LINCOLN, Neb., May 18—A bombshell bursting in the courtroom where Judd Brooks and Marcia Ferguson are on trial for the murder of the latter's husband, could not have had a more devastating effect than the sensational disclosures made today during Prosecutor Jeffries' examination of Jennie Gibbs.

Interrupted frequently by the objections of defense counsel, the state's star witness told a story of frequent trysts between the two accused in Lovers Lane, long a rendezvous for automobile petters. She climaxed her testimony by positively identifying Judd Brooks as the man she had seen running from the Ferguson home the night of the murder.

COUNTY AGENTS OPEN ANNUAL WAR ON BUGS

Cutworms and Grasshoppers Engage Attention on Battle Fronts.

County agents and county farm bureaus are starting their annual battle against bugs in Nebraska. The coming campaign includes war against grasshoppers, which have been increasing during the past three years and have apparently come thru the winter in fine shape. Cutworms have already done considerable damage in east central Nebraska. Other forms of pests have been reported working on alfalfa in the central part of the state.

In the grasshopper control campaign just getting under way, county agents are telling farmers to scatter poisoned bran over waste land where hoppers are hatching before the little hoppers move to the cultivated fields. It is again a case of a "stitch in time." O. S. Bare, entomology specialist of the agricultural extension service, said Monday that ten pounds of bran bait scattered properly now would be more effective than 100 pounds of the same bait used later in the season.

I. S. Ulrich, county agent of Hall county, has printed and distributed several hundred stiff red cards carrying formulae and directions for poisoning both cutworms and grasshoppers. With the exception of the grasshoppers, the same poisoned bait will attract both cutworms and grasshoppers. Cutworms, however, need their daily dose in the evening while grasshoppers should have theirs in the morning, the bulletins advise. Ulrich also prepared a circular letter and more arrangements so it will be convenient for farmers to get the poisoned bait.

County Agents at Work.
M. C. Townsend, county agent of Dodge county, has arranged with one of the leading drug stores in Fremont to handle white arsenic in quantities for Dodge county farmers. Townsend also arranged with a Fremont feed store to keep a quantity of the ready-mixed bran bait on hand.

J. P. Stack, county agent of Nance county, has arranged with a mill at Fullerton to mix and sell the poison bran bait for about a dollar a hundred. He has already put out bait for cutworms and saved a considerable acreage of small grain.

County agents in Burt, Saunders, Douglas, and Cuming counties visited by Bare last week were all getting ready to help farmers scatter poisoned bran bait. Farther west in the state, and in Boyd county, hoppers were coming out by the millions last week.

Carl Dale planned to start the Valley county farm bureau activities against hoppers last Monday. In Adams county, grasshoppers were hatching abundantly in two localities where eggs had not been found in great numbers last fall.

The extension service at the agricultural college began duplicating the essential facts about grasshopper control on cards Saturday. By Monday noon, over twenty county agents had ordered 38,000 of the cards for mailing to farmers in their counties. Information on the cards included the formula recommended, and specific directions for mixing and spreading.

STUDIO THEATER IS PLANNED FOR NEXT SEMESTER

Pierce Baker school in Yale, and has spent two years abroad on a Guggenheim foundation scholarship. He has already attained prominence as a playwright.

W. Zolley Lerner, assistant instructor in dramatics and public speaking at the University of Nebraska, is the author of an original play, "Kaddish," a one-act play dealing with Jewish life to begin Thursday. The play has been accepted for publication by the Prairie Schooner. Dorothy Thomas is the author of the fourth play to be presented at the opening Thursday.

Only a few invited guests will be present at the opening Thursday, which will mark the first step in the inauguration of the experiment.

Seats 250.
The studio theater is located on the second floor of the Temple and the room has been redesigned to meet the needs of the course. The theater will accommodate about 250 people. Tapestries will form the background for all plays, and it is expected that various lighting effects and stage settings will be tried out.

According to Miss Howell, the experiment will give dramatic students the opportunity to write, choose and present plays. Students will have the opportunity to see their own plays enacted, and the opportunity to try experiments along the line of direction, criticism and presentation. The theater will be, as the name indicates, a place of experiment in the field of dramatics. It is hoped that all situations will be found in presenting these plays which would ordinarily come up in all phases of dramatic work.

Among plays expected to be presented next year in the studio theater are Tchekhov's "Masks" and O'Neill's "Great God Brown." A play by Luigi Pirandello will also be produced. Such plays as these

New Awgwan Pleases Reviewer Who Sees It as One of Sprightliest Comics

A cover picture of red goblins, innocents, about to choke a green innocent-to-be announces the Ivy Day theme of the May Awgwan, on sale at campus stands Wednesday.

And the comic has a new kind of lettering in its boldly black name-plate. From large-breasted lady on the frontispiece to inevitable collar ad on the rear cover, this month's issue makes its sisters in the college comic world look a wee bit sick. The art work goes metropolitan, a la Robinson, and on the whole it's a most captivating magazine.

"Gore" is there, of course, in all its morbidly interesting detail, and Jimmy Cuneo's difficulties as a student are revealed in a "Vignette" sketch. The reader, too, is taken behind the scenes while a Kosmet Klub Kast is rehearsing, and the short play "Jumbled Belles" offers an inside picture of the chaos a director faces.

Lovers Take Note.
In tune with spring on the campus, the May issue follows up its March article of "How to Write" would afford but little pleasure to the average theater-goer but are exceptionally valuable to the student of dramatics. Miss Howell explained. Besides plays of this type it is planned to produce original plays written by students during the year.

Producer Interested.
A great deal of interest in the studio theater is being displayed by eastern producers and critics. Barrett Clark, producer of New York City, has been a visitor on the Nebraska campus and has expressed his interest in the plan. According to Miss Howell, Mr. Barrett plans to keep in touch with the progress made by the experiment.

"It should strengthen all the work of the department," said Miss Howell, "commenting on the studio theater," "for experimentation makes for progress."
