VARSITY CAGE SQUAD MEETS SECOND TEAM AFTER BROWNE TALK

Henrion, Suffering From Flu, Is Only Member Absent From Scrimmage.

A half hour scrimmage with the second stringers and freshmen followed by a chalk talk was the day's fare for Coach Browne's varsity cagers Monday afternoon. The only man absent from the workout was Walter Henrion, veteran center and forward, who was suffering from the flu.

Paul Mason, who last season starred at a guard post, alternated between his old position and forward, coming back to guard when Steve Hokuf dropped out. At the other forward post was Bud Parsons who starred in Saturday's tilt with the second string. Copple was playing at Henrion's center assignment, with George Sauer and Steve Hokuf holding down the guard spots.

Ken Lunney also saw action at forward when Mason dropped back to the rear line. Steve Hokuf probably will not see regular action until after the East-West football game in California Jan. 2 in which he is competing.

On the second string Dick Dier and Hub Boswell played forwards, Keith Eno played center on the tip-off, changing places with George Wahlquist after the tip-off, who paired off with Bob Belka starting at guard.

MUSEUM TO DISPLAY MOUNTS OF ANIMALS

Adam Brede Collection to Include Large Lion and Lioness.

Two more specimens of the animal kingdom are soon to be displayed at the Nebraska state museum in Morrill hall. They are a large lion and lioness, mounted on a single base a part of the Adam Brede collection. Adam Brede, a native of Nebraska, made a large collection of wild animals during his several expeditions to South Africa, most of which he presented to the Nebraska state museum.

The specimens are being shipped here, one by one from New York as quickly as the university is able to have them mounted. This newest acquisition, the king and queen of jungleland, is considered to be the most perfect and beautiful mount to be found in any museum.

MANY PATRONS HEAR CONCERT AT STUART

Music of Strings, Reeds and Wood Winds Is Featured.

Despite the cold weather many patrons of the Lincoln symphony orchestra attended the second concert of the season at the Stuart theater Sunday afternoon. The concert under the direction of Rudolph Seidl featured particularly the music of the strings, reeds, and the woodwinds. The performance was less brilliant than the preceding one due principally to the type of music.

Jeanette Vreeland, noted American soprano, sang "Liebestod" from "Tristan and Isolde" and "The Jewel Song" with a warmth and spirit that blended smoothly with the program.

The orchestra presented the prelude to "Hansel and Gretel" by Humperdinck and Haydn's "London Symphony." The program concluded with Tschaiikowsky's "Italian Capriccio."

Members of the committee in charge of the publishing are Mario Smith, Wilbur Erickson, Bill Donahue, Lawrence Dayton, and Burton Marvin. EFFECTS OF EPIDEMIC OF 'FLU' IS FELT HERE

Lyman Warns Students About Serving as Own Doctors.

The influenza epidemic which has been prevalent over the United States the past week is making itself felt here at the university, according to Dr. R. A. Lyman head of the student health department. "There have been at least seven flu cases in the infirmary every day," stated Doctor Lyman, "and university doctors have been kept busy making house calls."

Doctor Lyman offered a bit of warning and advice in saying that those who come to the infirmary for care are generally able to leave inside of three days, but that those who attempt to doctor themselves may be in bed for as long as two weeks.

Nebraska students have paid a fee which entitles them to service from the student health department. Dr. Lyman asks that they feel free to call a doctor when he is needed.

University Prepared Lesson Series Supplies Information to Taxpayers

DR. G. O. VIRTUE

Taxes—that almost universal subject of conversation and public discussion—are discussed in a series of tax lessons being prepared by the University of Nebraska to supply information for Nebraska taxpayers.

Work on the series of twelve chapters, known as a tax primer, each treating some specific phase of the tax field and published as a separate bulletin, was started early last summer in response to many requests for information upon tax matters. The bulletins are now in final form and are being printed for public distribution. The editor of the series is Dr. George O. Virtue, chairman of the department of economics at the University of Nebraska.

"The authors are not advocating any specific tax statutes or any particular system of taxation," reads the introduction to the series. "Their job has been to find out the truth and present it in an unprejudiced form."

Dr. Virtue's Work.

Doctor Virtue wrote six of the twelve chapters in the series. Other chapters were written by Ralph H. Cole, extension economist of the university; Harold Hughes, associate professor of rural economics at the university; H. C. Filley, professor of rural economics at the state university; Dr. E. G. Callen, professor of political science and sociology at

FUND FOR PERMANENT DECORATION REACHES $850 ERICKSON SAYS

Committee Chairman Thinks Purchase Will Occur Before Next Fall.

With approximately $850 already pledged to the fund to date it is likely that the drive for permanent decorations for the coliseum will see successful completion by the end of the school year, Jack Erickson, chairman of the Innocents committee on permanent decorations, announced Saturday afternoon.

Although the decorations, if purchased, will necessitate an expenditure of approximately $3,000, Erickson thought it probable that if $1,500 is raised during the current year a plan of financing may be worked out which will insure their purchase before next fall.

Initiated Last Fall.

The project was initiated by the Innocents society early in the fall when in co-operation with Ray Ramsey, secretary of the alumni association, an interior architect was secured to make an estimate on the possibility of such a project. The architect declared that at an expenditure of approximately $3,000 a dark blue velour hanging could be secured to surround the three sides of the coliseum floor, leaving the stage open. The wall hangings would extend up to the edge of the balcony from which a sky blue canopy would branch over the entire ceiling, constructed in such a fashion that the ends of it could be raised and stretched to the wall at the top of the balcony, thus permitting its use on certain occasions. An orchestra shell was also included in the plan.

"The purpose of undertaking this project, as expressed by the Innocents society," according to Jack Thompson, president of that group, "is not only to turn the
