Council Head Selects Ten To Study Political Realignment.

INNOCENTS TAKE LEAD

Thursday's Move Follows Recommendation by Honorary.

Appointment of a committee of ten to investigate the possibilities of political realignment on the campus in an effort to arouse greater interest in extra-curricular activities was announced yesterday by Dick Devereaux, president of the Innocents society, and Edwin Faulkner, president of the Student council.

The committee, as recommended to the student council, consists of Innocents: Arthur Wolf, William McGaffin, and Richard Bell; members of the student council—Phil Brownell and Willard Hedge; faction presidents—William Devereaux, Otis Detrick, and Delphian Nash; and faculty members—Professors E. W. Lantz and E. F. Schramm.

Action on the question has arisen from the evident decline among students interest in thevarious campus activities. A meeting of Innocents society recently to discuss the problem.

Sift Many Causes.

Seven probable causes of the situation were brought out and emphasized at the meeting. They were the unbalanced political alignment, women not represented in the activities which men dominate, lack of knowledge concerning student activities, failure of fraternities and bars to co-operate, lack of students working on student activities, activities placed in the hands of too few individuals, and lack of an organization with which to cope with the large student body.

The committee of ten to deal with the problem of political alignments, generally agreed to be the main contributing cause to the stagnation of student activities, was recommended in the report of a special committee to the student council Wednesday. The committee was composed of Arthur Wolf, Edwin Faulkner, and William McGaffin.

Report Cited.

The report of the committee relative to the political problem was the main difficulty brought out in the meeting seemed to be the unbalanced political alignment. This situation is deep seated and nothing can be done about it without first investigating it seriously. For this purpose the committee recommended that a committee of ten to carry out this investigation. This committee is to be composed of three members of the Innocents society, two members of the student council, the three faction presidents, and two faculty members, namely Mr. Lantz and Mr. Schramm.

'Portias' There Have Been and Are Now According to Old Files in Law College; Seven Are Taking Courses

At the present time there are three women enrolled as full time students in the Law college and four part time students.

Mrs. Nellie M. Richardson, '94, is the first woman to be admitted to the bar in the state of Nebraska. She was admitted to the bar in 1889 and permitted to practice before the United States supreme court in 1891.

She was a member of the class of 1892 and first entered the college in 1890. She was permitted to practice before the supreme court following her graduation. Mrs. Minick has had an interesting career and recalls a number of interesting experiences that she had during pioneer Nebraska days.

WHITTEN PLEASED AT RESPONSE OF FACULTY

City and Ag Campuses Give $1,350 to Aid Drouth Sufferers.

Walter S. Whitten, secretary of the Lincoln chamber of commerce expressed great satisfaction at the response of the faculty of the university in contributing to the drouth relief fund. "The response to the call for help was very fine," declared Mr. Whitten. "I think every man and woman on both branches of the faculty have done everything in their power to make this drive successful."

Under the leadership of Prof. O. R. Martin, the city campus faculty contributed more than $850, while on the agricultural college campus a sum exceeding $500 amassed by Prof. H. J. Gramlich and his associates.

Thus far in the campaign, the city of Lincoln and vicinity has raised more than $14,400, Mr. Whitten reported. This money is all expended for feed for livestock. The purchase is under the supervision of Mr. W. H. Smith, head of the state relief organization. The chamber of commerce is cooperating with Governor Bryan in the relief campaign.

Bizad Executive Board Make Decision; Also Promote College Activities.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE

First Affair Spring Season Open to Entire Student Body.

One-half the proceeds from the Bizad party, opening event of the campus spring party season to be held in the Hotel Cornhusker ballroom Friday night, will be given to the student loan fund, Norman Prucka, member of the Bizad executive board and president of the men's commercial club, announced following a meeting of the board Thursday night. The other half of the proceeds will be used in the promotion of Bizad college activities, he said.

Arrangements for the party were complete Thursday night, Prucka reported. "A checkup shows that the party will not be as crowded as expected and promises to be one of the best parties of the year," he announced.

Eddie Jungbluth's orchestra has been booked for the affair. Entertainers will be Harriet Cruise Kemmer and Lyle DeMoss. Tickets are one dollar and are on sale by representatives of the Bizad executive board and will be on sale at the door.

Chaperones are Dean and Mrs. L. E. LeRossignol, Professor and Mrs. Karl M. Arndt and Professor and Mrs. J. E. Kirshman.

The purpose of the party, according to Chalmers Graham, publicity director, is to organize Bizad college activities and create added interest in them. The party, however, is open to the entire student body, he said.

COUNTRYMAN WILL APPEAR NEXT WEEK

Campus Gossip Column Is Feature Written by George Round.

Copy for the March issue of the Cornhusker Countryman, college of agriculture publication, is in the hands of the printers and the magazine should be ready for distribution the first part of next week, Arthur Kozelka, editor, said Thursday.

"Round on the Rectangle" is a new feature which will be of especial interest to the students. It is a campus gossip column conducted by George Round, former editor of the magazine. It will take the place of "Hayseed and Haywire," a column conducted last semester by the former editor.

Thomas Snipes, managing editor, hob-nobbed with Chancellor Burratt long enough to get the former ag college dean's visualizations of the many opportunities that are the ag college graduates. Snipes offers the interview in an interesting fashion and presents the chancellor's ideas about agriculture, agricultural opportunities and Farmers' Fair.

"The Chemistry of Bread" is the title of a feature article written by Bill Ralston, Omaha. The article reveals the many chemical processes that bread is subjected to in the making. Caryle Hodgkins has written several stories including a character sketch of Glenn Burton, who graduated last semester. Burton was the manager of the recent Coll-Agri-Fun.

Another new feature which is to be presented for the first time is the guest editorial. The editor plans to have a professor write an editorial on some timely question each month. Professor F. E. Musseh is starting the series with his comments on the use of the ag college library.

FLOOR SHOW FEATURE AT UNIVERSITY PARTY

Eddie Smith to Perform Irish Jigs; Katherine Adams Will Dance.

CHAPERONES ANNOUNCED

A floor show featuring an Irish coloring will be the high light of the All University party at the coliseum Saturday evening, according to statements made by Delphian Nash, bar council chairman, yesterday. The show will be directed by Wally Morrow, popular Lincoln dancer, and will feature Eddie Smith in Irish jigs, songs, and his interpretation of Russ Colombo. Petite Katherine Adams will dance.

Announcement of chaperones for the party was made by Nash. Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Gramlich, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Minter, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Filley and Judge and Mrs. John L. Polk were named as the party's guests.

Novel decorations are being planned by the committee. Centering about the theme of St. Patrick's day, a green and white color motif will prevail in streamers converging over the orchestra platform in the center of the floor, stated George Thomas, in charge of decorations.

A new arrangement in the location of the orchestra will be instituted Saturday night, according to Nash. In the past with the band at one side of the floor, music was faint in the far corners. "This new arrangement will work for the improvement of the party," Nash said, "and the effect of the overhead decorations with the St. Patrick's color atmosphere will work for an ideal party setting."

Eddie Jungbluth and his twelve piece orchestra has been secured to furnish the music. The orchestra has entertainers in its personnel and has special novelty numbers worked up for the weekend affair, according to Jungbluth. Tickets for the party may be secured in the lobby of the coliseum. Dancing starts at 8:30.

'Tis a Sad Day for Fungi Now That Dr. Walker Knows All

The small but mighty fungi, enemy of plant and man alike, has been emphatically squelched by Dr. L. E. Walker, associate professor of botany at Nebraska university. Dr. Walker dealt a death blow to the whole fungi family when the results of her experiments were published as a treatise called "Mycologia."

How to stop the fungi from spreading little "fungus" all around—that was the question Dr. Walker undertook to solve. She made a very interesting discovery in the little laboratory in Bessey hall. A fungus is only a few millimeters in size, and yet it is capable of hurling its spore, or reproductive organ, over fourteen feet high into the air.

Food Turns to Sugar. Through her investigations, Dr. Walker determined that the lowly fungus was so powerful because when the food stored within it turned to sugar, a great amount of osmotic pressure resulted. The ejection of the spore into the air is the most vital part of reproduction.

Woe to the fungi now that Dr. Walker has found their vulnerable spot! After her discovery of the where, when and how of the most important phase of reproduction—there remained only the task of finding sprays and chemical plants to apply to the offending plants.

Dr. Walker's research work is of considerable economic importance as the type of fungi with which she experimented attacks plants causing serious damage and heavy losses. At present she is concluding a two year experiment with another member of the fungus family.

DELTA SIGMA RHO MAKE PLANS TO ESTABLISH DEBATE

Enough Interest Shown to Make Part of Intramural Program.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

Varsity Debaters to Be Excluded from Participation on Teams.

Feeling that enough interest has been shown in intramural debate, Delta Sigma Rho, national forensic honorary, has made plans to go ahead and establish debate as a part of the intramural program at Nebraska. A meeting was held by the honorary fraternity Wednesday night and recommendations were made by the group, and a committee appointed to investigate the situation and to take steps toward the establishment of the program.

The Daily Nebraskan has endeavored during the last few weeks to feel out student sentiment and to determine the amount of interest that has been shown.

"We feel that debating should be made part of the intramural program if it is possible and that the intramural point system of awards should include debate if enough interest is shown. The success of the plan depends upon the support of campus organizations. We are planning to select a live campus issue that is germane to every student." Walter Huber, president, said on behalf of the organization.

The recommendations of Delta Sigma Rho call for the interviewing of intramural managers at the different organizations to determine which groups will co-operate in the launching of the program.

MOVIES BLAMED FOR CHILD DELINQUENCES

Juvenile Court Head Speaks To University League Of Women Voters.

464 CASES LAST YEAR

"I believe the movies are directly responsible for many adolescent delinquencies," said Mrs. W. M. Morning, head probation officer of the Lincoln juvenile court, in a talk to the university League of Women Voters at the meeting Thursday afternoon. "Theft in girls, particularly, can be directly traced to the finery they have seen in the shows. They learn there a false sense of standards."

Mrs. Morning touched on the history of juvenile court development, tracing the different methods of dealing with delinquent children from the time of Washington, when a young woman was hanged for stealing a piece of cloth, to the present time, when a special court system utilizes the best knowledge of psychology in dealing with the individuals.

The machinery of the children's court was described in detail. In speaking of it Mrs. Morning said, "The council table was originally the breakfast or dinner table. This is much the arrangement of the juvenile court. Everyone is seated around a table and discussion takes place very informally."

Boys Cases Numerous. The records of the Lincoln juvenile court for last year indicate that 464 cases were brought into court. 312 of these were boys and 152 were girls. Of this number, 262 cases were proved delinquencies. 201 of these were boys and sixty-one were girls. (Continued on Page 3.)

STUDENTS HAVE VOICE IN ATHLETIC CONTROL

Montana, Oregon State Give Undergraduates Place On Board.

Responsibility of the athletic board to the student senate, providing the action of the board deals with any athletic subject that is supported by students, governs the method of regulation of athletic policies at Montana State college, according to Philip M. Roberts, president of the Associated Students at that institution. Students at Montana State have two representatives on the athletic board of control, Roberts' letter reads. The two are the commissioner of athletics, elected by the students, and the student manager of the sport in question, elected by the members of the council.

The student members of the board, two out of six, have equal voting power with the other members. The board in all action is responsible to the student senate providing that action deals with any athletic subject that is supported by the students and must submit its constitution to the student senate for approval.

The representation of the student body on this board has given the students a control over a larger interest in athletics from a business standpoint." Roberts stated in his letter. "It also affords the faculty in charge of physical education an opportunity to be in contact with the opinions and plans of the student body through its student senate government."

Two-Fifths At Oregon State. Two-fifths of the members of the athletic committee at Oregon State college are members of the student body, according to Milton Leishman, president of the Associated Students at that institution.

At Oregon State, the athletic committee functions as a sub-committee of the board of control, composed of five-ninth students, which regulates all campus activities. Power of the student members on the athletic committee is equal to that of the faculty and alumni members in all matters.

"It seems that these students are a bit on the 'know' their co-operation and support are much better than if everything is more or less dictated to them by the administration," Leishman stated in his letter. "Since athletics are student supported students should have representation in athletic programs," he concluded.

SCOTT DOES NOT OPPOSE STUDENT ON SPORT BOARD

Chairman of Body Believes Matter Rests in Hands Of Regents.

INTEREST IS FINANCES

Group Is in Largest Measure Financial; Little to Do With Policies.

"I see no objection to student representation on the athletic board of control," Professor R. D. Scott, chairman of the athletic board, stated to a representative of the Daily Nebraskan yesterday afternoon.

"I can see no great disadvantage to the plan of student representation on the board, nor do I see any great advantage in it," Professor Scott continued. "After all, the matter rests entirely in the hands of the board of regents."

Professor Scott explained that the present board of control was in the largest measure a financial body. It has very little to do with the definition of athletic policies, and practically its only activity is concerned with the finances of athletics.

The athletic board at the present time could not agree to or deny students representation on the board, Professor Scott stated. The board was created by the board of regents of the university and is responsible to that body for all of its actions.

Regents Must Act.

If the student body is to be represented on the athletic board of control, such representation must come about through some action of the board of regents, according to Professor Scott. The matter is entirely out of the hands of the athletic board.

The present athletic board of control was created and established by the board of regents about ten or twelve years ago. Before that time, there was no athletic board, except one which existed prior to the war, a large and unwieldy group.

During the time there was no athletic board, all matters relating to athletics were regulated and controlled by the director of athletics, who was appointed by the board of regents and had full control of the athletic department of the university.

Board Failure.

The athletic board which existed seventeen or eighteen years ago was an entire failure, according to Professor Scott. It was composed of members of the faculty, students of the university, and alumni of the university. The reason for the failure of the board, Professor Scott stated, was that it took the control out of the hands of the faculty and placed it in the hands of the alumni and students.

"The matter of the provision for student representatives on the athletic board, since it would have to do with the reconstruction of the board itself, would have to be left entirely to the board of regents," Professor Scott stated. "The athletic board would be powerless to assent to or refuse such a plan."
