Former Prominent Nebraska Students Wed at Church Ceremony Wednesday

The wedding of Jean Rathburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merle C. Rathburn, to Edwin J. Faulkner was solemnized Wednesday evening at Westminster Presbyterian church. Seven hundred guests were present.

Miss Rathburn had Betty Evergett as her maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Charlotte Cornell, Ruth Ridour, Jane Rehlender and Frances Holyoke.

The best man was Russell Mousel of Hastings, James Pickering, Coburn Thompson, Hugh Rathburn, Elwood N. Thompson, Raymond Gavin and John Barnes were ushers.

A formal reception was held at the Country club following the ceremony. The couple will take a two weeks trip to Montreal, Quebec, Boston and New York before going to Philadelphia where they will spend the coming year while Mr. Faulkner completes the work required for a master's degree at the Wharton School of Finance.

Table Appointments Are in Pastel Shades.

Pale yellow tea roses mixed with purple delphinium arranged in glass vases flanked with yellow candles formed the tea table appointments at the all-activities tea given Thursday from 3:30 to 5:30 at Ellen Smith Hall.

Guests were received by Dean Amanda Heppner and Miss Elsie Ford Piper. The Tassels, girls' pep organization, acted as hostesses while members of Alpha Lambda Delta and Mortar Board served. Miss Mable Lee, Mrs. T. J. Thompson, Miss Pauline Geliaty, Dr. Elizabeth Williamson, Miss Clara O. Wilson, Miss Letta Clark, Mrs. Arthur Danielson, Miss Bernice Miller and Mrs. Ada Westover poured.

All active women's organizations on the campus were represented by members of the group who explained the work of the societies to the guests.

Men's Fashions

The "new deal" in men's fall clothing is featured by a distinct departure from conservatism. Brighter colors, new designs, and varied materials bring to the well dressed man about town something new and different.

Designers have completely renovated color designs, and fabrics. The new suits show a pronounced tendency toward greys and blues, and especially toward tawny browns. An open season has been declared this fall for the "rough stuff." Suits are not only rougher but softer and represent the last word as far as suit materials are concerned.

As for pattern, the conservative, drab and plain suitings have been replaced by the demand for patterned cloth, mostly in plaids and checks. Small check effects are noticeable as well as tri-color Glens and plaids, many of the latter being of the softened or indistinct variety. Tweeds and homespun also loom large on the fashion horizon.

Shirts have undergone a decided change since last year's fashions and the movement is all the more conspicuous because of the entire absence of plain colors. An extensive use of checks, plaids, and varied designs will be in order this fall. The tab collar will be featured by the leading designers.

Topcoats are noticeable this fall for their departure from the usual and uninteresting styles that have prevailed heretofore. Two distinctly new ideas will be featured this year. The prussian collar, reemphasizing the rough element that predominates throughout, features the wide sweeping raglan shoulder coat that gives utmost in freedom. The second trend is especially significant for the English trend, the wrap around. This particular style features the great sweep in the skirt but there are no buttons at all, held in place by a belt and very nonchalantly tied in front.

Hats will be similar to those in vogue last year. A slightly higher crown will be noticed in this year's models but the colors will remain in the darker shades with the exception of the ever popular gray.

Neckwear will follow the fashion trend by featuring the checks and varied patterns and designs in bright colors.

Stripes will again be favored with simple stripes, ray stripes, and club stripes placed upon a dark background.

Gloves, socks, and other accessories do not indicate any noticeable change in color and style.

large sacrifices to co-operate with the government and they deserve the support of the buyers. We should be willing to pledge ourselves to the support of those who are making these sacrifices."

A survey of the opinions of other schools shows that the consumer's drive is gaining a tremendous momentum among the college people of the country. Some, however, are rather emphatic in their approval. George Creel, an NRA administrator in California in an address before college students and faculty members said recently "take them by the throat and choke the life out of them if they do not obey. Any business not contributing to the public welfare must be destroyed."

Oklahoma in Line.

From the Oklahoma Daily President Bizzell is quoted: "I am heartily in sympathy with the recovery program and will co-operate with the consumer's drive committee in every possible way."

Among the students on this campus a number of statements might be picked up at random. "Students of the University of Nebraska should get behind the NRA consumer movement," said a senior in the college of Arts and Sciences. "We have an opportunity to co-operate in a great experiment to bring us out of the much talked of financial depression," another student commented, "and we should be willing to do our part."

Students in many schools over the country have already signed the consumer's pledge nearly 100 percent. Indications are that similar results will not be hard to obtain on our campus when the drive actually gets under way.

Why—

Tobaccos grown in this country are "seasoned" with tobaccos from Turkey and Greece

THE ANSWER IS VERY SIMPLE:

TOBACCOS to taste right in a cigarette need to be flavored or seasoned just the same as you might season a steak or a pudding.

No tobaccos have ever been found that equal the spicy aromatic tobaccos of Turkey and Greece for this purpose. That's why we send 4000 miles for aromatic tobaccos from Samsoun and Smyrna, Xanthi and Cavalla.

When blended and cross-blended in just the right amounts with Chesterfield's mild ripe Domestic tobaccos, the result is a rich flavor and a fine fragrance.

Chesterfields are seasoned right—they taste right. May we suggest you try them.
