

SURVEY REVEALS
300 REGISTERED IN NIGHT CLASSES

Students Come From 14
Other Towns to Take Variety of Work.

More than 300 persons are registered for work in night classes of the extension division of the University of Nebraska, according to recent announcement of that department. Students are enrolled from fifteen other towns than Lincoln, Seward, Mead, Dorchester, Otoe, Greenwood, Roca, Ceresco, Crete, Avoca, Weeping Water, Valparaiso, Garland, Palmyra, and Murdock. They must make one or more trips to Lincoln each week for class attendance.

Occupations of the students who registered in night classes vary from banking to manual labor. According to the registration files, there is a dentist taking work in dramatics, as is a mortician. A laborer is registered for college algebra, and a salesman is enrolled for history. Further study of the records reveals the fact that a great many of the students are taking work directly in line with their occupations. There are several merchants studying business law, a mill worker studying mechanical drawing and so on.

Prof. Dwight Kirsch's course in photography seems to have the widest appeal, altho Prof. Ray Cochran's class in the history of the American revolution has the greatest enrollment, with thirty-five students.

Courses having found favor with women students include a study of home furnishing under Miss Evelyn Metzger, china painting, harmony, pottery, home nursing and short story writing.

Ages of the night class students range from seventeen to fifty-two. Of the total number, 113 are working for an A.B. degree, nineteen for M.A. degrees, and thirteen are working for credit on their Ph.D. degrees.

fizzed when Masterson's pass to Hokuf was broken up by Heller over the goal line.

Pitt Rallies Sharply.

Pittsburgh rallied sharply in the third quarter to carry the pigskin to the Nebraska 13-yard line, where the fine play of the Cornhusker line completely stopped the famed Pitt running attack. The Biblemen took the ball on downs, Sauer punting out to the 43-yard line. This was the main scoring chance permitted the Smoky City eleven. Masterson intercepted Heller's pass to Reider shortly afterwards to snuff out the final vestige of a Pittsburgh score.

George Sauer almost got way on a beautiful outback on an off-tackle play in the final quarter, but he could not get by Sebastian, who was the lone Pitt man between Sauer and the goal line. The dash was good for 37 yards. George added eight more on another outback, but the Scarlet players lost the ball on downs on Pitt's 28-yard line.

The great play of the Nebraska line that consistently set the Panthers back on their haunches, stood out impressively in the battle. Gail O'Brien, Warren Debus and Lawrence Ely were the backbone of the Husker defense. Penney and Hokuf were in there the entire game at the ends, and kept the hard running sweeps by Heller and Reider down to a minimum of yardage.

Masterson was outstanding in pass defense, the 190 pound quarterback watching Skladany and the other Pitt receivers like a hawk. Jack Miller clicked off good gains from his right half position, especially on off tackle reverses. Sauer and Mathis, however, were the sparkplugs, their work bordering on the sensational. Heller stood head and shoulders above any of the Pittsburgh ball carriers, but his gains were seldom consistent.

Miss Margaret Jones of the senior class, sang at the noon luncheon at the Lincoln hotel for the Co-operative club, of which Mr. Wheatley, her teacher, is a member.

Corina Beal, student with Valoria Callen, played a violin solo for a luncheon at the First Christian church, Wednesday noon. Doris Dickinson, student with Miss Callen, played a group of violin solos Saturday noon at the Cornhusker hotel for the Democratic luncheon. She also played this morning at the Lindell hotel for the Oberlies Bible class.

The Thomas Male quartet sang for the Saint Paul Methodist evening service, also for the Bethany Christian church service. Howard O. Miller, baritone, sang for the Sterling high school assembly. Marian Williamson, soprano, sang Friday evening for the Armistice program at Adams. The Thomas girls' trio will sing this morning for the United Presbyterian church service. These are students of Mary Hall Thomas.

Mabel Van Burg, student with Vera Upton, accompanied by Arlene Larson; Thero Reckmeyer, student with Mr. Kirkpatrick, accompanied by Florence Smiley, student with Thelma Sexton; and Bernice Runding, student with Mr. Steckeberg; gave a musical at the home of Mrs. King, Thursday afternoon.

Bernice Runding, student with Mr. Steckeberg, and Paul Schiffe, student with Miss Wagner, sang at the Cornhusker for the Beta Sigma Phi party, Thursday night. Wilbur Eberly and Arlene Larson were accompanists.

Lucille Ambrose appeared on a program presented by the Alford Prohibition Forces over WCJF last Sunday evening. Regina Franklin accompanied Howard Stark who won first place in the State Atwater Kent Audition. Friday evening Winifred Hyland, accompanied William Baldwin, who played for the Father and Sons' banquet of the First Plymouth church. These are students of Wilbur Chenoweth.

Mr. Chenoweth presented a program at the Beatrice senior high school Thursday.

Announcement of the second all-university convocation for Tuesday, Nov. 29, was made Saturday by Professor J. O. Hertzler, chairman of the convocation committee. The speaker is to be Alfred W. Flux, assistant secretary of the statistical department of the British Board of Trade, whose subject will be "The Gold Standard and its Breakdown."

Faculty Members Will Submit Contributions

Dwight Kirsch, Kady B. Faulkner, Martha Louise Austin, and Raymond H. Williams, of the School of Fine Arts faculty, have been invited to submit pieces of their work to the jury for judging contributions to the Joselyn Memorial art exhibit to open the first of December. The exhibit, composed of oils and water colors, is sponsored by the All-Nebraska and Icf a Art association.

Student Health Service Examines and Treats 2,000 Patients During October

During the month of October, nearly 2,000 students were examined and treated by the student health service of the University of Nebraska, according to announcement of its director, Dean Rufus A. Lyman. Nearly every type of treatment is given according to the detailed report submitted by Dean Lyman.

The student health service furnishes free medical examination and treatment, calls at the students' homes and in case of serious illness, facilities of the university infirmary are opened to the student. The record shows a total of twenty-six hospital days for the month as compared with fifteen for the last half of September. During the month, 27 house calls were made by university doctors.

men listed this year as "unclassified" and 212 graduate women, making a total women's enrollment of 1967. Last year there were 46 unclassified students and 159 graduate women, bringing the total number of university women students in Lincoln to 2,122. The group of approximately 120 school of nursing women students at Omaha are not considered in Miss Heppner's figures.

Slightly more than one-fourth, or 776, of the girls live with their parents, an additional 135 live with relatives, and 75 live in their own homes, this report shows. The balance of the women work for their room and board, live with private families, live in rooming houses, co-operative houses, Carrie Belle Raymond hall, or in sorority houses.

That slightly more than half, 52 percent of the 670 sorority girls actually live in the houses, was revealed by Dean Heppner's figures. Most of the others live in their own homes. Of the 352 women who live in the sorority houses, 104 are juniors, 99 seniors, 81 sophomores, and 58, the smallest undergraduate group, are freshmen. Ten more are unclassified students or graduate students.

Slight Increase.
The number of graduate women students in the University of Nebraska has increased steadily during the four year period, according to Miss Heppner's reports. In 1929-30 there were 139 graduate students the first semester, while this year it totals 212.

The number of married women attending the university and living in their own homes has remained about the same during the four semesters, the report shows. The number of girls working for their room and board has increased over the period. Three years ago 131 out of the 2,569 university women worked for their room and board; two years ago 112 out of the 2,366 women helped themselves in this way; last year 181 out of the 2,122 worked for room and board, and this year 148 work for room and board. Hundreds of others work at part-time jobs during the school year.
