ORGANIZATION OF BARB CLUBS WILL START THURSDAY

Two Speakers Are Assigned To Houses Where Five Men Living.

URGENT GOOD ATTENDANCE

Larger Groups Mean Better Chances for Success Says Faulkner.

Preliminary steps in the campaign to organize barb students on the campus into effective political groups will be taken Thursday evening when a group of speakers, members of the faction realignment committee and others appointed by Edwin Faulkner, president of the Student Council, will present the proposed program of organization to unaffiliated students in rooming houses where there are five or more such students living.

Two speakers have been assigned to each pair of houses, twenty-one in number. The students in these various houses have been notified by letter of the plan and are expected to be present Thursday evening to listen to the program as it is presented to them and to take the first steps toward organizing themselves.

The plan as contemplated by the faction realignment committee would use these houses as nuclei of organization as the basis for an extensive system of barb clubs. The committee decided at its last meeting that these students, once organized, would be able to attract to their groups other unaffiliated students who live by themselves or in houses where there are less than five barbs.

Promising Remedy.

The committee announced following its first meeting that the most promising remedy for the present inequality in the faction alignment, and the consequent lack of interest in certain branches of student activity, was the organization of barbs into effective political groups who would again be able to restore the balance of power between competing factions. It was pointed out at the meeting that the barb groups should also become media for more extensive social and intramural sports activities.

Speakers who are to outline the program of organization will meet Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock in U hall 106 to receive instructions and decide on a uniform method of presentation. It is possible, according to Edwin Faulkner, that the various groups may be able to begin active organization Thursday night by electing officers.

"The committee would again like to urge the students who are living at the houses which will be visited Thursday evening, to be present between 7 and 8 o'clock," said Edwin Faulkner, chairman of the faction realignment committee. "We would also urge that any barb students not living in these houses be invited to attend the meetings by those who do live there. The larger the groups that respond immediately to this program, the better are the chances for its success."

Sprite Prematurely Eulogizes March Passing as Snow Predicted by Blair

By THE SPRITE.

"You never know what March will do," according to T. A. Blair, weather man. If the weather man's prediction comes true this paradoxical month will prove his assertion today. Tuesday at 2 o'clock the temperature was 73, the hottest day of the year. Wednesday, today, is scheduled to descend to 28 to 25 degrees with rain turning to snow during the course of the day. A complete wardrobe from shirt sleeves to long undies is necessary during this wild month.

Strong winds from the northwest will bring the cold weather. The wind was puffing at the rate of thirty miles an hour Tuesday and an equal speed is prophesied for today. "The cold spell isn't apt to last long," is the only consolation that the weather man would offer.

A. W. S. FRESHMEN MEET

Group Studies Problems of Students in Meeting Held Tuesday.

Student problems were discussed at the meeting of the freshman activities group of the A. W. S. Tuesday afternoon. The members told of problems they met when they first came to the university, and how these could be made less difficult for girls in the future. Bereniece Hoffman, president of the A. W. S. board, was present at the meeting and brought up several questions for discussion.

The group is planning to study in the near future the organization and work of the League of Women Voters.

SECOND RALLY HELD FOR FARMERS' FAIR

Wherry Will Talk Thursday; Committees Will Meet After Program.

The second farmer's fair rally of the year will be held Thursday evening of this week in Ag hall, according to an announcement made by the senior fair board members. Several hundred college of agriculture students are expected to attend.

Kenneth Wherry of Pawnee City, candidate for governor of Nebraska, is scheduled to give the chief talk of the evening. He is a former county fair organizer and will outline successful plans of fair management. Wherry was scheduled to talk on one other occasion but other speaking engagements kept him from appearing before the agricultural student body.

Elvin Frolk, graduate student and manager of the 1930 Farmer's Fair, will be another speaker on the evening program. He will tell something of the success of the 1930 fair and offer some suggestions for the fair this year. Billy Quick, director of the Nebraska band, is also expected to present some Indian music which will be used in the presentation of the pageant for the fair this year.

Every committee appointed for the fair will probably hold individual meetings after the rally, the senior fair board announces. Because of this they urged all students in the college to be present for the rally.

SUNDAY LAST DAY FOR SCHOLARSHIP FILINGS

Coads Wishing to Make an Application Should See Miss Beers.

Sunday, April 3, is the final date for filing application blanks for junior and senior gift scholarships offered by the Lincoln branch of the American Association of University Women for use next year. All applications should be in the hands of Miss Gertrude Beers, Teachers College 119, before that date. Blanks may be obtained at the office of Miss Amanda Heppner, dean of women, at Ellen Smith hall.

Two hundred dollars will be awarded by the association. The scholarship committee will use its own discretion as to whether it will give two $50 scholarships and one $100 scholarship or four $50 awards.

Awards will be based upon scholarship and need, although campus activities will be taken into consideration in making the award. However, if a girl has been too occupied with her school work and outside employment to take part in activities on the campus this will not be held against her in making the selection.

Any girl who will be a junior or senior next year is eligible to file. It makes no difference in which college she is registered. All applicants should be positive that if they receive the award they will be able to return to school next year.

These scholarships are gifts and the girls receiving them will be under no obligation whatever. One-half the scholarship will be awarded each semester. Awards (Continued on Page 4.)

BUCKLES TALKS TO JOURNALISTS AT CONVOCATION

First Meeting of Writers to Be Held at 7:15 Wednesday.

EDITOR FAIRBURY NEWS

Newspaperman Graduate of Kansas; Prominent in Field.

The first general convocation of the school of journalism this year will feature a talk by Doyle L. Buckles outlining advertising promotion methods relative to the community newspaper. The convocation will be held in the Social Science auditorium Wednesday evening at 7:15.

Mr. Buckles, present editor of the Fairbury News, was graduated from the department of journalism of the University of Kansas and since then served on both the editorial and business staffs of metropolitan and community newspapers. He won national prominence in 1931 by winning first place in the Community Service contest of the National Editorial association.

The community service award is made every year on the basis of the public service performed by the newspaper. It is not restricted to papers which belong to the association, but includes all the country newspapers in the United States. The trophy which is given to the winner of the contest was provided by James Wright Brown, E. Seaton, operating superintendent of the university, the system of the university, the system of the university, the system of the university.

Since he has worked in both departments, Buckles is familiar with the editorial and business staffs of a newspaper. He stated that he felt the greatest opportunity for young men and women lies in the editorial phase of the work. Students in journalism 183, the Community Newspaper, which meets regularly on Wednesday night, are required to attend the convocation. All students in the school of journalism and other students interested in journalism are urged by Gayle C. Walker, director of the school, to attend.

The next meeting will be held in the classes in advertising and salesmanship and members of the staffs of the campus publications have also been invited.

Doane Picks Ten Noteworthy Books Published in '31

"The best books of 1931," said Gilbert H. Doane, head librarian, Tuesday, "are hard to pick, because of the immense amount of literature published. However, there are a few outstanding novels and biographies that should be read by everyone."

Outstanding among the fiction published is the novel by Pearl Buck, "The Good Earth." This novel was a best seller in 1931, and at present is holding up to the standard established last year.

Undoubtedly the best play of the year is "Mourning Becomes Electra," by Eugene O'Neill.

"Only Yesterday," by Frederick Lewis Allen, a history of the years from 1918 to 1929.

Stuart Chase's "Mexico" ranks high.

The winner of the Harper prize for the best first novel is Robert Reynolds, who wrote "Brothers in Travel," a novel concerning the travels of two brothers.

Willis Cather's novel, "Shadows on the Rock," a tale of Quebec, is one of the best sellers of 1931.

Of especial interest to Nebraska readers is "The Populist Revolt" by John D. Hicks, a history of the populist movement in the west.

"Epic of America," by James Adams, Edna St. Vincent Millay's "Fatal Interview," and "Autobiography of Lincoln Steffens" all rank high.

Of this list of ten best books, two are by Nebraska authors, Willis Cather and John D. Hicks. The former is graduate of the University of Nebraska and Hicks is dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

University Students in Germany Have Absolute Freedom Declares Dr. Kraus

Visiting Professor Tells of Differences in Schools of Two Countries.

"Students at German universities have absolute freedom," declared Dr. Herbert Kraus, professor at Göttingen university, Germany, in drawing a comparison between universities in his native country and in the United States in a special interview Tuesday.

"Our universities are based on the principle that the student should be allowed, not forced, to learn. He is not obliged to attend classes. There are no restrictions on his conduct. There is no prescribed curriculum. But we find out whether the student has wasted his time or not at the time when he takes his very strict examination for a degree."

Dr. Kraus admitted that the system is a hard one. Everything is abstract in nature, he said. Even the law schools study only basic principles, not cases. The result of it is that a large number of students who are not ripe enough to get along well in the scholarly atmosphere where conduct and study is purely self regulated became lazy and flunk out he continued.

The whole system, according to Dr. Kraus, is meant to be scholarly and dignified. He inferred by the gestures and facial expressions which he made when he referred to compulsory class attendance, prescribed curriculum, and rules and regulations regarding student conduct, that the German university would consider such authority over students as fit only for the elementary schools, and in no way consistent with the attitude of "pure science and research" which prevails at the German university according to his description.

But German university students are more mature than students in American colleges, he explained. The schools include what corresponds to the last two years of university work in this country plus graduate work. This is partly the reason for the more scholarly and mature attitude of study which prevails at their universities, he believes.

INSTALL FIRE ALARMS IN SEVERAL BUILDINGS

Fire Laws Necessitate Use Of Systems; To Have Fire Drills.

Seaton, operating superintendent of the university, the system has been installed in University hall, Nebraska hall, Mechanics art buildings and work on the installation is being done now in the School of Music building.

Plans are being formed to conduct fire drills so that those using these buildings become familiar with the methods of clearing them in case a fire should occur. The system was installed to comply with rules made by the state fire marshal, Seaton said.

Student Disarmament Conference May Lead to Universal Peace Education

Demand Follows Conclaves Held Here; Group to Work on Plan.

A demand for an international education program, particularly as it relates to peace and disarmament, has been the result of the Nebraska and Kansas State wide student disarmament conference held this winter at Lincoln and Topeka, Kas.

Work of organizing the program has been delegated to committees on various campuses which are represented at the Y. M. C. A. summer conference at Estes, park.

A committee on this campus headed by Meredith Nelson and Bereniece Hoffman has been appointed to prepare an exhibit on the question of disarmament and other issues of international importance. The display will include a collection of posters, programs and pamphlets used by all colleges in Nebraska who have been interested in studying international problems.

Delegates to the Nebraska student disarmament conference will be solicited for material. Books relevant to questions of international education will also be included in the exhibit.

Speakers Furnished.

An active contact with colleges of the state has been maintained by the local committee. A speakers bureau organized on the local campus has furnished informed speakers for organizations in and near Lincoln. Several campuses in the state have followed the practice.

F. V. Peterson talked before a group of students at St. Paul Methodist church March 6 and briefly explained various phases of the disarmament problem and the significance of each.

Vincent Broady, Helen Nootz and Alfred Adams spoke at St. James Methodist church the same evening, each considering a different angle of the problem. March 8 Albert King conducted a discussion following a talk on disarmament at First Christian church.

Meredith Nelson spoke at Grace church March 13 when he gave a general talk, in which he explained the significance of the International Disarmament conference. A series of talks have been scheduled at Trinity Methodist church during April.

ALL-UNIVERSITY PARTY FEATURES SPECIALTY SHOW

Jack Stary and His Comedy Kar Will Appear On Stage.

REVEAL BAND IDENTITY

Terry Townsend and Twelve April Fools to Play; Novel Motif.

A professional stage show will be the main feature of the all university party Saturday night in the student activities building on the campus of the college of agriculture, according to announcement made yesterday by the Barb Council. The specialty of this show will be Jack Stary and his Comedy Kar.

Clarence Himes, a member of the entertainment committee, announced that the orchestra would be Terry Townsend and his twelve April fools.

"We consider ourselves extremely fortunate," commented Himes, "in being able to present at this time Townsend's orchestra together with Jack Stary, Stary, as a professional, with his Comedy Kar and amusing antics, should have universal appeal. And we are positive the orchestra will go over big."

A Deviation.

The holding of the coming party on the agricultural college campus is a deviation from the ordinary. Up to this time All University parties have been held in the coliseum. The change is being made for this one party as a gesture of appreciation of the past support of agricultural students. The Council expressed hope that the students on the city campus will show as great co-operation in the new location.

"The decoration for this party will follow the spirit of April Fools day," declared Harry West, member of the decoration committee. "We are not prepared to announce the details of the scheme, but we will say that it is to be novel."

The party will begin at 8:30 Saturday evening. Tickets will be on sale at the door of the student activities building. Prices are: gentlemen 50 cents, ladies 25 cents.

Memorial Stadium To Be All Dressed Up in Coat of Paint

Nebraska Memorial stadium, stage of the Cornhusker gridiron battles, is the scene of more or less activity these days. It is being given a new coat of paint. When it is finished it will be a handsome stone grey, giving it an appearance of natural stone construction.

Work of painting the stadium was started last fall, when the paint, a specially prepared waterproof material, was purchased.

Painting the stadium is a slow process because the paint cannot be applied except in ideal weather conditions. The best time for this work, according to L. E. Seaton, is at this time of year when the weather is not very warm and when the air is damp.

American Universities Also Avail Opportunities to Graduate Students.

Fellowships in a number of foreign countries as well as those offered by American universities are available to Nebraska graduate students, the Graduate college reports. The entire list is on file in the Graduate office in chemistry hall.

Among the foreign universities included in the list are those in Belgium, Italy, France, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Hungary, Spain, Switzerland and England.

The purpose of these fellowships, the office explains is to assist in promoting a feeling of good will between countries, and to give American students a chance to study in a different type of school and under different conditions. General requirements for citizenship include such things as citizenship, moral character, intellectual ability, and suitable personal qualities. Many times health requirements are made; they must be capable of independent research and study; and most generally have sufficient funds to provide for travel within the country.

One can obtain a fellowship in almost any line of study, and usually either a man or woman is eligible. There are some which limit according to sex, however. In this country the list takes in Universities and colleges in practically all parts of the United States. The Carnegie Endowment (Continued on Page 4.)

Y. W. C. A. CABINET INSTALLED TUESDAY

Twenty-Four New Members Were Recognized at Vesper Service.

Vesper service last evening was in the nature of the installation of twenty-four new members of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet for the coming year.

Marjorie Peterson, president for the past year, conducted a brief devotional service, and presented Miss Bernice Miller, general secretary, who extended the challenge and welcome to the incoming cabinet.

The installation service was presided over by Marjorie Peterson. Each member in turn presented the challenge of office to her successor, the service being closed by the presentation of a wreath of white rosebuds, symbol of the loyalty of the new cabinet, to Jane Robertson, newly elected president.

Miss Robertson responded for her group and in response to her request, the entire audience joined in singing the Y. W. C. A. song, "Follow the Glean," as a commitment of loyalty to the purposes and aims of the association.

'3 Suns West' a Natural Atmosphere For Elbridge Brubaker, Wyoming Boy

BY VIRGINIA POLLARD.

A small odd shack on one of the largest sheep ranches in Wyoming was the setting for the beginning of the life of Elbridge Brubaker, member of the University Players who again finds himself in the familiar atmosphere of the west as he plays the role of the west in the current comedy, "3 Suns West," by Herb Yenne, member of the dramatic faculty.

"The first experience I can remember," he smiled upon being interviewed, "is learning to ride and since then I have taken honors in several rodeos." Now after twenty-four years, which have taken him from the plains of Wyoming to the campus of the University of Nebraska, Elbridge is again swaggering about in true cowpuncher fashion. But this time it is on the stage.

The cowboy ballads of the old frontier find expression in this play as well as the dances of the pioneer period. The play also affords Elbridge an opportunity to display his fine voice in one of the solos. He was for two years a member of the Great Cathedral choir of the Westminster Presbyterian church.

Segan Week's Run.

The setting of his present histrionic effort is a round-up campfire and the patio of a ranch. The play written by Herbert Yenne began its several rodeos Monday evening at the Temple theater.

Elbridge in this role is well one for his entire life has been spent on his father's 4,000 acre ranch at Glenrock, Wyo. The student of eleven children, Elbridge, came to the University of Nebraska in (Continued on Page 4.)

KRAUS OUTLINES TEUTON PROGRAM IN CONVOCATION

Professor of International Law at Göttingen Talks To Large Audience.

TRIBUTE TO HINDENBURG

Says That He Conciliated, Balanced and United The Country.

An outline of the general political and economic situation in Germany with particular emphasis upon the program and purposes of the National Socialist party, or the Hitler party, was presented before an almost capacity audience in the Temple theater Tuesday morning by Dr. Herbert Kraus, professor of international law and diplomacy at Göttingen university, Germany.

"The most significant thing about the Hitler movement," declared Dr. Kraus, "is that it expresses the dominant idea in Germany today; that things have got to be changed. The movement is a reaction to what has been happening in Germany since the war. It is successful because it promises something different. It is primarily supported by youth, because youth is inclined to believe the unbelievable."

Professor Kraus indicated that at least the German people are becoming disillusioned with the old regime. The disarmament conferences, the promises of help from foreign nations, the visits of foreign dignitaries, are beginning to wear thin, he said. Germans are beginning to doubt the ability or the willingness of other nations to help them. This, he concluded, is the key to the success of Adolf Hitler, and other radical leaders of today.

"American newspapers hailed the victory of Hindenburg in the last election as a great triumph for conservatism in Germany," he pointed out, "but the figures actually demonstrate that the national socialists are now the largest single party in the country, and should there be an election for the reichstag, they would get over 200 out of the 600 seats in that body."

In such an event, Dr. Kraus stated, Hitler could become Chancellor of the government. "Imagine," he said, "Hitler serving as chancellor with President von Hindenburg."

Dr. Kraus paid particular tribute to the patient and long sufferingness of the German people during the period of terrific economic and political stress which they have endured since the war. He pointed out a number of facts to illustrate the almost incredible conditions which the country has experienced in connection with its currency and unemployment problems.

He attributed to the "series of remarkable leaders which Germany has had during this period of crisis, the credit for standing among the people the confidence and optimism which they have exhibited.

"If Hindenburg had not united, balanced, and conciliated the various factions in Germany, that country today would stand in it does in the eyes of the world," he declared.

Would Start Anew.

But today Hitler's program of change is more appealing than the conservative program of Brüning, he asserted. Hitler would start anew, he declared; Brüning would save the present situation everything that remains to be saved.

Dr. Kraus characterized the program of national socialism, as socially not socialistic. "It is the synthesis of democracy, it is consciously not liberal, and intolerance is one of its main articles of faith."

"The entire program of the national socialists is permeated by hatred of the Jews," he continued. True socialism, in the Hitler movement, is so far in the background (Continued on Page 2.)
