SPECIAL EDITION OF NEBRASKA ALUMNUS RELEASED THURSDAY

Alumnus points out that passage of the proposed measure would reduce the university to a third or fourth rate institution.

This appropriation, if passed and signed by the governor, says the Alumnus, would cut the university to less than was appropriated for the two years 1915 to 1917, nearly twenty years ago when the university had less than half as many students as it has today.

Backing up their appeal for alumni action the special publishes the complete report of the university regents submitted Wednesday to Lieutenant Governor Jurgensen, presiding officer of the senate, and Representative George O'Malley, Greeley, speaker of the house, together with the pertinent editorials which have appeared in the leading newspapers of the state.

"Within the past three years, the University of Nebraska has lost four deans and directors, two of them to positions that pay $4,000 more than they were receiving at Lincoln. Yet the legislative committee would fix the maximum for any dean at $4,000, just the salary hike that was given those able men who were wooed away," declared the Omaha Bee-News in an editorial appearing March 22, which was reprinted in the edition.

Editorials from the Lincoln Evening Journal for Monday, March 20, and the Lincoln Star for March 22, were quoted at length.

In a personal letter to the alumni, Ray E. Ramsey, secretary of the Alumni association, says, "The situation is serious and the university faces a crisis. Now is the time to assert yourself for your university. Do it yourself and do it immediately."

Puzzles Are Sign of Neurotic Condition

The professor who in 1931 caused stormy protest over his opinion that those who whistle are morons, has now created grounds for another furore by announcing that the present craze for jig-saw puzzles is a neurotic condition, a symptom of a nervous disorder.

The professor, Charles Gray Shaw of the New York University, tells what he thinks of jig-saw puzzle fans by stating, "The jig-saw, like the cross word puzzle, is a self imposed intelligence test, by which the puzzler wishes to assure himself that he is not in the moron class. Such tests, on a smaller scale, are used for determining degrees of imbecility. The present craze for puzzles is a neurotic condition, a symptom of a nervous disorder."

The University of Hawaii holds one of its extension courses on the rim of a volcano so that the students may better study botany, geology, and volcanic phenomena.

COLLEGE STUDENTS USE SCRIP DURING BANK MORATORIUM

California Universities Use Idea to Help Thru Crisis.

Scrip, the much talked about form of substitute money, was used extensively in several colleges during the recent bank moratorium. Printing presses rolled out scrip in 5 to 25 cent denominations last week for the use of students in cafeterias and bookstores of Los Angeles universities.

At the University of Southern California, students checks were exchanged for scrip, which was issued in $5 books, broken up in denominations of 5, 10, and 25 cents. As some of the Trojans had credit directly with the University and others had enough cash to see them through the financial crisis, it was not necessary to supply all the students with scrip.

At the University of California, at Los Angeles, checks of reasonable amounts were exchanged for scrip. Those who purchased articles with cash were given cash in change while those who paid with scrip were given scrip in change. Departmental fees were deferred for one week in order that students might have an opportunity to procure either checks or cash money.
