COMMITTEE SUSTAINS SPECTATOR CHARGES AGAINST DEPARTMENT

Report Shows Athletic Division Is Partial in Several Cases.

NEW YORK (CNS.) Charges made by the Columbia Daily Spectator against Columbia university's athletic department were partially sustained and partially disproved this week in the report of a special faculty-student-alumni committee, which was appointed to investigate the department.

After calling nineteen witnesses, including university officials and football players, the committee filed its report with President Nicholas Murray Butler. The report stated that three of the charges made by the student paper were justified, namely:

That proselyting of athletes was carried on by the athletic association and "friends" of the university.

That favoritism was shown in the allotment of jobs to football players by the building and the grounds department.

That the football coach received an unusually "high" salary as compared with the remuneration of academic instructors.

Charges of favoritism in the admission of athletes to the university, leniency of instructors in allowing athletes better marks than they deserved and partiality on the part of the bureau of appointments in making assignments to jobs were disproved, the committee reported.

The investigators recommended that Columbia come to some agreement with other colleges and universities "so that hours of training will be cut to a minimum for safe playing of football."

They also recommended that the athletes, to be eligible for competition, be required to show passing grades in at least 12 units of academic work.

WOMEN RIFLERS COMPETE

Four Universities to Fire in Match During Week March 20-25.

The women's rifle team will compete against Kansas State, Washington university, University of Tennessee, and University of Nevada during the week beginning March 20 and ending March 25, it was announced yesterday.

The team for this week will be composed of the following girls: Justine Mickey, Adela Tombrink, Margaret Mordaunt, Esther Scott, Elizabeth Gilley, Rosemary Needham, Mildred Putney, Margaret Hill, Frances Hinkle, Beth Taylor, Gertrude Carlsen, Elizabeth Beeher, Jean Irwin, Margaret Seely and Esther Ladenburg. The team is composed each week of girls having the highest records for the preceding week.

COBS FINISH PLANS FOR DINNER DANCE

Jungbluth Will Furnish Music for Annual Affair.

Plans for the Corn Cob dinner dance Friday night are complete, according to Lynn Leonard, chairman of the committee in charge of the affair.

Professor and Mrs. Byron Sarvis and Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Schmidt will chaperon the event, which will be held in the Cornhusker hotel Friday, March 24. Eddie Jungbluth and his orchestra will furnish the music.

Dinner will be served in the Georgian room for Corn Cobs and their guests, after which they will retire to the ballroom for an evening of dancing. The dinner is for Corn Cobs and their guests exclusively, but some others have been invited to the dance afterward, including the innocents and the senior members of the N club.

BAND PRESENTS CONCERT

John Childneck and Theodore Diers Are Featured As Soloists.

The R. O. T. C. band under the direction of William T. Quirk presented its final concert of the season in the coliseum Sunday afternoon. Soloists for the concert were Theodore Diers, bass, and John Childneck, trumpet.

A new arrangement of Franz Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 1" was played for the first time in Lincoln and "Deep River Overture" as a tribute to John Philip Sousa. "Rifle Regiment," a march, was dedicated to Col. W. H. Oury.

Study Shows Methodist Church Has Largest Following Among Students

Twenty-two different religious denominations are represented among the student body of the university this year, according to a study recently completed. The study was made to assist representatives of the various churches to get in touch with students of their denomination.

The Methodist church has the largest following among the students according to this survey, which shows that 932 men and 579 women either belong to this church or express a preference for it. The Presbyterian church was second with 832 men and women stating membership or preference. Other churches included Baptists, 209 students; Catholic, 385 men and women; Christian, 328 students; Congregational, 498 students, and Lutheran 373 students.

Denominations with fewer representatives in the student body include Adventist, Christian Scientist, Episcopal, Evangelical, Federated, Jewish, Latter Day Saints, Mennonite, Quaker, Reformed, Russian, Swedish Mission, Spiritualist, Unitarian and United Brethren. Only 325 men and women out of the entire university student body indicated that they were not church members and had a preference for no church.

While the university does not exercise any official supervision over the religious life and education of its students, many opportunities for study and religious work are offered. The students themselves have organized religious clubs representing the various churches.

Several denominations maintain university pastors who work with their representative groups of students in the university. Three of these denominations have recently built or secured church houses located near the campus. These churches are the Baptist church maintaining the Baptist Student house, Methodist Episcopal church maintaining the Wesley Foundation parsonage, and the Presbyterian church maintaining the Westminster house. In addition to these houses there is the University Episcopal church, maintained for the benefit of university people and such others as care to attend.

Other denominations that do not maintain houses or representatives near the campus are also active workers in the religious life and education of the university students.

"You Can't Prosecute a Dead Man," Says Frosh Winner of Brown Derby

Dead men tell no tales nor execute actions, believed Bill Comstock, freshman law student when he offered his spring infected answer to a hypothetical case situation presented to the class by Prof. Orfield.

"Suppose," the professor suggested, "that D and X had quarreled and in a fit of anger X had seized a gun and shot and injured D. Feeling that he should protect himself from any further attacks from X, D seizes another pistol that is handy and fired at X but instead of injuring him the shot kills him. Now could D be prosecuted, Mr. Comstock."

"You can't prosecute a dead man," decided Comstock, who had been enjoying the beauties of the spring through the open window. And once again the brown derby so well known on the Nebraska campus, finds a resting place on the head which uttered the condemning remark.

The tradition of wearing the brown derby was started by a freshman class a few years ago. The freshman making the most unintelligent remark in classes was to receive the hat for one week and it was imperative that he wear it on all occasions. The avoidance of making such thoughtless answers to questions asked in classes was in mind when the tradition was founded. Few desire to have their ignorance revealed.

A few weeks ago Bud McBride refused to wear the well known head gear for part of the second week he received it, thus raising a welt in the tradition. Upon receipt of the hat this week its receiver deposited it in a waste basket and went home to lunch bareheaded. A fraternity brother of the unfortunate, yet true to the belief that the tradition should be held up explicitly, carried the hat home thinking possibly Comstock would too become loyal to the cause.

Spring Is Officially Ushered In Today With Snow and Chill Winds

Mr. Blair Makes Unofficial Prediction of Warmer Weather.

Spring makes its advent on the Nebraska campus today, ushered in by chill winds and snow of an unusually late winter storm.

The "vernal equinox" are the words which T. A. Blair, official meteorologist for the university uses when he means that spring is here. It is today that the sun will begin six months of shining more strongly on the northern half of the world than on the southern.

The winter of 1932-33, says Mr. Blair, was an abnormal one for Nebraska, with average temperatures ranging from one to ten degrees higher than normal.

Spring weather in Nebraska, said Mr. Blair, will be warmer than usual, although his prediction was unofficial.

In explaining why the 21st of March was designated as the first day of spring, Mr. Blair said that at this time when the earth, circling around the sun, moves into such a position that the part north of the equator receives more heat and has longer days than the southern hemisphere.

AG STUDENTS SHAPE FARMER'S FAIR PLANS

Reuben Hecht Announces Committees Are Being Appointed Now.

Farmer's Fair plans are being shaped into concrete form, Manager Reuben Hecht announced yesterday. Committees for the 1933 Farmer's Fair, to be presented at Ag college Saturday, May 6, are being appointed.

According to Lorraine Brake, pageant chairman, every student in the college will have a part in the big production this year. The pageant is to be the main feature of the show, and will be presented Friday evening, May 5, and both afternoon and evening Saturday, May 6.

"The committees have all been appointed for the pageant," Miss Brake said today, "and will be announced at the Farmer's Fair rally at Ag hall Thursday night." Miss Brake emphasized the importance of every student's attending the rally Thursday night.

GEOGRAPHY STUDENT WILL GIVE RESUME

Candidate for Master's To Speak Before Seminar.

Miss Rose B. Clark, head of the department of secondary education at Nebraska Wesleyan university, will give a resume of a study which she has made on "Geography in the Schools of Europe," before a seminar of the geography department Wednesday, March 22, at 5 o'clock.

Miss Clark, who is a candidate for her doctor's degree in the department of geography, has been on leave of absence during the past year in order to conduct this research for her dissertation.

In this project she has received the joint sponsorship of the National American Geographical society, the Social Science Research council, and of the university geography department. Her material includes the leading textbooks from schools in all the countries of Europe.

At the University of Rochester, the first professor hired, many years ago, had as one of his duties, the chasing of cows off the campus.

GROUPS HOLD ESTES CONFERENCE REUNION

Speakers Tell the Value Of Attending Annual Meeting at Park.

The Estes Park Conference reunion held Sunday, March 19 at Ellen Smith Hall was attended by thirty members of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. who had at one time attended a conference at Estes or were interested in attending the one to be held this year.

E. B. Engels led a short devotional. Albert Adams told what Estes had meant to him. Brota Peterson discussed "What I Expect of Estes Park." Willa Norris, member of the Estes Park planning committee, explained the conference plans for 1933. She announced that Bruce Curly of New York City, Powers Haggood of Indiana; his and Dr. Mendenhall of Wichita, Kas., will be main speakers at this summer's meeting. Carl Grill presided.

C. D. Hayes, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and Miss Bernice Miller, Y. W. C. A. secretary announced that certain loan funds were available to students wishing to attend the conference which will be held June 7 to 17. No interest will be charged on these loans. Mr. Hayes emphasized the fact that the only way to get to the conference was to go.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting before the fireplace lighted by Estes Park sagebrush and pine cones.

YEARBOOK DEADLINE SET FOR MARCH 25

Spencer Announces That Upper-Class Pictures Must Be In.

Deadline for junior and senior pictures for the 1933 Cornhusker has been set for Saturday, March 25, at 6 o'clock. R. W. Spencer announced that the deadline was necessitated because the printing contracts had been let and the plates must be in the hands of the printer the first week in April.

He explained that any junior or senior who has had his or her picture taken for the fraternity or sorority sections may have the same picture used for an additional payment of only $2.25. The regular price for pictures in the junior and senior sections only is $3.75.

Spencer urged that, since there are only five more days in which pictures for this section of the new yearbook may be taken, third and fourth year students make appointments with either Hauck's or Townsend's studio at once. After Saturday positively no more pictures will be accepted, he asserted.

SCHOOL ACQUIRES PLANTS

Botanists to Display Work For Benefit of Those In Institution.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.—University of North Carolina botany department has acquired the well known W. W. Ashe Herbarium, a collection of more than 20,000 dried plants, which will be classified, mounted, and put on display for the benefit of botany students at this institution. The herbarium containing a nearly complete collection of Southern plants, will attract botanists and foresters from all over the nation to Chapel Hill to make a study of Dixie's wealth of plants.
