GROUPS REAPPOINT BUDGET CONFEREES

Wells Declares Senate Is Not Willing to Meet House Half Way.

When members of the senate and house conference committee reported that they were in deadlock, they were immediately reappointed to continue negotiations. House conferees were instructed to report back within twenty-four hours and if they fail to agree by today, Speaker O'Malley will probably name another committee.

Representative Wells of Fairbury was perhaps mainly responsible for the failure to agree. He was not willing to go half way with the senate on the appropriations for the maintenance of the university. After making a speech he declared that the largest amount he would agree to would be $193,000 above the house figures.

Senators have not agreed to go half way in a compromise on the appropriations. Wells gave this as his reason for not agreeing. He assured members of the house that were he reappointed he would not be willing to compromise. Tremor Cone also opposes compromise. He would prefer having a special session as he believes it would save the taxpayers' money in the long run.

Honoring a long-time Farmers' Fair tradition, all Ag College students will appear on the campus Tuesday and Wednesday decked out in overalls and gingham aprons. "We will recognize the 'overall and apron' custom these last two days of school before the fair, but it will not be necessary for students to wear their farmer clothes to downtown classes unless they choose," Manager Reuben Hecht said today.

With a host of details yet to be whipped into line before the fair Saturday, the week promises to be a busy one on Ag campus. RODGERS TO TALK ON 'APPEAL TO LOYALTY'

Ivy Day Orator Will Speak On Proposed Cut in Appropriations.

"An Appeal to Loyalty" titles the Ivy day oration which will be presented Thursday by Ralph Rodgers, Lincoln, senior in the law college. It is based on the proposed cut in appropriations to the University of Nebraska and will be issued as an appeal to the students and alumni body of the university.

Rodgers felt his chosen subject to be a timely one. Being so extensively discussed and so recently acted upon by the student body, Rodgers aims his appeal at the students and alumni in hopes that they will help out during the crisis.

The election of the Ivy day student speaker by the law college this year instituted a new method of selection. Previously the speaker has been elected by the student body at large. Rodgers was chosen by the law student body in an early spring election.

Rodgers will offer his "Appeal to Loyalty" at 10:15 Thursday morning. The oration is being staged earlier this year because of the rearranged program schedule.

Walter Huber, last year's speaker, discussed extracurricular activities and social relationship.

The interlude dances for the Farmers' Fair pageant interpret the spirit underlying the action of each particular episode. Miss Clarice MacDonald is the faculty advisor in charge of this part of the production while Lynnette Gatton is chairman of the committee.

Forty-two dancers, thirty representing days and twelve months will indicate the passage of time between the episodes. Costumes and stage effects will be used to add to the impressiveness of the presentations.

Gives Greeks Advice.

"Fraternities are not taking full advantage of their opportunities for advancement," he declared. "Look about you and compare yourselves, your fraternity, and your school with others. Fix an ideal, an aiming point, and strive to reach it."

Chancellor E. A. Burnett, in a brief talk, stressed the importance of the university to the state and the part fraternity men play in making the university a great organization. "No university can live without traditions," he stated.

Thompson Speaks.

Dean of Student Affairs T. J. Thompson, speaking for a few minutes, suggested additions to the interfraternity program of faculty members to act as mentors during the year to the various fraternities. Dean W.
