

NEBRASKA WALLOPS IOWA STATE QUINTET BY 43 TO 16 SCORE

Eighth Defeat of Season Leaves Ames Team in Last Place.

AMES. — Outplaying the Iowa State cagers in every phase of the game the Nebraska Cornhuskers downed the Ames men in surprisingly easy fashion by a 43 to 16 score on the Cyclone floor Tuesday night. Nebraska got off to a great start and at halftime held a 21 to 4 advantage.

The loss, which was the eighth of the Big Six season for the Iowa State team left them in the cellar with only two games won all season. However, the Browne five was only winning its third conference game of the season in walloping the Iowans, while it has lost six and has one game to be played, that with Oklahoma Saturday night at Lincoln.

Browne Uses Subs.

Early in the first half the Nebraska machine strode out ahead of the demoralized Amesmen with some fine floor work and shooting, and when the half was two-thirds gone Coach Browne was able to put a number of subs in the game.

Altho the home team came back in the second half a much improved team, their rally was short lived and the visitors strutted out to lengthen their lead considerably with the subs seeing much action. Henrion put on some superlative floor work in the last frame in leading the Brownemen while they blasted any Iowa State hopes that might be left. Wegner, lanky Ames center flipped in a number of nifties following the intermission, but the first half lead of the Scarlet had already made the home team cause hopeless.

Henrion Individual Star.

Walt Henrion was the individual star of the game with his 11 points and outstanding floor play, and tonight played one of his best games of the season. Hub Boswell came out of his slump when he got into the lineup and succeeded in garnering 10 points. Wegner tallied 9 counters in the Iowa cause.

DISEASES OF TURF ARE PUTT ENEMIES

Monteith, Golfer, Gives Opinion on Problems of Turf Management.

AMES, Ia.—Diseases of turf are among the most important enemies of the ten-foot putt, according to John Monteith, jr., Washington, D. C., of the United State Golf association's green section, who spoke Monday at the greenkeepers' short course at Iowa State college.

Golf clubs are beginning to support research work on this and other problems of turf management, he said. "Like many other problems, however, which must be solved by tedious painstaking study, progress is slow," said Mr. Monteith. "Often a club in Texas, Maine or California writes in describing a new disease and wanting a solution overnight. If the solution isn't forthcoming, the club members, like the public in general, condemn the whole proposition."

More than seventy Iowa greenkeepers and club officials had registered at noon Tuesday for the first day of the two-day short course. This is about one-third more than registered for the entire conference last year.

CONFERENCE CATCHES

BY BURT MARVIN.

Boy, that's a surprise! I suppose you know that I'm referring to the Nebraska 43 to 16 victory over Iowa State last night at Ames. Last week Iowa State licked Missouri at Ames 32 to 31 Friday night, and then the next night here at Lincoln the Huskers dropped a game 39 to 31 to the selfsame Missouri five. Keeping these scores in mind one would naturally have forecast an Ames win even though he hated like the dickens to do it. Well, anyway, they didn't win, and how they didn't!

A few weeks ago the Cyclones came here for a conference game and lost to Nebraska 25 to 16, in a punk exhibition, but from what we hear the Ames game last night wasn't full of that poor brand of ball which the Scarlet has been putting on for the home folks of late. I'm glad to see that I'm wrong about that inferiority complex idea, and that the team is a scrappy outfit. Nebraska has often got leads in the early stages of the game, but always momentary let-downs have spelled defeat in the dying moments of the game. However, Tuesday night the fellows got off to a great start and steadily built up as they went along. Judging by the fact that Iowa State made only one point in the first half, the Husker defense must have been plenty tight.

But lets call a halt to this jubilation and continue on to the Oklahoma game here this Saturday night. Only two weeks ago at Norman the Sooners got a good scare from the Nebraska five, but finally edged out with a 39 to 35 victory. Of course the narrowness of that win would be enough reason for the Norman team to be on its toes, and now that Coach Browne's men have won an overwhelming victory it will make the southerners that much more wary. It should be a mighty fine exhibition of basketball if Nebraska is only able to retain that surprising punch which it produced last night.

Friday night Oklahoma meets Kansas in what is the conference championship game at Lawrence. Early in the season the Sooners, playing on their home floor, beat the Jays 25 to 23, but considering later tilts Kansas is favored to come through with another win and capture the Big Six championship for the third time in succession. If the Sooners should happen to win at Lawrence Friday and then lose at Nebraska Saturday, the Huskers could at least have the honor of keeping a team from cinching a championship. Folks hereabouts thought Nebraska had the bottom place cinched, but those naughty boys at Ames just wouldn't let it happen. If Kansas should ever happen to land in the last place that would be news.
