Professor Senning Is Fostering Project to Help Students Plan Courses for Government Service

The co-ordination of work in several related departments particularly for the benefit of students who have aspirations to enter some phase of the government service, is a project upon which Prof. John P. Senning, head of the political science department is working with the co-operation of the heads of several other departments. As Dr. Senning described the plan it involves simply the co-operation of ability of inter-departmental co-operation Dr. Senning pointed to the hypothetical plight of an engineering graduate who received an appointment as a government engineer. The work involved considerably more than engineering knowledge and ability, and the necessity of preparation in other fields which would give such an individual a working knowledge of the practical operations of government, etc., would be clearly apparent. This tendency to destroy to some extent the exclusiveness of departmental courses is a growing one, Dr. Senning feels. At Chicago and Leland-Stanford universities, courses are not offered by departments but by broad divisions of subjects such as laboratory sciences, social sciences, etc. Such a scheme, he is sure, is of much more benefit to the student than the splitting of related subjects into narrow fields in which students are encouraged to specialize.

Dr. Senning thinks that political science courses are valuable, but that certain courses in history, geography, economics, journalism, and some in law are also essential. For those who may perhaps get into the work of the foreign service, a knowledge of languages is also necessary, he pointed out. But government service may include many varieties of work, including not only federal government employment, but work in state and local governments.

"We are not advocating the inclusion of a single new course in the curriculum," said Dr. Senning. "Our plan simply involves the designation of courses already offered as particularly suitable for students whose objective is government service work. Thus a student majoring in any one department will be advised to take those courses regardless of what department offers them. So far the response I have received from consultations with several departments has been 100 percent favorable."

Under the plan it is probable that students working for a major in a certain department will be allowed to satisfy the requirements for that major with courses outside the department which are related to the objectives of the student. Such permission is frequently granted by many departments at the present time, Professor Senning pointed out.

One section of the American Political Science Association of which Dr. Senning is a member deals with problems of public administration. These sectional meetings have also considered questions pertinent to the preparation of students who intend to enter government service, and from these meetings, Dr. Senning has received many of the ideas as to the type of preparation which is needed.

Dr. Senning also attended a conference in Minneapolis last summer devoted to the consideration of public administration and the various angles necessary to be considered in the preparation for every type of government service. At this conference representatives of the civil service, of the various departments, commissions and boards of the federal government, as well as economists and political scientists contributed information relative to the types of preparatory courses which would be valuable for students with government service ambitions. From these conferences Dr. Senning has received a lineup on the practical courses necessary for such aspirants.

MAYBE SO, AL—BUT TAKE A LOOK! THERE'S WHAT Y'CALL A CLOSE, SMOOTH SHAVE, GOOD FOR ALL DAY. NOTHIN' LIKE COLGATE'S—NOTHIN'!

LISTEN to Joe and Al! Nothing will ever convince Al there's a better shaving cream than Palmolive. Nothing will ever sell Joe off Colgate's!

Millions of men are like Joe and Al. That's the kind of loyalty that has put Colgate's and Palmolive miles ahead in a field of 176 competing brands—made them the world's biggest sellers by far.

Where do you stand in this big Colgate's vs. Palmolive argument? That's what we want to know.

Here's what you do. In ONE of the empty "blurb" spaces (not both) at the right, or on a sheet of paper, help Joe out—or help Al out. If you're a Palmolive shaver, write a boost for Palmolive. If you use Colgate's, write a "blurb" in favor of Colgate's. Just "horn in" on the argument—and may the best "blurbs" win.

CONTEST RULES

MAIL your "blurb" with name and address to Contest Editors, Dept. CX-35, P. O. Box 1133, Chicago, Ill. The prize money (totaling $25,000) is divided into six sets of monthly prizes (each set totaling $4200). At the end of each month prizes are awarded (see list at right) for the best "blurbs" received during that month, as follows:

Feb. 29, $4200 Mar. 31, $4200

(Contest closes July 31, 1932)

Contest is open only to residents of the United States and Canada. Employees of the manufacturers and their families are not eligible to compete.

In event of a tie, each trying contestant will be awarded full amount of the prize tied for. Decision of the judges shall be final. All contributions shall become the property of the manufacturers, to be used in any way desired.

Some hints to help you win

Here are some facts about the world's two largest selling shaving creams—Colgate's and Palmolive. Here are some of the reasons why men prefer these famous shaving creams.

PALMOLIVE

1. Multiplies itself in lather 250 times
2. Softens the beard in one minute.
3. Maintains its creamy fullness for 10 minutes.
4. Fine after-effects due to olive oil content.

COLGATE'S

1. Breaks up oil film that covers each hair.
2. Small bubbles get down to the base of the beard, hold water against each hair; it skin-line and soak it soft where the razor works.
3. Gives a close, skin-line shave due to small bubble action.
4. Gives a lasting, 24-hour shave.

Here are the prizes for each month—464 in all!
