Production Will Be Shown At Joslyn Memorial On April 22.

"Romeo and Juliet," last University Players production of the present season, will be presented at the Temple theater April 3 to 11, according to Miss H. Alice Howell, director of the play.

The play is brought to the university at the request of many students and faculty members, and is the sixth production to be given by the university dramatic organization this year.

Romeo and Juliet, probably the best of the romantic love stories written by Shakespeare, was presented by the Players eight years ago at the Temple.

The presentation of "Romeo and Juliet" will be the first time that a University Players production has appeared at the Joslyn Memorial. Arrangements are being made thru Mr. Paul F. Grumman, former director of the school of fine arts and present director of the memorial.

COMMITTEE WANTS BIGGER CUT MADE

Legislative Investigating Group Would Appropriate 23.2 Percent Less for University General Fund Than Provided Last Biennium.

More than one million dollars will be slashed from the university general appropriations fund for the coming biennium, if the recommendations of the special legislative investigating committee, released yesterday, are included in the appropriations bill now before the present session of the legislature.

The committee recommended an additional cut below that of the governor's budget of $385,000. This figure, added to the governor's cut, brings the total reduction to $1,067,600 from the amount appropriated for the university for the years 1931-1933.

The governor's budget recommended a 15.4 percent slash in appropriations, while the committee's report, if accepted, will involve a slash of 23.2 percent in the general fund.

The heaviest actual deduction in appropriations was recommended for the college of arts and sciences with a suggested cut of $105,151.

The library took the greatest proportional reduction of 33.3 percent, a cut which amounts to $14,736 below its present appropriation. The college of arts and sciences deduction amounted to 30 percent.

The college of agriculture received the lowest proportional slash, 7.6 percent, which amounts to a cut of $17,036.

Maintenance Slashed.

The proposed cut recommended in the committee's report is to affect the salaries of employes in the various departments. The committee also recommends an additional cut of $150,000 in the maintenance fund. The decision of the committee in connection with this reduction was arrived at after discussion with university officials, who informed the group that as an emergency measure a large portion of this reduction could be made without crippling the university.

The proposed schedule of salaries contemplates a considerable reduction over the present payroll. The committee believes that all salaries exceeding $1,000 per year should be cut, and does not favor any considerable elimination of positions so as to maintain the higher salaries at their present levels.

Savings affected by salary reductions or elimination of positions or unnecessary activities are not to be absorbed by other activities, the report states.

Should be Self-Supporting.

The reduction in funds for the graduate college was recommended with the suggestion that fees might be raised without undue hardship being worked on anyone, and that this college department can be made self-supporting. The committee found that the majority of those registered in this college are capable of earning substantial salaries and that they should be required to assume the cost of further education.

Abolition of the rural electrification research engineer was recommended in the report concerning the college of engineering. No appropriation for his salary was recommended because the position seems to be rather an unnecessary item at the present time, the report reads.

Ag College Could Save.
Additional savings can be effected at the college, of agriculture and yet not impair seriously the activities of this college, members of the committee stated in the report.

The committee visited the college of medicine and University hospital and expressed the opinion that it would not be advisable to curtail very greatly the activities of this department. "The management is most efficient and economical, and the service that this institution renders to the state during these times are of incalculable value," the report states.

PASTOR ADDRESSES CLUB

Rev. McMillin Speaks to Cosmopolitan Society Friday Noon.

L. W. McMillin, university student pastor in a talk before the Cosmopolitan club at the Lincoln hotel Friday noon.

"There is every reason to be hopeful for our young people in the future," he said. Rev.
