Lawyers Find Derby for Von Holtzendorff Boner

Reports emanating from the law college Wednesday noon indicated that the much discussed brown derby, cause of much strife between the laws and engineers had again disappeared. The derby had been placed in a car belonging to one of the lawyers prior to the weekly award to the freshman pulling the best "boner" of the week. A search made by the lawyers however, disclosed the fact that someone, attempting to perpetrate a practical joke had merely hid the derby, which was consequently found in time to be awarded to Howard von Holtzendorff.

1932 GAME CROWDS LARGER THAN 1931

Gate Receipts Smaller But Attendance Greater, Selleck Says.

More people attended the University of Nebraska football games played in Lincoln this year than during the 1931 season, but total gate receipts were smaller according to statistics compiled at the office of John K. Selleck, director of Student Activities.

Despite a depression-year the turn-stiles were kept moving by a three dollar reduction in admission price in season tickets and a generous single admission reduction for each game. The University of Nebraska was one of about a dozen large schools which showed an increase in attendance over the previous year.

The smallest attendance at a home game at Lincoln was at the Ames game when less than 9,000 fans turned out to see the season's curtain-raiser. High point of the season was reached at the Pittsburgh game which nearly 25,000 people attended.

"Nebraska was fortunate in having good weather for its home games," Selleck stated, "and we are satisfied with the receipts."

Observatory Features Asteroid Vesta Views

Visitors at the university observatory Friday evening will be shown views of the asteroid Vesta, whose orbit is one of those lying between those of Mars and Jupiter, according to Prof. O. C. Collins who is in charge. The observatory will be open to the public from 8 until 10 o'clock.

Classes in astronomy have been studying the asteroid for the past few days thru the telescope, it being invisible to the naked eye. Vesta is one of the smaller asteroids, being only 240 miles across and receiving its light from the sun.

AMPLIFIERS INSURE DANCERS OF HEARING ORCHESTRA AT BALL

Oury Says Sound System Has Been Tested Over Entire Coliseum.

An amplifying system which has been installed in the Coliseum for the Military ball Friday, will make it possible for dancers to hear the music in any part of the Coliseum as though they were immediately in front of the orchestra, according to Colonel W. H. Oury. The system consists of two sets of three loud speakers.

"The main objection to the music at previous balls has been that the people at the corners of the dance floor had to strain their ears to hear it," said Col. Oury of the military department. "This year, however, with the amplifying system everyone will be able to hear the orchestra." He stated that the sound equipment had been tested and that the music could be plainly heard in all parts of the building without any resulting echo.

To Broadcast Program.
The program will be broadcast from 10 to 12 over radio station KFAB. Al Poska, station announcer, will have charge of the broadcast.

George Bowles, publicity director of the Muehlebach Hotel, in Kansas City, sent a telegram to the military department Tuesday in regard to Slatz Randall and his orchestra.
