DECORATIONS FOR FIELD HOUSE ARE TO BE REALIZED

Report All Adornments Now Purchased or Are Contracted.

PAYMENTS NOT FINISHED
Hope to Have Completed New Project Before Homecoming.

Permanent decorations for the university coliseum will be ready for use by the first of November. Byron Goulding, president of the Innocents society, announced late yesterday afternoon.

All of the decorations, including the drapes, artificial ceiling, and orchestra shell have been purchased or contracted for, Goulding said. The fund for purchasing the decorations started last year by the Innocents society, allowed the financing of the project, but it is not entirely paid for, he added.

Tentative plans call for the use of the decorations for the first time at the annual homecoming party sponsored by the Innocents society. Definite announcement of this will be made at a later date, members of the Innocents society declared.

A drive to secure funds to complete payments for the decorations will be started and pushed by the society in a short time. Goulding said. Money so far received for the decorations has been given by various campus organizations and university departments, and all organizations will be asked to contribute to the fund.

The new decorations, when permanently installed, will be a very valuable addition to the facilities of the field house as a place for campus social functions," Goulding stated. "The acoustics of the building will be considerably improved, and it is hoped that more and more campus organizations will use the coliseum in the future for their social functions."

PLANS COMPLETED FOR ALL UNIVERSITY PARTY

Barb Council Names Nine Nominees for Three Council Openings.

At the Barb Council meeting Wednesday afternoon final arrangements were completed for the second All University party this Saturday evening, and nominations were made of persons eligible to fill the three vacancies which have occurred in the council this fall.

The second of the seven All University dances of the year is scheduled to be held Saturday night in the Coliseum at 8:30 o'clock. Eddie Jungbluth and his twelve piece orchestra have been procured to play for the affair, and to furnish special floor club and instrumental entertainment during the evening.

Concerning the party Burton Marvin, chairman of the council stated, "Since we have secured Eddie Jungbluth's NBC orchestra for the dance Saturday night, and can promise music and entertainment of the highest class, we are expecting a large crowd."

Nine persons were nominated by members of the Barb Council to be the group from which the three new members of the body will be chosen next Wednesday at the council election.

Unprecedented Demand for Social Workers Is Temporary, a Product of Depression, Says Miss Powell

Great increases in the amount of relief work, made necessary by industrial chaos, have placed the social worker in unprecedented prominence, according to Miss Esther H. Powell, who recently joined the teaching staff of the university as an instructor in sociology. This emphasis on purely relief work, she adds, is temporary and will in time give way to more permanent projects of the character-building type.

32 EARN KANSAS TRIP

Eclipsing last year's sales records, the final check on the University Players ticket drive conducted by the Tassels reveals that the 1932 record was surpassed by more than twenty-five tickets.

The ticket campaign was directed by Thelma Sterkel who divided the Tassel organization into five teams headed by captains appointed by Anne Bunting, president. The group with Maxine Packwood as captain is now the high team according to the final sales total. Capt. Laura McAllister and her team occupy second place. Other captains were Florence Buxman, Valentine Klotz and Ruby Schwemly.

The four high saleswomen are Laura McAllister with a record of 66 tickets; Thelma Sterkel 58 tickets; Gretchen Schragg, 51, and Ruby Schwemly, 50 tickets.

Thirty-two members of the pep organization are now entitled to the out of town football trip which the group will take early in the season. CADET OFFICERS DRAW SOPHOMORES' MIRTH

Finds Diversity of Opinion About Commands Among Men in Ranks.

There's both laughter and anxiety in the sophomore ranks. Anxiety, in most cases, because of the small number of first sergeants or platoon leaders that direct an R. O. T. C. drill unit. Laughter because every candidate for these important positions is being given the opportunity to direct a platoon or squad.

The diversity of opinions among the members of the squad or unit which is under the command of the candidate is alarming—at least, to the commanding officer. "As you were" resounds frequently over the campus, as some mentally—or orally—upset "commanding officer" makes a blunder. A detail, unable to be halted by a would-be "officer," was marched directly into the fringe of bushes surrounding Memorial stadium. A cadet in the rear rank of the unit, desirous of maintaining order, to which barberry bushes are very disruptive, shouted the command, "Under cover, March!"

But amidst hilarious confusion, the unit halted at execution of the impulsive order.

Botanically—or sophomorially—minded coeds scamper in all directions as units under command of a new student officer approach. Upperclassmen watch, and smile covertly, as each candidate takes his position at the head of the unit which he is to direct. And, envisioning the life of an officer as one of peace and contentment, the R. O. T. C. cadets blissfully march onward.

The remaining studies were done here and comprise character subjects drawn from the local Walkathon and paintings of typical Nebraska buildings.

UNIVERSITY WILL AID COMMUNITY CHEST CAMPAIGN

Members of School Faculty To Cooperate in Drive For Funds.

SIX GROUPS ON CAMPUS

Burnett States That Attempt To Increase Contributions Should Be Made.

The University of Nebraska will take an active part in the Community Chest drive which is being launched by the city of Lincoln. Friday, Sept. 29, is the opening day of the drive.

In a letter to all members of the university faculty Chancellor E. A. Burnett made the following statement: "I consider the Community Chest one of the most worthy enterprises in the city in caring for the needs of the poor and unfortunate. The university has always responded well to the demand for subscriptions aiding this enterprise. The need for continuing these subscriptions this year is perhaps greater than in previous years. While industry is said to be reviving, the number of people in Lincoln who will need help has not decreased. While I am well aware that the salaries of people connected with the university have been severely cut, I hope you will feel impelled to give as liberally as you did last year, perhaps in some cases more liberally. Our total contribution should not be decreased."

In handling the campaign the city of Lincoln has been divided into several regiments. These regiments have been subdivided into divisions and teams. The university is in Regiment No. 1, Division D. (Continued on Page 2.)

To get the football spirit alive and going on the campus prior to the Texas game, the two pep groups have arranged a rally for next Tuesday night. The rally is to be at the Temple building at 5:40 o'clock, according to the Corn Cobs. The Tassels, the Corn Cobs, other campus groups, and a number of football fans are expected to be in the group Tuesday night.

NEBRASKAN DRIVE HITS HIGHEST MARK

Wednesday's Subscription Largest Since Campaign Began; Nearly All Organized Houses Report On Block Circulation List.

FACULTY CANVASS DRAWS TO SUCCESSFUL END

Indicates Students Take Advantage of $1.50 Rate for Year; New Distribution Policy Is Favorably Received, According to Jennings.

With three more days remaining in the Daily Nebraskan's annual subscription drive every indication points to the most complete campus circulation enjoyed by the daily for some years, according to word from Bernard Jennings, business manager of the publication in charge of the campaign.

Yesterday's subscriptions were the heaviest since the beginning of the campaign last Monday, according to Jennings.

The total number of subscriptions was hurried upward when it was revealed that every organized house on the campus had either made their block subscriptions, or indicated that they would do so before the end of the campaign, with the exception of one.

Faculty subscriptions continued to pour steadily in yesterday, indicating that before the end of the drive this Saturday the faculty will subscribe nearly 100 percent.

The announcement that several new features would be added to the regular publication of the Nebraskan gave impetus to the number subscribing.

Indications pointed yesterday to the fact that most students were subscribing to the $1.50 rate for the year, taking advantage of the conveniently located distribution booths in Social Science hall, and in the ag finance office on the ag campus.

The new policy of distribution, Jennings declared yesterday, may be responsible for the increase in subscriptions. Contrary to the practice of last year, copies of the Nebraskan will not be distributed at the book stores near the campus. They will be available only at the regular distribution booths, or thru block subscriptions.

In addition to the new regular rotogravure section picturing student life and work in colleges all over the country, the Nebraskan will carry many additional features concerning student life on this campus.

"Nebraskan will carry features this year that the student cannot afford to miss," declared Jennings. "We are satisfied, however, that the subscription drive has been as successful as it is. From all indications, by Saturday afternoon the campaign will have realized a larger subscription list than ever before."

Health Department Reports Busy Week Examining Students

Giving physical examinations to new students, advanced R. O. T. C. men, physical education majors, new employees and students going out for swimming, football, and intramurals has kept the Student Health Department at its busiest since a week before classes started.

The entrance examinations are the greatest in number, the most complete, and are generally for the purpose of classifying the student in regard to the physical education he is able to take. The others are intended primarily to discover any infectious disease and prevent its spread. If the present rate is continued about 10,000 examinations will be given this semester. That is what the department averaged last year.

The infirmary has had from two to four patients all the time since school opened. The cases cared for have included a pneumonia convalescent, appendicitis attack, severe burn and several local infections but no contagious diseases. The season for contagious diseases doesn't come until about January, Dr. Lyman stated.

There is quite a little gripe on the campus but no hospital cases. As far as possible the department reserves the forenoon for the treatment of men and the afternoons for treatment of women; but in emergency or in case of immediate need, this practice is not enforced.

RADIO TALKS FEATURE NEW FOOTBALL RULES

Coaches From Nebraska and Opponent Schools to Broadcast.

J. K. Selleck announced that beginning at 10 o'clock Friday evening the athletic department will promote fifteen minute radio flashes on station KFAB to acquaint football fans with the "new deal" in gridiron rules and to speculate on what might be the high lights in the next day's game.

He stated that Coach Bible will speak this Friday on the Freshman-Varsity game scheduled for the next day. Next week they hope to have Coach Schulte and the Texas mentor on the air. Some of the players might also be on hand to deal with various points of the game.

American Institution of 'Boy Friend' Remains Mystery to French People

"The American institution known as the 'boy friend' is somewhat of a mystery to the French people."

Dr. Harold W. Stoke, instructor in the political science department, who made this statement, spent eleven weeks touring Europe while on his vacation this past summer. His trip included England, France, Belgium, and Germany.

"The French are intensely interested in this individual called the boy friend because such a person is unknown to them. I read an article in a French paper this summer," continued Stoke, "defining that term somewhat like this: 'The American boy friend is something of a combination of a brother, a fiance, and a flirt.'"

The French do not believe in the casual companionship among the young people such as are practiced here, stated Doctor Stoke. The ultimate object of any friendship between a man and a woman in France is usually marriage. Marriages there are more or less arranged as a business proposition. The parents of the prospective bride and bridegroom have more influence in settling this matter than they do in this country. The French family is a stable institution. Evidence of this fact is the rarity of divorce there in comparison with America.

Have Less Freedom. "It is also true that girls in France have less freedom in their contacts with other young people than those of any other country in Europe which I visited," Doctor Stoke stated. It is very seldom that one sees girls the age of the average American coed on the streets in French cities.

The reasons for this, Stoke believes, that in the first place there are not as many girls of that age in France. While they necessarily reach the same age, the long period between adolescence and maturity which is exemplified by the American college woman is cut short in France. Secondly of French girls of that age, the great majority of them attend girls schools and are constantly chaperoned. While there are coeducational universities in France, they (Continued on Page 2.)
