Respectful Request.

The proposal to place two students on the athletic board of control is now in the hands of a committee of the board itself.

The Student council and The Daily Nebraskan have been waiting for two years for the culmination of this project and it is hoped at last that the end is in sight.

Students have a right to representation upon the board which governs their athletic affairs and not only do they have that right but those who have studied the situation believe that the athletic situation at Nebraska will be improved and the officials will be better enabled to accomplish necessary work toward athletic betterment.

At the present time the athletic department is considering ticket prices for next year. It is obvious that a drastic change must be made. The athletic board and those connected with that change would be much better able to consider and accomplish this work if students were seated upon the board to state the student viewpoint sanely and surely.

The plan as advanced by the council committee is believed to be foolproof. The fact that the representatives would be directly responsible to the Student council assures that each of the members would have to give time and attention to the work or be removed.

Time is growing short for the completion of this project. The Daily Nebraskan again respectfully asks the athletic board of control to report its findings to the Board of Regents at its earliest possible convenience and that the Board of Regents meet within the next two weeks to make their final consideration on the matter.

Correct this sentence—"I have worked my entire way through school," said the B. M. O. C.

R. O. T. C. students are feverishly counting the days until they can turn in their suits and collect back their ten dollars.

Merchants Institute.

The Merchants Institute, the first of its kind ever to be held at the University of Nebraska, is something new and different, and above all successful.

The topics were well chosen the speakers interesting; the group interested. The merchants were not only interested because of personal motives, but also because of civic pride.

It is said that Merchants Institute is to become an annual affair and well it should. Such Institutes are valuable to the university, and to university students. That they are of value to the merchants goes without question.

MORNING MAIL

No, Indeedy.

TO THE EDITOR:

I'm wondering today just how it comes, that every film released that deals with college, portrays it as a meeting place of huns without the least intent to seek for knowledge.

According to the silver screen they drive a tear-drop limousine and burn their high test gasoline, and drink their high test gin, sing Adeline and Boola Boo, and strum their ukeles, too.

Correct this sentence—"I have never been on a picnic," said the coed.

The Cornhusker should come out at the first of the year instead of at the close so as to take the risk away from blind dates.

Burning question of the day—Do seniors have to take final exams?

STATE SLANTS

Sin Sermon.

A Canadian university professor, who calls himself "an old sinner," but who probably is the very pink of professorial propriety, says that the "seven cardinal sins" as set forth by clergymen are not nearly so sinful as those on his little list.

According to the moral code as revised, the really serious sins are: Stupidity, ugliness, moral turpitude, cowardice, meanness, hypocrisy and pessimism, and the worst of these is pessimism.

But pessimism is not a sin; it is a disease. It comes not from temptation but from infection due to exposure to other pessimists.

Don't let a cold develop into pneumonia and don't let a little despondency develop into pessimism.—Omaha Bee-News.

Fraternity Men Interviewed Feel Lindbergh Kidnaping Horrifying Example of American Crime Wave.

Don Larimer said, "I think the Lindbergh case is a good demonstration of how a cancerous growth of the criminal element of the country is sucking the very life blood out of the greatness of the United States. If it can serve the purpose of moving the nation to ousting organized crime it will not have been in vain."

Change May Follow.
When questioned about the case, Donald Carlson, Hollywood, Calif., senior, and Alpha Sigma Phi, said, "Naturally, the case attracting the widest interest of any kidnaping in the last few years should affect the hearts and minds of American citizens."

campus for the best interests of barb students in the university, especially along social lines," stated Coupland.

"I fully realize the opportunity afforded me now of doing barbs a real service, and I shall try to make the most of that opportunity. I hope the entire Barb council will have the co-operation of every person or group on the campus interested in furthering the barb cause."

Vernon Filley, who was chosen new vice-chairman, is also a Corn Cob. In addition he is treasurer of the Ag club, member of the Ag Y. M. C. A., member of Palladian Literary society, and represents a barb club on the Inter-club council. He has been a member of the Barb council during the last semester.

The new secretary-treasurer, Miss Legge, has served on the council as chairman of the decorations committee during the past semester. She is also a member of Palladian Literary society.

The faculty adviser for the Barb council is Prof. L. E. Aylsworth of the political science department.
