PLAYERS ARRANGE FOR PRODUCTION IN OMAHA

Community Play House Will Sponsor Presentation Of Tragedy.

Final preparations for the presentation of "Romeo and Juliet" to Omaha theater-goers at the Joslyn Memorial Saturday, are being completed, according to an announcement released yesterday by Miss Alice Howell, director of the university dramatic organization.

Following the annual tradition, the Players will present the popular Shakespearian romantic tragedy, under the auspices of the Community Play House of Omaha. Two performances have been scheduled for the production, those being in the afternoon and evening.

Play is Popular.

The play, which was the last of the series of six to be presented by the Players this year at the Temple theater, was regarded by many as the best effort of the year, as well as proving to be one of the biggest box office attractions of the year.

The original cast which presented the famous play to university theater goers will be used in the Omaha performances, including Zolley Lerner and Miriam Kissinger as Romeo and Juliet.

Graumann Makes Plans.

Arrangements for the Omaha appearance were made thru efforts of Paul Graumann, director of the Joslyn Memorial, former chairman of the school of fine arts at the university. Plans for transporting the stage settings as well as members of the cast have been completed, and the Players are scheduled to leave early Saturday morning.

The play, which was presented in Lincoln at popular request, is being given the polishing touches at regular rehearsals, the last one to be held tonight at the studio theater.

The custom of the University Players and the Community Play House exchanging plays during the regular season was instigated several years ago, and has been continued until this year, when the Omaha organization was unable to present their production in Lincoln.

Measure Passed as Raised Over Figure Set by Lower House.

Following previous predictions the senate finance committee voted yesterday to advocate the governor's budget appropriations for the university by a vote of 5 to 4. While seven votes were needed it was said that two other votes in favor of the governor's recommendations were available, and the measure was passed as raised over the figure set by the lower house.

Beliefs expressed yesterday indicated that the test vote taken on the general maintenance item of the university, would hold for the remaining items of the university appropriations. The general maintenance item as recommended by Governor Bryan of $2,990,000, upon which the test vote was made, increased the house recommendation of $2,568,200.

Minority Report.

Following the committee's brief executive session Chairman Callan stated that unless an agreement could be reached, he would bring in a minority report on the university. Those on the committee who voted against the proposed raise besides Callan were Neubauer, Brunt and Dworak. Those favoring the governor's budget are Hawxy, Stewart, Halpine, Peterson, Banning, Srb and Warner.

The senate adjourned yesterday afternoon in order that the finance committee would be able to take up the appropriations bill, and report it on the floor of the senate sometime today.
