FAMOUS ARTISTS SHOW PICTURES IN EXHIBITION

Cunningham Says Beaux Art Ball Materials Are Now Arriving.

Professor Cunningham of the architectural college secretary of the Nebraska Art association, announces that most of the pictures which are to be hung for exhibition at the Beaux Art Ball Thursday evening at Morrill hall, have already arrived. The pictures which are to be presented thru the Art association are by some of the foremost modern artists.

Among those pictures contributed are "Tormore" by Rockwell Kent of New York, "October," a study by Ernest Blumenschein of Taos, New Mexico, Oscar Beringhouse offers two interesting pictures entitled "Along the Barbed Wire Fence," which pictures a group of Indians without the financial means to pay for an admission grouped near the barbed wire fence viewing the rodeo, his other contribution is called "Early Autumn."

Artists Display Work.

Other pictures of interest by such artists as John Sloan of New York, creator of the "Traveling Carnival," Dorothy E. Brett who, incidentally is working a book called "Reminences of D. H. Lawrence," and Edwin Hopper will be shown at this time.

"Tuscan of Pennsylvania" will hold additional interest for Lincoln people because the artist of the scene is Dr. Magonigle of New York who received his degree of B. S. Arch. at the University of Nebraska two years ago. Dr. Magonigle drew the plans for the Plymouth church of Lincoln. One of the works of his wife will be shown. It is called "Stone Oven."

Present Local Talent.

Works of some of the local artist will be presented. Dwight Kirsch, Louise Austin, Katherine Faulkner, all of the fine art school, Mrs. Dean R. Leland, president of the Nebraska Art association are among the number of prominent local artists.

Professor Cunningham announces that the Nebraska students who wish to see the exhibit may do so anytime after the 16th until the 19th of March, upon the presentation of their identification cards.

DEAN SHERMAN.
"Dean Lucius A. Sherman was a commanding figure in the University of Nebraska for forty-seven years. Essentially a scholar and a literary critic, he was an inspiring teacher to those interested in literature and the humanities," said Chancellor E. A. Burnett of the university Tuesday morning. "He was chairman of the department of English language and literature from the time he came to the university to his retirement in 1930. He held in turn position of dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, the Graduate college, and senior dean of the university, but he loved best his work as a teacher of literature. A productive scholar, he was a member of many scholastic honorary societies.
"While inactive since 1930, when he was given an emeritus status, he had still retained an interest in university affairs and had continued his Shakespeare studies. His death is a distinct loss to the university community where he labored for nearly a half century."

STUDENTS TO SELECT OWN YEARBOOK COVER

Editor Gives Instructions for For Voting Beginning on Wednesday, Feb. 15.

For the first time since the year book has been published Nebraska students are to select their own cover for the 1933 Cornhusker. R. W. Spencer yesterday announced plans for the cover contest which is to be open for one week, starting today, Feb. 15, and closing next Wednesday, Feb. 22, at 5 p. m.

Seven different covers, done in a variety of colors and leather grains will allow a wide choice. Ballots for voting appear in this issue of the Daily Nebraskan and will be printed each day during the contest. The covers are on display on a counter near the entrance to Long's bookstore, just across from the campus.

Each cover is numbered. Here's how to vote. Clip the ballot from your copy of the Daily Nebraskan and after you have seen the covers check the number that corresponds to the cover that appeals to you and drop it in the ballot box at the book store.

The editor urges that all students take advantage of this opportunity to select the cover for the new Cornhusker. "Since the book is published primarily for the students we feel that by offering them this chance to choose the cover we are able to give them truly a student publication," he said.

NEBRASKA CHARTER DAY

Charter day is a day for taking stock of our progress as a university. The day grows more significant as the years multiply after our graduation and our memories run back for ten, twenty, or even forty and fifty years. The first graduate of the university secured his degree in 1873, sixty years ago next June. This graduate is J. S. Dales, secretary of the board of regents.

Not many of us can span so long a period, but we remember with reverence Prof. Laurence Fossler, for forty-four years a professor, and others who have influenced student life for nearly half a century. Dean Sherman, whose death occurred this week, spent forty-seven years in active service as a teacher of youth in the university.

Professors Barbour and Fling have been with us forty-two years, Miss Clara Conklin forty-one years, Prof. A. L. Candy and Miss Louise Pound since 1893. Others of more recent date have profoundly influenced the life of the student body in their day and their memory lives in the hearts of many alumni and former students.

The early days of the university were times of privation, even of poverty, which would make pres-

PROFESSOR ARNDT ADDRESSES ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE

Heated Argument Follows Instructor's Talk to Ec Group.

A semi-academic manner of presenting a talk on "Inflation" by Prof. Karl M. Arndt of the economics department, at the meeting of the Economics Round Table Tuesday Feb. 14 at 7 p. m. paved the way for the heated discussion which followed. The introductory talk had as its principal purpose the raising of certain questions dealing with inflationary measures—their advantages and disadvantages; the analysis of certain proposed methods; and suggested substitutes for an inflationary policy.

The talk presented two principal reasons for such a measure—a more honest dollar for debt payment purposes, and the belief that inflation will raise farm prices into a more favorable relation to other prices. In attempting to show the unworthiness of such a policy, Arndt based his reasons on the answers to five questions—"Why should we inflate?" "What should we inflate?" "How can we inflate?" "What consequences may we expect from inflation?" and "can't the alleged benefits of infla-

INSTRUCTOR SHOWS FASHION MATERIALS

Posters Display Dresses Of Different Styles, Color and Ages.

Miss Grace M. Morton of the home economics department is exhibiting material from the Traphagen school of fashion this week. Posters showing modern dress design in color and adaptations of beautiful costumes of the past are in the exhibit. Pen and ink illustrations of fashions for magazines and several interesting pen pictures to use in illustrating articles are included. One particularly interesting picture shows Ethel Barrymore as "Portia" in a gown designed for her by the Traphagen school.

Another shows a group of the students in the "hard times" dresses and pajamas they designed and made themselves which cost as little as 50 cents and $1. Some of the examples are particularly fine for color and detail, and many of them are original costumes designed by students in the school. The exhibit will continue until next week on the third floor of the Home Economics building.

Dean Emeritus Dies

DEAN L. A. SHERMAN.

Dr. Lucius A. Sherman, who died suddenly at his home Monday afternoon. He had been with the university forty-seven years, longer than any other faculty member.

EDITOR WILL RELEASE FEBRUARY BLUE PRINT

Edition to Be Dedicated To All Nebraska High School Students.

The February issue of the Nebraska Blue Print, which will be released early next week, will be dedicated to the high school students of Nebraska, according to an announcement made Tuesday by John H. Hutchings, editor.

The February issue features an article by Joe Deklotz, mechanical engineering senior, on "Your Preparation for College," which explains the high school credits required for admission to the College of Engineering. In addition Charles DeVore, junior in electrical engineering, presents the first of a series of articles concerning prominent Nebraska engineering alumni, and Hugh Schmidt, civil engineering sophomore, contributes an article on the Hoover Dam.

The College of Engineering will send a copy of the February Blue Print to every accredited Nebraska high school, to better acquaint future engineering students with not only the entrance requirements, but with the best preparatory courses. It is hoped thus to help the situation in which many students find themselves compelled to attend college one or more extra semesters to secure the necessary hours for admission into the Engineering college.

WHITE DELAYS TRY-OUTS

Death of Dr. Sherman, Once English Department Head, Causes Postponement.

The debate try-out scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 16, has been postponed till Monday, Feb. 20, according to an announcement made by Prof. H. A. White, debate coach. The tryout was postponed because of the recent death of Dr. L. A. Sherman, one time head of the English department and dean of the Arts and Sciences college.

Those wishing to try out should notify Professor White not later than Friday afternoon. The tryout will be held in 126 Andrews Hall at 4:00 Monday afternoon.

Home Ec Group Plans Meeting and Program

The Home Economics association has scheduled its monthly meeting for Thursday night, 7 o'clock in the Home Economics parlors. Helen Jeffries will discuss the laundry project being sponsored by McCalls on the Ag campus. A short musical program will be given and a review of University of Nebraska history in honor of Charter day.

CHARTER DAY EVENT INCLUDES SPEECH IN NATION WIDE HOOKUP

Norris Will Discuss Place Of Nebraska's People in National Affairs.

The University of Nebraska Charter Day program, with Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska speaking over a nationwide hookup of the National Broadcasting company from Washington, D. C., as a headliner, the University and its alumni are ready to observe the sixty-third anniversary of its founding, today.

Observance of the occasion in Lincoln will consist mainly of an hour's broadcast over KFAB, this morning from 10 to 11 o'clock. The broadcast, in which many students of the university will participate, is taken up largely with the dramatization of significant chapters in the history of the school and its activities.

Norris Broadcasts.

Senator Norris' broadcast from Washington will predominate the national program. He will be heard over a nationwide hookup from 8 to 8:15 p. m. this evening. Mr. Norris is to talk upon the significance of Nebraska and her people in national affairs.

DEAN LEROSSIGNOL TO CLOSE ECONOMIC MEET

Speaker to Discuss All Possible Alternatives for Present System.

Dr. James Le Rossignol, dean of the college of business administration, will speak at the final session of the student economic conference to be held Feb. 18 and 19. He will present all possible alternatives for our present economic system.

Meredith Nelson, president of the Y. M. C. A., will lead an open forum following Dean Le Rossignol's speech. The discussion concerns the student's part in the economic plan of today.

Eight Schools Debate.

Four debates will be held, Midland and York college will debate Saturday at 9:30 o'clock. Wayne State Normal and Hastings college will discuss the topic assigned them at 1 o'clock. The Nebraska Wesleyan vs. Peru State Normal debate is scheduled for 3 o'clock. Doane college and Kearney State Normal will conclude the debates at 6:30 o'clock. Open forums will be held after each debate. Various students are to be appointed to lead the discussions at these forums.

Viola Vail and Alfred Smith are co-chairmen of the conference committee. Martha Hershey is planning the entertainment, Irving Hill is chairman of publicity and Margaret McDonough is in charge of registration and finance.

GLEE CLUB BROADCASTS

Director of Group Says Organization Boasts Unusual Talent.

In one of its first public appearances this year the Nebraska Glee club will be heard tonight over radio station KFAB, commemorating Nebraska Charter Day, the sixty-fourth anniversary of the University of Nebraska. The club, under the direction of Parvin Witte, will sing several numbers between the hours of 10 and 11.

This year the club has, according to Witte, the best voices it has had in his several years' connection with the organization. The only other public appearance they have made this year was at the Legislators' Dinner, held recently at the Agricultural college.
