State Schools Get Issues April Number to Open Story Contest.

Sales of the April number of the Awgwan had reached approximately the record set by the March issue early Wednesday afternoon, according to Art Mitchell, business manager of the publication.

There were virtually no copies on hand despite the fact that over 300 additional copies were printed this month.

A good share of the extra copies printed went to high schools over the state in order to familiarize high school students with the magazine before entering the contest being sponsored by the Awgwan, Mitchell said.

The Awgwan is offering cash prizes for the best short story and cartoons prepared by high school students and sent to the Awgwan office by May 15.

"The contest is being sponsored in an attempt to promote and uncover artistic and literary ability among the high school students over the state," stated Mitchell, "and we expect to receive a large amount of material in this contest."

Derby Continues.

The Awgwan-Leiderkrantz derby will continue and all those who wish to enter their selection in the race may do so by clipping the ballot and placing it in the ballot box provided in the Awgwan office. The person selecting the winner of the race will receive as the first prize a copy of the Fourth New Yorker Album.

Jane Youngson, Jane Robertson, Jane McLaughlin and Jane Steel were selected by the Awgwan staff to pick the winners of the derby. The four "janes" will pick the winning bags by drawing the ballots.

Number Books Checked Out During Year Shows Increase Declares Mrs. Graham in Reviewing Circulation

"At present we are mainly occupied with the checking out of books for term papers and this keeps us tremendously busy," stated Mrs. Consuelo-Stephens Graham, reference librarian of the university, yesterday.

A noticeable increase in the number of books checked out during this year is apparent. At present students are mainly interested in books on history and education and these comprise the bulk of books loaned.

In the three main libraries that comprise the university system, an average of 500 books are used each day. Most of these are checked out in the main desk on the first floor of the library. The Social Science reference section comes second and the reference stack room a close third.

Numbers Fluctuate. On April 11, 200 books were checked out of the main desk, 26 in Social Science and 29 from the reserve section. This, however, was an exceptionally poor day, as on April 14, 344 books were checked from the main desk, 180 from the reference desk and 221 from social science, a total of 745 books for the day.

RACE QUESTION TOPIC WORLD FORUM TALK

Status of Negro in South Discussed by Colored Y.W.C.A. Worker.

SCORES DISCRIMINATION

Miss Celestine Smith, national student Y. W. C. A. secretary visiting here who addressed the World Forum Wednesday noon, spoke on "What Students Can Do About the Race Question." Miss Smith is a negro, having lived in the south, and she spoke of conditions there as she knows them.

According to C. D. Hayes of the University Y. W. C. A., Miss Smith, in her treatment of the subject, spoke of some of the injustices that negroes in the south suffer. "The negro property holders are taxed the same as the whites, and although they are constitutionally allowed to vote they are by one method or another prevented from doing so," Hayes said in summing up her speech.

"Furthermore, they are deprived of their share of educational advantages. Segregation in the school system means that the south is under a necessity of supplying two separate systems when it cannot really afford it. The result is that after the education of the white children is provided for there is very little left for the negro," Miss Smith said.

Educational Discrimination. In Georgia, for example, she explained, the per capita expenditure for the education of white children is forty-two cents per annum.

This machine sorts 400 cards per minute, while the accounting and tabulating machine is capable of a maximum of 150 cards per minute.

At the present time use of the machine is contemplated in helping Ray Ramsay, secretary of the Alumni association, arrange the alumni cards, which are being sorted and filed in connection with the publication of the Alumni Directory. These cards, printed in code, have eighty columns of statistics and data and the machine will sort them according to any predetermined grouping.

Formerly used by the registrar's office, the machines have now been made more complete with the addition of new apparatus and are more or less used for all university research, secretarial and accounting work.
