lights of the coliseum flashed on a few seconds before the announcement, making a very attractive scene. At the stroke of eleven the announcement was made of the identity of the "most popular man."

The entire coliseum was attractively decorated in red and white, following a valentine motif. Entrance to the coliseum was made through a large heart panel. Inside, stretched across the coliseum from east to west on level with the balcony were wide strips of alternating red and white streamers, which gave the appearance of a solid mass of color. Hearts were hung on various streamers at uneven intervals.

Arches Decorated.

The arches around the concourse were bordered with hearts topped with bands of red crepe paper. The orchestra stand in one corner of the hall was set off in the prevailing red and white colors, as was the corner set aside for the nappers and patrons. The hall was cut off three-fourths from the back by a curtain extending across the floor. The barb council did the decorating.

Much amusement prevailed in the checking of the wraps. Girls, being forced to check the wraps of their escorts, were nearly overburdened with immense overcoats, and were followed with strict admonitions to be careful of hats, scarfs and gloves. Girls were in
