'MESSIAH' SOLOISTS LOUD IN PRAISE OF UNIVERSITY CHORUS

Five Thousand Hear Annual Oratorio at Coliseum Sunday Afternoon.

Before an audience of between 4,000 and 5,000 people from Lincoln and the surrounding vicinity, the thirty-seventh annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" by the University Choral Union was presented Sunday at 3 o'clock in the Coliseum by the University of Nebraska, under the direction of Howard Kirkpatrick.

The Oratorio was sung by the university choral union, a combination of singers from the city of Lincoln and the university, assisted by the College of Agriculture chorus, directed by Mrs. Alina Tullis, and with the cooperation of the Lincoln symphony orchestra. The guest soloists were Velma Lyon, Kansas City, soprano; Kathryn Dean, Lincoln, contralto; Charles Hedley, New York City, tenor, and Carl Nelson, Chicago, bass.

The guests soloists were high in their praise of the chorus, Mr. Kirkpatrick and the orchestra. Miss Lyon, who has spent fourteen years in Hollywood studios, commented particularly upon the abilities of Emmanuel Wishnow, concertmaster, and the "wonderful blending" of the chorus.

Hedley Lauds Work.

Charles Hedley, who was for seven years the leading tenor of the American Opera company, and has sung the lead roles of "Madam Butterfly," "Carman," "Faust," "Martha," "Cavalleria Rusticana," and "Cannio," is now the head of

Eastern YMCA Magazine Features History of Nebraska University

The history of the University of Nebraska is featured in the December 2 issue of the Brooklyn Central in a story entitled "Where the Cornhuskers Hold Sway." The Brooklyn Central, which is published semi-monthly by Central branch Brooklyn and Queens Y. M. C. A. in New York City, is running a series of stories on the leading universities of the nation, written by Walter J. Beugge.

The story begins by stating the university now ranks fifteenth among all the universities of the country in number of full-time students and is one of the greatest of state universities. Two pictures and a description of the present institution are followed by a history of the school, beginning with the authorization by the legislature in June 14, 1867, for the "State University and State Agricultural Col-

Students Contribute Pennies to Milk Fund

Give 7c for a quart of milk. Bring some needy family Christmas joy," requests the poster in the Home Economics building. The contribution box beneath it is already heavy.

Catharine Dunn, welfare worker from the downtown campus has offered her assistance in locating the families to be helped by the fund. The association is planning to extend the campaign in order that the collection may be sufficient to do a great deal of good. A table has been placed at the entrance to the cafeteria to solicit contributions from the many who lunch there.

All students on the campus are urged to drop in at the Home Ec building and leave their contributions in the box.

connection with the university dates from 1871 continuously to the present time.

Entering the university in 1871 with advanced standing, he graduated with the first senior class in 1873. He then entered graduate study and received his master's degree in 1876. He became general secretary of the institution in 1875, the position which he has held ever since.

"The growth of the university has been more than the founders believed possible fifty-eight years ago," Mr. Dales stated in an interview yesterday. "Trouble in the early years, caused by the widespread devastation caused by the plague of Egyptian locusts all over the state, seemed to number the days of the university."

ANDERSON WINS TITLE AT STOCK EXPOSITION

Freshman Ag Student Given Gramlich Trophy at Annual Show.

Harlan Anderson, Farm House, is the 1932 grand champion livestock showman on the college of agriculture campus. He won the title Saturday by taking high honors in the annual Junior Ak-Sar-Ben livestock exposition. The Block and Bridle club sponsored the show.

The champion showman is a freshman in the college and has been one of the outstanding 4-H club members in Nebraska during the past few years. He comes from Lexington.

Bonne Spanngaard of Omaha won the coed livestock showmanship contest. Five girls enrolled in the college of agriculture competed in the event.

Burr Ross of Rosalie, Farm House, won in the hog showmanship contest. Charles Rochford of St. Paul won in the sheep division. Raymond McCarthy of McCook Junction was the winner in the dairy cattle event, while Jack Smith, Alpha Gamma Rho, won high honors in the horse showmanship contest.

Canes, ribbons and ties were awarded to the winners in the Ak-Sar-Ben contest. In addition the grand champion received the Gramlich trophy.

ROBB HERE FOR HOLIDAYS

Former Editor of Nebraskan Taking Graduate Work At Princeton.

Eugene S. Robb, '30, who is attending Princeton university where he is taking graduate work, arrived in Lincoln Monday to spend the Christmas holidays. Mr. Robb was editor of the Daily Nebraskan during his senior year and is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity. Besides attending Princeton, he is acting as publicity director for Pocono Study Tours, in which capacity he spent several months in Europe last spring and summer. He is planning to spend the coming summer in Europe doing the same work.

BARBS ELECT SIX TO FILL COUNCIL POSTS

Chairman Coupland Appoints New Committees for Second Semester.

Six new members were elected to the Barb Council to fill vacancies, it was announced Monday by Jack Coupland, chairman. New committees have also been appointed by the chairman of the council.

The new members are Wilbur Erickson, Mario Smith, Marlowe Westerhoff, Frank Simmons, Merrill Morriss, and Marjorie Dean. The election last week was one of two held each year by the organization for new members. A number were elected in the spring elections last year and each fall there is always an election of new members by the group itself.

On the decorations committee Vernon Filley is to serve as chairman with Frank Simmons and Ruth Buhrman completing the roster. The committee for chaperones is composed of Hughina Legge, chairman, Marjorie Dean and Marjorie Filley.

The orchestra committee during the remainder of the year will consist of Burton Marvin, chairman, Mario Smith, and Jens Peterson.

The group in charge of publicity is to be composed of Wilbur Erickson, Graham Howe, and Burton Marvin.

Dental Museum Boasts Human Teeth That Might Give Horse a Toothache

There is a museum in the dental college in Andrews hall that has in the past been overshadowed by its more pretentious neighbor to the north. This museum consists entirely of mistakes of nature.

These mistakes are of all kinds, double teeth, enormous roots, and all the other freaks that are possible in the field of dentistry. In size the teeth range from one so small that it would insult a kitten to those big enough to give a horse a toothache. All these teeth have been extracted from human beings even though some are so strange as to make one doubt this statement. The smallest tooth in the collec-

MANY FARMERS ARE EXPECTED HERE FOR ORGANIZED AG MEET

Outstanding Men Secured To Address Sessions January 2-5.

Final preparations for the annual Organized Agriculture meetings to be held on the college of agriculture campus, Jan. 2-5, have been about completed, according to an announcement made Monday afternoon. Given favorable weather, the week's activities are expected to attract several thousand farmers from all parts of the state.

E. A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, and Chris Christensen, dean of the Wisconsin college of agriculture, are to be two of the headline speakers for the week. Since O'Neal is an ardent backer of the domestic allotment plan as being presented to congress now, his appearance is expected to attract considerable attention.

Practically every farm organization in the state will hold their meetings on the college campus during the Organized Agriculture week. All programs have been built around the economical side of farming. The farmer's family fun feed will provide the "fun" for the week, featuring old time contests such as old fiddling, shoe repairing, overall patching, square dances and other events.

Miss Rokahr to Speak.

Miss Mary Rokahr of the United States Department of Agriculture is to be one of the leading speakers on the home economics section program which opens Tuesday of the Organized Agriculture week. She is a former Lincoln girl. Miss Rokahr will give several talks and will also lead some discussion periods. Faculty members of the home economics department along with other noted authorities in the field will appear on the program also during the three-day session of the state organization.

In addition to the various individual organization meetings, announcements of winners in various state-wide farm contests will be announced during the week. The state champion pork producer as well as the winning corn producer will be among those feted by different organizations.

DR. LYMAN REPORTS FEWER 'FLU' CASES

Small Danger of Spread Now Says Student Health Head.

A definite decrease in the number of cases of "flu" this week is reported by Dr. R. A. Lyman, head of the Student Health service. The mild epidemic, which reached its height a week ago has subsided to such a degree that there is relatively small danger of its further spread before Christmas vacation begins tomorrow, he declared.

In a statement yesterday afternoon, Dr. Lyman said: "We had twenty-two students in the infirmary one night last week suffering from the flu. There are only five cases of 'flu' in the infirmary today."

The largest has an enlargement of the roots that makes it about three times as large as it should be. Others in the museum have twisted roots, extra parts, and other peculiarities that make them different from normal parts of the human apparatus.

Dean G. A. Grubb, of the dental college has been collecting these specimens for the college for several years. Most of the freaks have been sent in by Nebraska dentists, many of whom are graduates of the college.
