DR. JOSHI SPEAKS AT ALL-UNIVERSITY MEETING IN TEMPLE

Upper Caste Hindu Talks on Indo-British Relations At Convocation.

Pointing to the lack of understanding between two peoples of different psychological makeup as one of the chief causes of present Indo-British relations, Dr. S. L. Joshi, upper caste Hindu now teaching at Dartmouth college, speaking before students and faculty of the university at a convocation at the Temple at 11 o'clock Thursday, called upon the students, who tomorrow will face such international problems, to clear the way for settling the troubles by a sympathetic study of Asia and its people.

"The British," Doctor Joshi, who was an exchange professor and lecturer at Nebraska during the second semester of 1922-23, explained, "are a people blessed with little imagination. They are 'doers.' The Indians, on the other hand, are given to introversion—to thinking, rather than acting. The natural result of the misunderstanding of these two people has been conflict and trouble."

"Another fruitful source of mis-

GERMAN PROFESSOR SPEAKS TO SOCIETY

Dr. Pfeiler Gives Talk At Knife and Fork Organization.

Reviewing present conditions in Germany and declaring that too much alarm is being evinced over recent developments there, Dr. W. K. Pfeiler, professor of Germanic languages, addressed the Knife and Fork club at the Cornhusker hotel Thursday noon.

Dr. Pfeiler stated that in many respects, Germany is two nations in one, the nationalists comprising one, and the socialist, liberals, and communist the other, with a wide rift between the two.

"Hitler's anti-Semitism campaign served to unite these elements," stated Dr. Pfeiler. "He said to a group of capitalists, 'I will protect you from communism,' and to a group of communists, 'I will protect your interests from the capitalists.' Then as an outlet to their feelings he pointed to some Jewish bankers, stirring within them all their old and ancient racial prejudices."

Declaring that he was "no prophet," Dr. Pfeiler made no predictions as to Germany's future.

University Professor Gives Talk in Omaha

The people in America have unconsciously been making atheists of our children, just as Russia has been consciously with hers, stated Dr. Fred Morrow Fling of the university, professor of European history, in a talk at Omaha yesterday. He also deplored the emphasis placed upon natural science in the schools.

STUDENTS DISCUSS PROPOSED CUT WITH LEGISLATIVE GROUP

Meeting Is Outgrowth of Student Mass Assembly Held March 23.

At the invitation of the special investigating committee of the legislature which recently submitted a report on university appropriations, a committee of students met with the legislative committee Wednesday evening to present informally the attitude of students toward the proposed cut of university appropriations. The meeting was held as an outgrowth of the student mass meeting held two weeks ago.

The legislative committee expressed sympathy with the students' concern that fees might be increased as the result of the drastic cut in university appropriations. Several of the members of the committee also agreed with the students that the rider attached to the appropriations bill obliging the university to withdraw from the North Central Association of colleges and secondary schools, would work a hardship on students desiring to transfer credits from one school to another.

The necessity for reducing expenses of government and consequently the necessity for cutting university appropriations drastically was emphasized by the legislative committee. They expressed the view that the cut was temporary, and that university professors who really had any concern for the state should be willing to sacrifice their salaries in view of the fact that they will still be much better off than most farmers and business men in the state.

The student committee expressed their concern that the best professors in the institution might eventually be attracted to more lucrative positions. In reply, the legislators declared that it was their hope that the cut would be temporary.

Members of the legislative committee who were present at the meeting were Senators Green and Neeland, and Representatives Vance, Bock, Mueller, and Beushausen. The student committee was composed of Jack Thompson, president of the Innocents society, Jane Axtell, president of the A. W. S. board, and Phil Brownell, editor of the Daily Nebraskan.

'Clothing a Girl Is Quite a Problem,' Decides Member of Chorus in Show

Costume Committee Has Difficulty in Finding Enough Apparel.

"Clothing a girl is quite a problem," decided one of the members of the ponies in the forecoming Kosmet Klub show, "The Bar Nothing Ranch." "It's either your feet or your shoulders that's too big and if it isn't that you're too broad across the hips to squeeze into a dress."

With eighteen women parts to be "swung thru" in the cast of the show it is a problem finding enough apparel to properly clothe the female interperators in the show, according to Byron Goulding, chairman of the costume committee.

"It is necessary for a number of the men in the show to wear cow puncher outfits and they seem to be hard to find. The Klub would greatly appreciate any co-operation."

State Sheriff Says Several Undergraduates Being Investigated.

Sheriff Endres took offense at the Nebraskan editorial criticizing the ancient methods of law enforcement in this state.

University authorities yesterday, denied that any action had been taken against students as claimed by Endres, either on their behalf or through any investigation that might have been conducted by Sheriff Endres's office.

A layer of clay has been placed on the courts during the winter, and according to the caretakers, the surface is much better than it has been formerly.

Wednesday afternoon three nets were rigged up in the coliseum, and regular tennis courts are available for students in that building. Just as they did last fall, players may make reservations for the outside courts at the athletic office.
