MEN STUDENTS TO HEAR POINTERS ON COST OF CLOTHING

Instructor Will Attempt to Answer Questions of Curious Males.

"Why do women's clothes cost so much?" was the question of one curious male at the last meeting of the home ec men's class. Miss Grace M. Morton, who has the class for the next six weeks, will lecture on clothing and art, and answer questions like the preceding one, if possible. Already, with only one meeting past, she has questions like this to answer. How can you dress within a limited income? How do you select materials and colors, and how can you judge durability? What does it cost to clothe a family? Where do we get the fashions of today?

Miss Morton attempted to give the boys an appreciation of the part clothing has played in the advance of civilization in her first lecture. The subject of the second is "Clothing Problems of the Modern Family." At the third meeting of the class she will give individual help with any problems in selection of clothing.

Another lecture will be on the evolution of clothing from the effeminate knee breeches, the satins, laces and brocades of the 16th century to the expertly tailored, long trousers of the 20th century, with their simple lines and practical dark colors.

Only reds, or bolsheviks with a grudge against society wore long trousers in the early 19th century," declared Miss Morton. "They were evidence of protest against the aristocracy and an expression of democracy."

Admission into the Goldfish club at Roanoke College is obtained by freshmen who are able to swallow one live goldfish. This is the requirement for all prospective members.

Three meals a day cost students a total of about 55 cents a day. This is the contribution of the University of Wisconsin Student Union to the lower living cost of the students.
